RUSSIANS REJECT BAN AT LAUSANNE

Accept Participation in Straits Discussion, but Refuse to Be Excluded From Others.

Await Arrival of Tchitcherin, Who is in Berlin Discussing 'Demands,' Before Proceeding.

LAUSANNE, Nov. 30.—The Russians for the moment have become the storm centre of the Lausanne conference and, thanks to them, the conference is at a standstill until Monday.

Last night the Allies sent the Russians a refusal of their request to attend all meetings of the conference, informing them that they would be heard on questions pertaining to the Straits. Today the Russians replied verbally, saying they accepted participation in the Straits discussion, but declining to accept exclusion from other discussions before the situation could be considered at a full meeting of their delegation, the Chairman of which, Tchitcherin, is not expected until Monday. At the same time they asked that the beginning of the Straits debate, which is fixed for tomorrow, be postponed until Monday afternoon. The Allies have not acted formally on this request, but it is understood tonight it will be granted.

Now, while the Russians appear in the rôle of siding with the Turks on all matters, there appears to be developing a Turkish coldness toward the Russians which seems to be based on the double fear that the Russians will dominate the Turks and that the Russians may not play fair.

The Russians and the British have different views about the liberty of the Straits. The English want demilitarization controlled by the League of Nations or some other international commission, with full liberty of commerce ships and ships of war of all nations. The Russians want the Straits forbidden to warships of all nations at all times with the Turkish fortifications to enforce that ruling. To the Russians this corresponds with the status of the Straits before the World War, when they were closed alike to Russian warships which might wish to quit the Black Sea and other warships which might wish to enter. An interesting note is that this provision was detested by England during the Crimean War and was directed against the then fairly strong Russian fleet. Now that Russia has no Black Sea fleet England seems to regard the situation differently.

To Present a Forceful Case.

It is probable that Tchitcherin, who, as a diplomat of long standing, knows well the history of the Straits issue, will present a forceful case. Rakovsky has said the Russians will take the stand that absolute liberty of the Straits for all warships means that the demilitarized Dardanelles and Bosporus would always be under the control of the strongest fleet, which is England's.

However, many military and naval experts think that, considering the modern means of war, all talk of making the Straits free is more or less barking up a tree. They argue that regardless of treaty terms the Turks can close the Straits when they wish in war time and the Straits are free to commerce ships in peace time anyway. It is pointed out that technically and legally the Panama Canal is free to all ships at all times, but no one believes that in the event of war between the United States and Japan we would permit Japanese warships to use the canal in order to bombard New Orleans. They say it is rather vain to credit the Turks with more good faith than is accredited to America.

Therefore, the diplomats reckon that the real issue of the Straits is whether Russia or England shall enjoy the position of being able to bring the greatest pressure on the Turks to have their way in the Straits in time of crisis. Britain and France are working together for the British program, while the Russian idea agrees rather closely with what the Turks would like.

It is not known here just what the American position is on the liberty of the Straits. We are for it, but we haven't made it clear what we think it is. Probably Ambassador Child will make a statement when the matter reaches the full conferences. If he takes the British view, it may be predicted in advance that Rakovsky will ask him against whom America wishes to send warships through the Straits. If we quote him the Panama Canal, he will ask about the cannon on the canal.

It is learned that Foreign Minister Benes of Czechoslovakia, who spent yesterday here, has negotiated among the countries of the Little Entente an agreement looking toward the recognition of the Russian Government by those nations if a satisfactory settlement is reached at Lausanne. It is believed this action of Benes is intended to counteract the Russian irritation over the formation here of a Balkan bloc dominated by the Little Entente.

Greece Ruined, Venizelos Says.

LAUSANNE, Nov. 30 (Associated Press).—The former Grecian Premier Venizelos, who is continuing his official conference activities without his position being affected by the Grecian executions, attended the meeting of the Sub-commission on the Ottoman Debts this afternoon.

Without mincing words he told the delegates that Greece was ruined and could not pay a farthing of the Turkish liabilities. The conference had been planning to apportion the debt between Turkey and her former possessions, and M. Venizelos was endeavoring to make it clear that Greece could not shoulder any debt for Western Thrace.

"We might have taken our share of this debt after the Treaty of Sèvres was signed," he said, "but the Asia Minor campaign has made us bankrupt."

Ambassador Child and Minister Grew of the American delegation today received a committee representing the Armenian Council, who asked that they present Armenia's case to the Near East Conference.

The committee consisted of Dr. Alexander Khatissian, former Armenian Premier and Foreign Minister; Gabriel Effendi Noradounghian and Dr. Avetis Aharonian. They asked that a national home be provided for their nation, either in the northern or southern portion of Asiatic Turkey.

Ambassador Child, as the head of the American delegation, promised to call the plight of the Armenians to the attention of the conference.

Copyright, 1922, by The Chicago Tribune Co.

BERLIN, Nov. 30.—Full sovereign rights for Turkey and the exclusion from the Straits of all warships but Turkish are indispensable in a solution of the Near East imbroglio, M. Tchitcherin told newspaper men tonight before leaving for Lausanne, where he will head the Russian delegation and reinforce the Turks in their demands to be master of their own territory.

"Any other peace," he declared, "will be overthrown by the Turks themselves, with full support of Russia."

This statement means, Tchitcherin explained, that the Turks must have the right to erect fortifications to defend Constantinople.

Regarding Mosul, Tchitcherin insisted that Turkey must have absolute independence in economic life.

Non-admittance of warships into the Straits is a necessity for the protection of Constantinople and is an indispensable condition for the maintenance of peace in the Black Sea," he said. "At the same time the Straits are closed against warships, commercial freedom must be maintained. Experience has shown already that this is the best way of maintaining peace. This solution is provided in the Angora-Moscow Treaty, as well as in the Turkish National Pact.

"The struggle of the last two years shows that the Turks cannot be vanquished. A new Turkish middle class has risen which demands that economic life be in the hands of Turks and not foreigners. Attempts to perpetrate foreign intervention in the internal life will be swept away by the strength of the Turkish Nationalist movement."

Tchitcherin closed his statement with this parting warning: "I cannot say Lausanne will bring a definite solution, but whatever decisions the powers make the Turks eventually will attain their just ends, while our program remains, namely, the application to every nation of the right of self-determination; in this case, the realization of full sovereign rights and interests of peace, which dictate the closing of the Straits to all warships."

Tchitcherin then announced the opening at Moscow tomorrow of a disarmament conference between Russia and all bordering States on the east except Rumania, which refuses to participate until Russia renounces its claim to Bessarabia. This attitude, while embarrassing to the conference, will not hinder some new agreements between Russia and the other States, but obviously not as far as if Rumania would participate.

Moscow will submit definite proposals for establishing a neutral control zone between all States, as now existing between Russia and Finland, which also was proposed at the Riga conference last March, but which Poland rejected. This time Russia hopes the proposal will be acceptable, as it removes, in Tchitcherin's opinion, the chief causes of friction between the countries.

Denies Ejecting Christians.

ANGORA, Nov. 30 (Associated Press).—Premier Recur Bey declared in the National Assembly yesterday that there was no truth in the report that the Christian populations of Anatolia were being driven out or that the American and other foreign charitable institutions had been forcibly closed. The Americans, he said, voluntarily closed their orphanages, without pressure from the Government.

Discussing the Lausanne peace conference the Premier emphatically stated that Karagatch and Demotika, both west of the Maritza River, must be placed under Turkish sovereignty, as their populations were entirely Turkish and could not be "moved about like sheep." He added that the Nationalist Government would continued to insist upon a plebiscite for Western Thrace.

Referring to the Mosul oil fields, he asserted that this district of Mesopotamia belonged to Turkey. The Government, however, was willing to grant oil concessions there to all countries who were prepared to recognize the independence and laws of Turkey.

CONSTANTINOPLE, Nov. 30 (Associated Press).—The statement by the official Anatolian Agency that a conspiracy has been discovered among the Armenians to foment an uprising in Constantinople and thus provoke foreign intervention is characterized by Armenian diplomatic and ecclesiastical officials here as "utterly baseless and malicious."

They declare the Armenians are only too well aware that such a movement in the present delicate situation would provoke drastic reprisals by the Kemalists and would imperil the whole Armenian race in Turkey. They attribute the report to persons attempting to stir up racial hatred.

SOFIA, Bulgaria, Nov. 30 (Associated Press).—The Bulgarian Government, through its delegation at Lausanne, has sent two notes to the Near East Conference. The first requests repatriation of Thracian refugees in Bulgaria, who now aggregate 200,000, and the second asks the conference to intervene on behalf of the Bulgarian inhabitants of Western Thrace, who, it is asserted, the Greeks wish forcibly to expatriate in order to make room for Greek refugees from Asia Minor.

Western Thrace Reports Conflict.

LONDON, Nov. 30 (Associated Press). There has been no confirmation of the reports of Wednesday night that the Turks in Western Thrace had revolted and were marching toward Dedeagghatch on the Aegean Sea. Press dispatches, however, continue to mention the disturbances, although without giving details of additional importance.

A dispatch to The London Times from Constantinople thinks the first reports possibly were exaggerated, but adds that disturbances undoubtedly are taking place.

Another dispatch to The London Times from Athens quotes official Greek reports of recent fighting between Greek troops and Turkish soldiers and Bulgarian irregulars. The dispatch says thirteen of the latter were captured during one fight and were executed. At Saloniki twenty-eight irregulars were killed in a fight. Several dozen prisoners there will be executed.

RUSSIA TO CREATE A TRADE MINISTRY

Foreign Commerce Monopoly and Other Bureaus to Be Merged in One Department.

ECONOMY THE CHIEF AIM

It is Expected by Lenin to Facilitate Genuine Trade Relations With Other Countries.

By WALTER DURANTY.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

MOSCOW, Nov. 29.—The Soviet Government is projecting important administrative reorganization which is likely to have a marked and favorable effect on the trade relations of Russia with the rest of the world.

The plan now under discussion provides for amalgamation of the Supreme Council on National Economy, the Foreign Trade Monopoly Bureau and the Bureau of Internal Trade into one office, which would then correspond to the Ministry of Commerce in other countries.

Details of the change are expected to be submitted for further discussion by the All-Russian Soviet Congress at the end of December and the scheme to go into effect—with such modification as later may be introduced—early in the coming year.

This step does not imply renunciation of principle by the Soviet Government or any decided abandonment of State control, but it means that Russian trade relations with foreigners will be simplified and the whole question be interpreted with a much greater degree of elasticity. Instead of pursuing the impossible task of trying to force all the foreign trade of reviving Russia through the bottleneck of a monopoly it is probable that a system will be adopted similar to that of France and England during the war, when it was necessary to obtain permits for the export or import of certain commodities.

These permits will be granted by the new Russian Ministry of Commerce, which will thus retain control without involving foreign business men in the labyrinth of red tape—not to speak of graft, as reluctantly admitted by Krassin, head of the Monopoly Bureau himself—which has paralyzed the many efforts hitherto.

From the foreign viewpoint this will be the first and greatest benefit of the coming reform. Within permits being granted to the applicants will be told just what tariffs, &c., it is necessary to pay, and instead of haggling for weeks with divers commissions they will be able to know immediately whether they can do business and on what terms.

On the Russian side are advantages equally great. First, there is now a fair chance that they will be enabled to re-establish satisfactory trade relations with European countries, which, owing precisely to the cumbersome and impracticable character of the Monopoly Bureau, they have failed to result from the conclusion of trade agreements.

Secondly, there will be a big reduction in expense by the amalgamation of the different services whose units in Russia and abroad now overlap considerably.

Thirdly, the reform is one more victory in the battle Lenin is fighting against the bureaucracy which he, at least, if not others, realizes may stifle New Russia as it ruined the old empire.

Over a year ago the Soviet Government set itself, under Lenin's impulsion, to reduce the number of State officials in Moscow, which then numbered some 243,000. Despite his illness, the authorities conducted a whirlwind campaign for a reduction of officials. While departments were swept away and the staffs allowed to remain were cut, every were, as it seemed, to the bon. But when the fuss and fury of the battle had died down twelve months later, and a census of State officials was again taken, the shocking fact was revealed that instead of 243,000 officials in Moscow, there were now 247,000. Like the Hydra of Greek legend, bureaucracy grew new heads faster than the old ones could be cut off.

That this projected change will be carried out there is little doubt. Krassin, himself a man of thorough integrity and ability, has fought a hard fight, but even those closest to him now admit that the day of monopoly in its present form is done. In reality it was a war measure appropriate to the acute period when the Soviet Government saw itself outlawed by the whole world, a measure of protection and of self-defense, but not a measure to promote friendly trade relations. That it is now doing so, they hoping is held to be proof to the world that the Soviet Government wants to admit foreigners to the Russian field on fair terms.

DUTCH TO CO-OPERATE ON NEW WAR RULES

Hughes's Invitation to Join in Hague Meeting on Dec. 10 Is Accepted.

By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

THE HAGUE, Nov. 30.—Secretary of State Hughes has sent a note to the Dutch Government inviting it to take part in the conference at the Peace Palace here Dec. 10, which the Government has accepted.

The conference at first included America, Great Britain, France, Italy and Japan, the initiative for it having been taken by the Washington conference on armament. The discussions will deal with the changes made necessary by new technical inventions in warfare not covered by international law.

It is understood that since submarine warfare and noxious gases have been excluded from the discussions, these will mainly be concerned with aeronautics and wireless communications.

DE KAY QUITS LAUSANNE.

Copyright, 1922, by The Chicago Tribune Co.

LAUSANNE, Nov. 30.—John W. De Kay left Lausanne tonight. It is reported that he is going to Lucerne. The reason for his departure is not to cause any prejudice of the interests he represents until his position in America is cleared up.

Major Bennett, Secretary to Mr. De Kay, stated that Will Hays, former Postmaster General, and Samuel Untermyer were to sail from New York Saturday to come here to push the claim of Mr. De Kay's syndicate of its rights in the Mosul fields. Mr. De Kay's leases, he said, had been obtained from seven Turkish Princes and six Princesses, who had royal blood rights in Mosul.

In an interview Mr. De Kay asserted that "persecution by the Standard Oil Company" was responsible for the reported extradition proceedings against him. He added:

"I am not guilty of embezzlement. The sole charge against me is based on technical indictments of me by a Grand Jury in 1913. These indictments have lain dormant for nearly ten years. Now, when I am fighting the Standard Oil to protect my interests in Mosul, this old affair is trumped up again.

"Before the war I incurred the enmity of the Wilson Administration by my activities in Mexico with Huerta. Then my brother and I offered $50,000,000 worth of paper in my Mexican National Packing Company with the Atlantic National Bank of Providence.

"At the time I had been in Mexico three years. After my return, it developed that the bank President, Edward Metcalf, had failed to submit the paper for the discount for approval to the bank's Directors, as the banking laws require. Without my knowledge, Metcalf got a term in prison, whose paper is discounted in such circumstances is liable equally with the officers of the offending bank.

"Mr. Metcalf got a term in prison. I, as head of the packing company, also was indicted. These indictments have been inactive all the years since, although they have always been hanging over me."

Ismet Pasha's secretary, Atif Bey, said tonight that Mr. DeKay had no concessions from Angora in Mosul field, but he was ignorant of what rights he might have obtained in Mesopotamia and Syria from the French and British Governments under mandates.

KEEP POWDER UNDER WATER

Copyright, 1922, by The Chicago Tribune Co.

PARIS, Nov. 30.—The fact that huge stocks of gunpowder which France had on hand after the armistice had been placed at the bottom of shallow lakes and ponds for safe keeping was revealed in discussions by the Chamber of Deputies on the army budget today.

So many explosions had occurred from spontaneous combustion, especially in the Summertime, that powder stocks had to be destroyed or a safer way of storing found. Every method was experimented, finding that the deterioration in powder was no greater when kept under water than in air. Deterioration in either case is about 10 per cent. annually.

Instead of being sunk in watertight boxes, several holes are bored in the boxes. The authorities used pools and lakes as powder depots throughout France.

Declines Costa Rica Presidency.

LABOR PRESSES LAW ON UNEMPLOYMENT

CABINET HAS NO REMEDIES

Shows No Program Further Than a Study of the Previous Government's Plans.

LONDON, Nov. 30 (Associated Press).—Having disposed of the Irish legislation, the House of Commons today addressed itself to the routine business of debate on the reply to the Speech from the Throne.

John Robert Clynes, former Parliamentary Labor leader, in moving an amendment to the address, raised the question of unemployment, which, outside the foreign policy, is the biggest problem facing the new Government.

Mr. Clynes's criticism of the Government followed the familiar lines of a general attack on the foreign policy as being largely responsible for the poor commercial and industrial situation. He declared that what the unemployed wanted was work, not doles, and that the greatest opportunity would be found in an adequate housing scheme.

On the question of unemployment insurance he warned the Government against being tempted into the direction of insurance by the separate industries, contending that insurance of the workingmen was a national obligation. This warning was prompted by rumors that the Government was contemplating some such scheme.

The debate showed that the Government had no new remedies to put forward and that it relies mainly on the proposals of the previous Government, which include the building and improving of roads and similar public services, as well as inducing the railway companies to hasten work upon contemplated extensions as the best means of absorbing a large amount of unskilled labor.

In one of these projects, however, was any Government assistance forthcoming. Twenty-four hours before in the latter direction mentioned by the Minister of Labor, Sir Montague Barlow, was a proposal to renew the existing Trade Facilities act for twelve months and to increase the maximum under that act from £50,000,000, which is about double the existing amount of guarantees. He also mentioned a similar extension of facilities under the existing export credits scheme.

The Labor Minister expatiated upon the success already attained by guaranteeing the capital issues of about 200 schemes under the Trade Facilities act, and said he hoped much from its extension. The Government had reappointed the Cabinet Committee on Unemployment and would keep the question under close attention, bringing up fresh proposals as they became necessary.

He admitted that the question of unemployment insurance by industries was a complex one, and said the Government had taken steps for a full examination of the matter.

Millions to Aid Employment.

Copyright, 1922, by The Chicago Tribune Co.

LONDON, Nov. 30.—The Government's plans for alleviating the unemployment distress during the Winter was unfolded in the House of Common tonight by the Minister of Labor, Sir Montague Barlow.

The plan includes laying a twenty-seven-mile arterial road from Liverpool to Manchester, which would give employment to 20,000 men for many months, at a cost of £9,000,000. It also includes an additional £1,500,000 to help local authorities in hurrying along relief schemes. Other proposals for stimulating general trade development include Post Office extensions, agricultural projects and additional railroad schemes.

Sir Montague recalled that in the last two years the country had spent, including £30,000,000 State contribution, a total of £105,000,000 in efforts to deal with the unemployment problem.

The details of the Government's unemployment proposals includes £7,000,000 for roads, plus £10,000,000 from the road Fund; £12,000,000 more from the Unemployment Grants Committee; £150,000 for twenty-six weeks' work for 6,000 men in agricultural areas; £1,000,000 for Post Office schemes and £1,365,000 for various works.

The Trade Facilities act fund has been doubled to £50,000,000. For export credits £26,000,000 is available, to be increased if necessary. A new special period of twenty-two weeks for insurance benefit, to cost £35,000,000 and a further loan to the Board of Guardians will be made.

BRITISH TRIBUTE TO US.

Lord Shaw Urges Americans "to Be Proud of Your Country."

LONDON, Nov. 30 (Associated Press).—After a dinner of turkey and pumpkin pie at the annual Thanksgiving function of the American Society in London, Baron Shaw of Dunfermline and John Drinkwater, the poet, vied in paying tribute to American personalities and the lessons to be obtained from American history.

"Be proud of your country," said Baron Shaw, who has just returned from a 14,000-mile trip through the United States. "Be proud of its grandeur, its beauty, and most of all, its unity—from Canada to the Gulf of Mexico, from the Atlantic to the Pacific—unity which Europe, with her quarrels and wrangling and racial and national antagonisms cannot appreciate. It is your heritage. Protect and preserve it."

Mr. Drinkwater said American history already had assumed epic significance throughout the world. The spirit of Lincoln and Lee must direct and inspire future statesmanship. It was not a question whether Lincoln or Lee was right or wrong, "but the conviction which each displayed, that is our lesson."

NEW 'DIAL' PHONES TO START TOMORROW

Exchange, Which is to Be Known as 'Academy,' Will Carry 4,000 Lines.

At midnight tomorrow night the New York Telephone Company will place in service New York City's second machine switching telephone central. It will be known as "Academy" and will be located at 193 Manhattan Avenue. About 4,000 telephone lines now served by the Academy manual central office will be transferred to the new machine switching apparatus. Academy serves the district between 102d Street and 110th Street, west from Central Park to the Hudson River.

The first apparatus of the machine switching type to serve New York City subscribers was placed in operation in Pennsylvania central office district last October. At that time 1,800 lines were transferred to the new office and since then 1,200 more have been cut over to the Pennsylvania machine switching apparatus. A transfer of about 1,200 more lines is planned for this month.

The telephone company announces that the success of the installation has been gratifying. Several other machine switching central offices will be placed in operation in the city during the next twelve months.

In the "Walker" central office the company has begun to replace the manual instruments with the "dial" instrument. "Walker" will be the third central office in Manhattan to be thus equipped.

PLEAS FOR BULGARS FAIL.

Demand for Execution of 24 Ex-Ministers is Feared.

SOFIA, Bulgaria, Nov. 30 (Associated Press).—The summary execution of former members of the Greek Cabinet caused a sensation here, where twenty-four former Government Ministers are awaiting sentence or trial under similar charges.

Eleven of the prisoners were members of the Radoslavoff Cabinet, which brought Bulgaria into the war on the side of Germany, and the other thirteen belonged to previous Ministries, charged with responsibility for Bulgaria's participation in Balkan wars. It is feared that the Radical Agrarians will demand the death penalty.

The American and allied Ministers in Sofia have appealed to the Government not only for the release of the members of the Gueshoff, Malinoff and Todoroff Cabinets, which included four graduates of the American College in Constantinople. These men were charged with "having been insufficient diplomatic preparations for the war of 1912."

Under the plebiscite of Nov. 10 last the Bulgarian people voted to have them tried by a special court consisting of war-wounded and widows, for which interceded in their behalf, but the Government ignored his appeal.

It is believed that Great Britain and other powers will sever diplomatic relations with Bulgaria if the former officials are executed.

TENSION IN INDIA RELAXED.

Copyright, 1922, by The Chicago Tribune Co.

LONDON, Nov. 30.—The tension in India has considerably relaxed, according to authoritative dispatches received in London in the last few days. At present almost a complete lull exists in both the internal and external situation. This is the result of the dying down of the early Moslem excitement over the Turkish Nationalist victory over the Greeks and later the dethronement of the Sultan, and also the fact that the three great native organizations, including the Akali, have dwindled away following an amicable adjustment of the differences between the Akalis and Shrine proprietors, through a purchase of the disputed lands by benevolent millionaires, who permit the Akalis to invade the territory without hindrance. The native extremist parties are torn with internal conflict and they have no time or energy to direct an active campaign against the government.

Autumn crops are satisfactory, with prospects for a good spring crop, and the people as a result are more contented than they were a year ago.

OPPOSE CONFERENCE DELAY

Washington for Holding Pan-American Meeting on Time.

SANTIAGO, Chile, Nov. 30 (Associated Press).—It has been learned that the State Department at Washington has expressed the hope to the Chilean Foreign Office that there will be no delay or postponement in the opening of the Pan-American conference which is to be held in Santiago in March, and that the delegates from all the American countries will be present at the gathering.

The desire also was made known that the conference be held prior to the commencement of the arbitration proceedings on the Tacna-Arica question.

In certain diplomatic circles the belief is expressed that at the Santiago conference the boundary questions pending between different South American countries might be examined aside from the subjects on the agenda of the conference.

Exchange Fixed on Cross-Border Freights.

OTTAWA, Nov. 30.—The rate of exchange on shipments of freight between Canada and the United States from Dec. 1 to Dec. 14, inclusive, will be 1-32 of 1 per cent., it was announced officially today. No surcharge will be collected on international traffic.

BRITAIN AND ITALY GRANT FRENCH PLEA

POINCARE MUCH RELIEVED

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Nov. 30.—Acceptance by Mr. Bonar Law of Premier Poincaré's suggestion that he should go to London next week to discuss with other allied Ministers the basis for the program of the Brussels conference has greatly lightened the atmosphere in Paris.

It is no exaggeration to say that during the last few days the atmosphere has been tense. For the Poincaré Government settlement of the reparations problem and realization therefrom of definite advantages for France mean not only the accomplishment of all the Premier has ever hoped for but life itself to the Government and peace of mind to the country.

France is as tired of having to threaten Germany as Germany is of being threatened, and it is one of the Government's greatest problems to know how far it would have the support of the country should it be forced to attempt to carry out the program of occupation discussed at the Elysée last Monday.

It is admitted the whole operation could be carried out comparatively easy and almost before any one was aware it was taking place. But later there would most certainly be a storm from within the country as well as abroad and M. Poincaré is not the man to take easily a risk of that sort.

There was a certain element of bluff in the Elysée meeting, and immediately the bluff was called in the British Parliament, considerable haste was shown on this side of the channel in declaring that the Elysée meeting had "none of the significance attributed to it. But for France a settlement before the end of the year is a matter of the greatest urgency and the Government has this fact as an argument to strengthen its case, that the longer a settlement is delayed the more difficult and disastrous the situation becomes.

It is therefore still with the strong hope that it will obtain the consent of the Allies to the Brussels meeting, at least beginning in December, that M. Poincaré is going to London. He would have greatly preferred that the London interview should take place earlier than Dec. 9 or 10, the date now most likely, but he has had to accept the convenience of the British and Italian Governments.

In London he will press for summoning of the conference at Brussels as soon as the program can be satisfactorily arranged. It is not till Jan. 15 that any new payment can be demanded from Germany under the old schedule of payments and that date is taken here to be the last possible date for the settlement of a definite plan.

The interval from the probable date of the London meeting is not long, but whatever else his plans may be, and there is great secrecy about them, the French Premier is determined that no time shall be lost.

ROME, Nov. 30.—Premier Mussolini informed the Cabinet today that he plans to leave for London on Sunday to participate in the meeting of the allied Premiers preliminary to the Brussels financial conference, according to the Tribuna.

Canadian Revenue Grows.

OTTAWA, Ont., Nov. 30.—Customs and excise revenue for November exceeded that of November, 1921, by $6,741,733 with a total of $26,021,807. In the last eight months collections were $183,050,179, as against $154,253,302 in the corresponding period of 1921.

OUR RHINE TROOPS AR[illegible]

Again Have Rumor They Are [illegible] to Be Withdrawn.

COBLENZ, Nov. 30.—Notwithstanding the fact that no official information to the effect has been received here, rumor that the American troops on the Rhine are soon going home was again circulated today.

While anxiously awaiting definite news, the soldiers did not allow the anxiety to interfere with their celebration of Thanksgiving. Races, two football games and a boxing match, together with the usual holiday dinner, figured in the day's program.

Major Gen. Henry T. Allen in a Thanksgiving message urged the troops to work for "peace and harmony."

BERLIN, Nov. 30.—The American Government's decision to retain its forces on the Rhine, as reported here from Washington, has been received with undisguised pleasure. It is interpreted in some quarters as a merited rebuke to the plans of the French, alleged to have been formulated at a council of Ministers attended by Premier Millerand, Marshal Foch and Premier Poincaré.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 30 (Associated Press).—It was indicated informally in official circles today that there has been no change in the announced policy of leaving a small body of American troops on the Rhine for the present. No new orders had gone forward, it was asserted, and none were considered necessary. So far as known here no formal announcement on the subject has been made.

TURKS' EX-MINISTERS FEAR

Endangered Unless Allies Intervene in Their Behalf.

CONSTANTINOPLE, Nov. 30 (Associated Press).—News of the execution of former Greek Ministers in Athens has excited grave misgivings among the former members of the Sultan's Ministry, who are charged with high treason by the Nationalist Government at Angora. They express fears that they may suffer a similar fate when the Nationalists take over the city, unless the Allies intervene.

All the members of the Sultan's last Ministry are still in the capital, but a number of those who participated in previous Cabinets have left the country.

GREEKS TAKE STEPS TO ARRAIGN PRINCE

Britain May Intervene for King.

LONDON, Nov. 30.—The British are much disturbed over the further Greek arrests, indicating that the Greeks are still unrepentant for their barbarous execution recently of former Ministers. They are particularly worried by news that Prince Andrew is to be tried in a few days and that King George is now practically a prisoner.

It is impossible, of course, to secure any official statement of the plans in such an emergency, but I have reason to believe that an effort may be made to rescue these two at least if the necessity should arise.

PARIS, Nov. 30.—The arrest of Prince Andrew today has suddenly halted the plans of Prince Christopher and Princess Anastasia, formerly Mrs. William B. Leeds, to leave for America on the Olympic Dec. 6.

Prince Christopher, who is the youngest brother of former King Constantine and Prince Andrew, tonight sent urgent telegrams to all the royal families in Europe—even the Hohenzollern family, it is reported—asking their Governments to intervene at Athens immediately to save Prince Andrew. It is also feared that King George is in danger.

The visit of Prince Christopher to America, which would have been his first, seems indefinitely cancelled, and Princess Anastasia is remaining with him.

Venizelos Consults Curzon.

LAUSANNE, Nov. 30 (Associated Press).—The entire question of the Grecian executions, the withdrawal of the British Minister from Athens and the resultant effect of this on the relations between England and Greece at the conference was gone over tonight in a long consultation between M. Venizelos and Lord Curzon. The former took the initiative and motored to Lord Curzon's hotel at Ouchy.

M. Venizelos declined to make any comment, but the indications are that he is feeling greatly embarrassed in his relations toward the conference. Nevertheless, all the delegations, including even the English, are trying to prevent the Grecian tragedy from endangering the conference, which is regarded as too important to the general peace of Europe to be affected by a Grecian internal question, however much public opinion may be aroused in consequence of the extreme measures adopted by the revolutionary committee.

F. O. Lindley, the British Minister to Greece, who has withdrawn from Athens, is due here tomorrow to confer with Lord Curzon. Spokesmen for the British delegation here declare that the recall of Minister Lindley from Athens with his entire Embassy staff constitutes a break in diplomatic relations. The only British official left in the Greek capital is C. H. Bentinck, who, it is explained, remains as a member of the Financial Commission, not as a diplomat.

VATICAN TO SEND PROTEST.

Pope Also Orders Nuncio to Give Warning to Venizelos.

ROME, Nov. 30.—The Vatican is to make a direct protest to the Greek Government against the execution of former Ministers at Athens. Pope Pius has ordered the papal nuncio at Berne to make representations to M. Venizelos of the Greek delegation at Lausanne against further executions of former public officials in Greece.

Solemn funeral services are to be held here for the executed men. It is reported that former King Constantine will attend the ceremonies.

Mme. Coromilas, wife of a former Greek Minister to Italy, whose husband is an uncle of former Premier Stratos and General Hadjanestis, both of whom were executed, has sent an offer through the Greek Legation here to receive the widow and children of Stratos and a young orphan child of Hadjanestis. Her father was former Senator F. M. Cockrell of Missouri.

MUSSOLINI THREATENS BREAK.

Italian Minister Tried to Prevent Greek Executions.

ROME, Nov. 30 (Associated Press).—Addressing the Cabinet on his return from Lausanne, Premier Mussolini denied that he had taken no action regarding the executions at Athens. The Italian Minister there had done everything possible from the beginning of the trial to prevent the execution of the accused men and had made representations as long ago as Nov. 4, but while Italy and Great Britain had acted in one way, France had seen fit to act in another.

The British Minister, Mr. Lindley, speaking with the Italian representative, the Premier said, had recognized that the discordant attitude of the Allies would likely provoke a tragic end to the trial.

Immediately he had learned of the execution, Mussolini explained, he instructed the Italian representative not to recognize the new Greek Government and to watch the situation carefully. He reserved the right to recall the Minister if he thought fit.

CONSTANTINE MAY COME HERE.

Plans to Start Next April—Prostrated by Killings.

Copyright, 1922, by The Chicago Tribune Co.

ROME, Nov. 30.—Our special correspondent at Palermo informs us that former King Constantine was prostrated when he heard the news of the political crime in Athens. The former Queen went personally in an automobile to the newspaper offices to inquire about the latest news from Athens and reported it to the former King.

The tragic end of their best friends in Greece has upset the royal family's easy life in Palermo. The former King, Queen and their retinue occupy a whole wing in the Villa Igiea, which is considered one of the best hotels in Italy. Heretofore they had been living the life of private well-to-do people, taking part in social activities in the city. Automobiling, horseback riding and tennis were their chief occupations during the day. They passed most of the evenings at moving picture performances.

When he first arrived in Palermo former King Constantine seemed not to have much money, but since the recent visit of his brother, Prince Christopher, his financial condition is believed to have considerably improved. His intention seems never to bother with politics again. He is planning to remain in Palermo until April and then sail for America, where he will join Prince Christopher.

PAPOULAS LED IN CAMPAIGNS.

Dousmanis Vainly Tried to Stay Disaster to Greek Armies.

General Papoulas was in command of the Greek armies in the first two campaigns against the Nationalist Turks in Anatolia, the first in the Spring and early Summer of 1921 and the second in the Autumn.

In the first he advanced to within fifty miles of Angora and then retreated to the line east of Brusa through Eski-Shehr, Afium-Karahissar and Seid-Gazi. In the second he reached the Sakaria River, fought a great battle there and again retreated to practically the original line. The first retreat was necessary on account of lack of contact between his northern armies; the second, because the Turkish Cilician Army Corps, being released from the French front of Cilicia, was able to attack his right wing, while his main forces were on the Sakaria.

Last Spring he was superseded by General Tricoupis and joined the number of the discontented in Athens. Just before the abdication of Constantine he was said to have joined the revolution. He was one of the witnesses at the court-martial which resulted in the execution of five statesmen and one General last Tuesday.

General Dousmanis, with Colonel Metaxas, figured largely as the head of the Greek General Staff in the negotiations of the Entente with the Constantine Government in the World War until the King was made to leave his throne by the guaranteeing powers of 1830—Great Britain and France. He then went into retirement, but emerged at the time of the restoration in December, 1920, and served first as the head of the Greek military mission at Constantinople, and then succeeded Tricoupis in the field in a vain attempt to stay the disaster of last September. On the 30th of that month he was said to have been arrested.

SPEAKING OF The World

"Were I to choose the greatest newspaper in America to-day, my vote would go to The New York World.

"In this choice I should not be influenced by the liberal views of that paper, although I share most of them; nor by its unblemished post-war record, unique among our powerful dailies; nor by the fearless manner in which it has time and again exposed wrongs and wrongdoers, such as the profiteering landlords, the patriteers, the Ku Klux Klan, the Rosenbluth case, &c., &c. I should make this award primarily for one reason: The World's marvellous editorial staff—an all-star team of writers, wits, and artists such as has rarely been assembled under the aegis of a single paper.

"Does this sound exaggerated? Let us see. What other paper can boast of a masterful managing editor like Herbert Bayard Swope? an editorial writer like Frank I. Cobb? an artist like Gene Carr, the poet of the city's street children, whose drawings are rare blends of humor, pathos and delicate irony? a reporter and Rabelaisian wag like Joseph van Raalte, whose recent dissertation on a chocolate eclair might have been written by Charles Lamb himself? a profound student of politics and psychology like Walter Lippmann? a music critic and wit like Deems Taylor? a reviewer of books and plays, writer on sports and exquisite humorist rolled into one like Heywood Broun, the best loved man of letters in America today? an F. P. A., the king of 'columnists'?

"This does not exhaust the regular staff, nor does it take into account such distinguished special contributors as Francis Hackett, Charles Merz, Clare Sheridan and others; but enough has been given, I believe, to justify the choice."—Maximilian Hurwitz in the JEWISH TRIBUNE.

ALL BRITISH TROOPS LEAVING IRELAND

Last of Them Will Be Away by Jan. 5—De Valera Again Escapes.

DESTRUCTION PLOT SHOWN

By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

DUBLIN, Nov. 30.—British troops, of whom there are only a small number remaining here, will begin evacuation on Dec. 12 and will have departed within a few days from that date.

The only other part of the Free State territory where there are British troops is in the Pettigo-Belleek sector on the Ulster border. These troops are to be withdrawn on Jan. 5, and after that there will be no British soldiers in the Free State.

It is stated that in last Tuesday's raid on Count Plunkett's house, de Valera narrowly escaped capture. A mistake was made in the number of the house and a half-hour elapsed before the error was rectified. Information had been conveyed to the authorities that the much wanted fugitive was on the premises, but in the meantime, although substantial quantities of ammunition were found, the human quarry had disappeared.

Destruction Plot Revealed.

DUBLIN, Nov. 30 (Associated Press).—Dublin was quiet today, although rumors that there would be an early outbreak of violence persisted. Richard Mulcahy, the Minister of Defense, asked by the newspaper correspondents whether he could give the people any reassuring message regarding the ability of the National army to deal with any trouble, said he thought it best to say nothing. "Our most effective work always has been done with our mouths shut," the Minister declared.

Conflicts between Free State forces and irregulars continue of daily occurrence. A clash took place today at Chaffpool, near Tubbercurry, Sligo, where two Free Staters were killed from ambush.

Official army reports say that Free State troops raided Quaker Island and captured the leader of the irregulars, Matthew Davis, and a number of his followers.

Mary and Annie MacSwiney are said to be rapidly recovering from the effects of their recent hunger strikes.

It is announced that the Northern Parliament will meet on Dec. 5, instead of Dec. 12.

Defense Minister Mulcahy has informed the Dail Eireann of the capture from the irregulars of a document containing instructions from the Republican "Assistant Director of Engineering," ordering a "speeding up of all destruction plans" and outlining a scheme for the wholesale blocking of railways, roads and canals.

The plans provide that the stations shall be burned, lines torn up, roads blocked, bridges blown up and wires cut, this campaign to be continued for six weeks, during which it is intended that Dublin shall be isolated.

The Minister added: "The document continues by giving details regarding the way in which the demolition is to be accomplished, and says trains can be derailed in a number of ways, but care must be taken to avoid loss of life."

Constitution Advanced in the Lords.

LONDON, Nov. 30 (Associated Press).—The House of Lords this evening unanimously adopted the second reading of the Irish Constitution bill.

The same comparative apathy attended the discussion of the Irish Constitution in the House of Lords as was exhibited in the House of Commons. The bill passed the second reading without division by the slenderly attended House.

The Duke of Devonshire, in moving the second reading, said he might almost regard it as his hereditary duty to propose the rejection of home rule bills. He now, however, found himself in the strange position of being the minister responsible for moving the second reading of a bill to confer a constitution on the Irish Free State. But in the circumstances of today it would be impossible for any government, however, it might be composed, to take any other course than that he now was recommending to the Lords. Moreover, it not only would be useless but dangerous to go into past history and revive old memories. Under these circumstances the only question was whether the constitution accorded with the treaty, and on this question the law officers of the crown agreed it did.

Lord Midleton and other Peers opposing the Irish settlement declared they could not support the bill, but said they would not ask the Lords to reject it. After a brief debate both bills passed the second reading without division. The Lords immediately adjourned, and the expectation was that the third reading of the measure would take place tomorrow.

DE VALERA IS REPORTED TRYING TO RETURN HERE

London Hears That He Is With Rebels in Louth, Watching for a Chance to Escape.

LONDON, Nov. 30 (Associated Press).—Eamon de Valera is reported to be attempting to leave Ireland for America, says a dispatch from the Belfast correspondent of The Evening News.

The republican leader is said to be hiding in the Carlingford Mountains, overlooking Greenore, County Louth, from which there is daily boat service to Holyhead. It is understood, says the correspondent, that a large force of rebels has been concentrated in northern County Louth, and will shortly attack, thus diverting the attention of the Free State authorities and allowing de Valera to slip out of Greenore.

To Invite Ireland to Imperial Parley.

LONDON, Nov. 30.—The Irish Free State will be invited to representation in the next Imperial Conference, which the Government hopes to convene next year, Prime Minister Bonar Law told a questioner in the House of Commons today.

BEER REPLACES LIQUOR AS CANADIAN BEVERAGE

Less Hard Stuff Was Consumed Last Year Than Ever Before—Prices Drop.

OTTAWA, Nov. 30.—Less liquor was consumed in Canada per head last year than during any previous year since records have been kept, but consumption of beer increased over last year, according to the annual report today of the Department of Customs and Excise.

Per capita consumption of liquor was .86 gallons, as compared with .86 gallons for 1921 and 1.99 gallons for 1874. Consumption of beer was 4.37 gallons, an increase over last year, while consumption of wine was .087 gallons, less than half of last year's average.

MONTREAL, Nov. 30.—Reductions of from 5 to 50 cents a bottle in the price of 119 brands of wines and liquors were announced today.

The new prices are lower than the prevailing prices in the countries of their origin, because of foreign exchange rates, and also lower than prices in effect before the advent of Government monopoly, low net profit and low operating expenses.

IN the early days of Dutch New York, there were, on the East Side, several large outlying farms or Bouweries. A country road led from the village to these farms. This was called the Bouwerie Lane. Under English rule, it became The Bowery Road, and in 1807, a street, the Bowery.

One of the oldest and greatest Institutions of New York was founded on the Bowery, in the populous district where, one hundred years ago, there were shipyards, machine shops and an extensive population of working people.

In 1834 some of the most prominent and benevolent citizens, without pay or privilege, founded this Institution, which has grown to be a fortress of Utmost Safety, for the Savings of the people.

Conceived in the rarest spirit of usefulness, it has grown from small beginnings until it is one of the great pillars of our City's pride.

DARK-HUED DEPUTY LOSES PLEA FOR SIKI

French Chamber Votes Down Motion to Cut Sport Allowance in Reprisal.

HE WINS SOME SYMPATHY

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Nov. 30.—Before the Chamber of Deputies this afternoon Deputy Diagne, battling Siki's fellow-countryman from Senegal, made his protest against disqualification of the black fighter and his deprivation by the Boxing Federation of the title of champion. The Deputy's motion to reduce appropriations for the encouragement of sport, which he used as a peg to hang his speech on, was defeated by a large majority, but he himself had no little success and there is no doubt that he has helped greatly the cause of his countryman.

He had not gone to the Tribune in order to make an incident, Diagne declared, but in the national interest and in the true interest of sport. Neither did he treat the subject as a race question—that would be beneath his dignity. He was there to protest against the spirit of partiality which had been shown in certain sporting organizations. He was out for clean sport.

To a strong accompaniment of cheers M. Diagne roundly denounced the idolatry of the public for all boxing champions, white or black, and in bitter sarcasm he added:

"So much is that the case that if Carpentier had not been beaten, there are many who would have demanded the cross of the Legion of Honor for this champion of fisticuffs."

Right from the start the speaker declared that an attempt had been made to deprive Siki of his rights. The referee did not want to give him the decision, and ever since a campaign has been going on against him. He was accused of having celebrated his victory too freely in the cafes of the city.

Blames White Civilization.

"That means nothing more than that he has too quickly become accustomed to the habits of your civilization," said the black Deputy. "When the white man does it nobody protests."

Siki was accused of scandalous behaviour and of having struck the referee in a boxing match, the speaker went on. "Is that sufficient ground to take from him not only his title but the means of livelihood of a man 23 years old?" his defender said, adding:

"These men, who are as French as you are, though they are of different color, have a right to the same justice as you. When Siki was asked to make a profitable tour in Germany, he remembered that he was still a Frenchman and refused. That showed his real character." Diagne continued, and the speaker warned his colleagues against stirring up in French Africa the idea that there was a different sort of justice in France for white and black, when both had fought gallantly to defend the nation. The decision of the Boxing Federation, Diagne declared, would have grave consequences among the black masses of Africa.

In spite of this warning the Chamber refused the invitation of the Minister of War to serve as a tribune of appeal against the Boxing Federation, and Diagne's motion was defeated, 408 to 164.

To the discussion of Siki's case in the press, learned pens today have added the weight of their opinions. In this country, where color prejudice scarcely exists, judgment is almost entirely confined to the merits of the case, and if Siki's color has any influence it is rather in favor of than against him. The ordinary man in the street excuses him with the remark that if he were not black he would not have got himself into such a mess by his fool behavior, or, alternatively, if he were not black he would not have been treated so arbitrarily.

Some Notable Defenders.

The color question being thus disclosed, the debate has resolved into a discussion as to whether the Boxing Federation has the right to exclude the champion and take his title from him for reasons of private conduct.

Among many whose opinions have been sought in interviews is Mlle Suzanne Lenglen, who has delivered this judgment:

"I am very strongly of the opinion that a champion should never be deprived of his title because of conduct not affecting the sport of which he is champion."

At the same time Mlle. Lenglen thinks that a champion ought to behave in his private life in such a way as to prove himself worthy of the public applause he has gained by his prowess.

Lucien Gaudin, French fencing champion, holds a different opinion. He says that a championship title may, in his opinion, be taken away from the holder for reasons not connected with sport, but that these reasons must be very grave indeed. If these reasons are definitely proved, then the champion should be banished from the company of sportsmen and his title should be open to all comers to contest for.

Even in the columns of the Temps Siki today finds a defender in the person of Paul Souday, one of the most elegant writers of the French press. On the question of principle, says Souday, it seems to him that Siki and his defender in the Chamber of Deputies have a good deal of right on their side. Even the argument that Siki's conduct was doing injury to the fair fame of boxing as a sport does not move him.

Whether Siki has or has not done the things he is accused of, says this writer, it is incontestable that he did knock out Georges Carpentier. What could any good conduct certificate add to the power of the muscles he showed then, or to the hardness of the head that took so much punishment? Such a point of view as that of the federation is really rather strange and rather unsporting. What would be said if, on the race track, the judges disqualified the horse which was first past the post because it had once kicked its stable companion or had put out its tongue when passing the house of a rival trainer?"

POLICEMAN SAVES TWENTY.

Rescues Negroes at Fire, but Falls Down Stairs and is Injured.

Policeman Thomas McCormick, although off duty, saved the lives of about twenty negroes early yesterday morning at a fire in the rooming house at 156 Duffield Street, Brooklyn, but is in the Cumberland Street Hospital suffering from possible concussion of the brain, as a result of a fall down stairs. He was arousing the sleeping negroes, it was said at the hospital last night, that although painfully injured he would recover.

Jose Pancho, a laborer, who occupied rooms in the house and who was burned and suffocated from smoke, was also in the Cumberland Street Hospital last night.

McCormick was passing the house in an automobile when he saw the smoke. He went inside and succeeded in arousing all the negroes while none else turned in an alarm and helped the frightened tenants to get to the street.

Fire Causes Pittsburgh Movie Panic.

PITTSBURGH, Nov. 30.—Several hundred persons who made up the holiday audience in the Fuad Theatre, a moving picture house, this afternoon fled in panic when fire broke out near the operator's booth. Police said that none of the audience was injured, although five firemen were overcome by smoke and sent to hospitals.

WHITE ARMY WANDERING.

Vladivostok Refugees May Go to Australia as Settlers.

Copyright, 1922, by The Chicago Tribune Co.
TOKIO, Nov. 30.—Much mystery surrounds the plans of the remnant of the Russian White Army which arrived at Fusan, Korea, a few days ago aboard eight Russian warships. The group consists of 1,700 naval officers and men, 300 military cadets and 500 women and children. Korean reports give Cochin, China, as their destination, with a possibility of their going to Manila and remaining there until final arrangements are made.

Admiral Stark, who is commanding the party, suggests that the Whites may go to Australia as settlers.

The Japanese are providing the White refugee fleet at Fusan, Korea, with supplies which will enable them to leave shortly for an unannounced destination. The Whites' next stop probably will be at Shanghai.

There are several thousand women, children and wounded who will remain at Gensan, being cared for by the Korean Government until their destination is settled. The majority refuse to consider returning to Vladivostok.

The plight of the Whites is due to Chang Tso-lin, who agreed to permit the White army to enter Mongolia via Manchuria. The Whites have been delivering arms to General Chang for some months with the understanding that they would be rearmed after they crossed the border and were assisted in entering Kompolis, where Generals Semenoff and Dieterich were awaiting them.

General Chang secured great quantities of supplies, guns, airplanes, rifles and munitions, and then he betrayed the Whites, issuing orders that no more were to be permitted to enter Manchuria, leaving the armless army stranded.

VIENNA STUDENTS BAR JEWS

Pickets Prevent Their Return to the State University.

VIENNA, Nov. 30 (Associated Press).—Orders for the resumption of lectures in the State University, which were suspended last Monday because of an anti-Semitic demonstration by the students, were issued today. When the Jewish students arrived, however, they found pickets either barring the entrance to the universities or demanding baptismal certificates.

The incident has assumed a political aspect and the Freie Presse warns the Government that this is no time for anti-Semitism, when the non-Aryan bankers are being called upon to meet the impending loan.

Students at Innsbruck held a demonstration today demanding control of the matriculation of Jews.

Attorney Tries to Show Husband Walked After Fatal Shot.

NORWICH, N. Y., Nov. 30.—Expert testimony occupied today the trial of Mrs. Frances Collins, charged with fatally shooting her husband, Nicholas. The prosecution is expected to rest tomorrow. Dr. Carl Meachem of Greene, who assisted in the autopsy, was examined by David Lee, attorney for the defense, regarding the course of the bullet in Collins's body. Questions asked by the attorney were taken to indicate that he was attempting to show that Collins, after being shot, could walk about the house and grounds and then lie down and die.

The defense contends that Collins was shot inside the house and walked more than thirty feet before falling dead outside the kitchen door. The prosecution has attempted to show that Collins was shot while prostrate on the ground.

SOUGHT EXPLOSION CLUES.

Detective Returns From Trip Abroad on Wall Street Case.

Detective Sergeant Clinton Wood of the Industrial squad of the Police Department returned yesterday on the steamer Lithuania of the Baltic American Line, after several months' stay in Russia, Poland and other countries, following clues in connection with the Wall Street explosion. The returning officer refused to give any information about the result of his trip, but will make his report direct to his superiors and the Department of Justice.

This is Sergeant Wood's second trip to Europe in connection with the explosion case. He was assigned to the Department of Justice early in May and was sent to Warsaw as a special agent to try to discover whether Wolf Lichtenfield, who was held by the police of that city, had any information regarding the perpetration of the Wall Street disaster. He returned in July, but left again on a second trip.

ACT TO END POTTERS' STRIKE

New Jersey Union Authorizes Committee to Make Settlement.

TRENTON, N. J., Nov. 30.—What is regarded as a definite move toward settlement of the nation-wide operative potters' strike was decided upon here by Local No. 48, of the National Brotherhood of Operative Potters, which has adopted a resolution authorizing the appointment of a conference committee in whose hands is placed arbitrary power to negotiate a satisfactory wage agreement with employers.

As decided upon, the resolution urges other pottery locals throughout the United States to take similar action.

Pennsylvania Levy, Recently Upheld, Will Total $6,643,881.

A tax of 12.2 cents a ton on domestic anthracite coal will result from the Pennsylvania Tonnage Tax law, recently upheld by the United States Supreme Court, according to a computation made by the General Committee of Anthracite Operators. The law was enacted by the Pennsylvania Legislature in May, 1921.

"Based on the value of anthracite production in 1921, namely $447,924,044, this tax would amount to $6,643,881," says a statement of the operators. "The unanimous decision of the Supreme Court overrules the contention advanced in a suit brought on behalf of the States of New York, New Jersey, Massachusetts, Maine, New Hampshire, Vermont, Rhode Island, Connecticut and Delaware, that the tonnage tax would be unfair to the consuming public."

Abandon Piggly-Wiggly Stock Issue

Special to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

CHICAGO, Nov. 30.—There will be no immediate offering of new stock by the Piggly-Wiggly Stores, Inc., to stockholders. After two weeks of sharp fluctuations and unusually heavy trading in the shares both on the New York and Chicago Stock Exchanges, President Clarence Saunders announced today that the Directors had abandoned their plans for increasing the authorized Class A issue from 200,000 to 300,000 shares and offering the additional stock to the stockholders at $42 a share.

STRAUS WANTS US TO JOIN THE LEAGUE

Ex-Ambassador Thinks America Can Ameliorate Turkish and Other Problems.

PRAISE FOR CLEMENCEAU

Doubts if History Furnishes More Inspiring Example Than War Premier's Mission.

Special to The New York Times.

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., Nov. 30.—Oscar S. Straus, former United States Ambassador to Turkey, said in an interview here today that the United States should become an associate member of the League of Nations in line with the idea of President Harding, expressed in his campaign for the Presidency. He believes that the United States can ameliorate the Turkish situation and other international problems by her moral and economic influence.

"Unity among the Allies, including America, is the only remedy for the present disturbed conditions of the world," he declared. "Disunion has caused the troubles in Greece and is causing the trouble regarding Turkey. Turkey has profited for 400 years by the jealousies and enmities of the European powers and this has kept the world either in war or within the shadow of war during four centuries with a few intermissions."

Mr. Straus said that he was not an enemy of Turkey, "as evidenced by my attitude during my three missions there, beginning with 1888 and ending in 1909." Turkey, he said, while sinning much had been sinned against, and he declared that the Kemalist Government of Turkey had elements of strength and enlightenment.

Of the visit to the United States of Georges Clemenceau Mr. Straus said: "I am glad the American people appreciate the nobility of service the great Clemenceau is rendering in appealing to the conscience of America and of the world. I doubt whether history furnishes another example more noble and inspiring than this greatest and foremost leader in the World War under whose appeal the allied nations pooled their strength finally and won."

2,000 FLEE FROM RAIDERS.

Arkansas "Undesirables" Threaten to Return for Revenge.

MONROE, La., Nov. 30.—Many of the 2,000 alleged "undesirables" who fled from the Smackover oil fields following raids by "vigilantes" are congregating in Union County and at El Dorado, threatening to return for revenge, according to a dispatch received by The News Star from a correspondent at El Dorado.

However, Ouachita County authorities have given assurances that there will be no further disturbances. Sheriff Harper at Camden, Ark., said today the man killed Tuesday night was J. G. Woods, who was riddled with bullets when he refused to halt. A resort operated by "Slim" Sanders was raided and the building torn down. Sanders had previously been warned to leave and he was not found.

Sheriff Harper said the 2,000 included 400 who were on the payrolls of the various oil companies. He did not think the Ku Klux Klan was responsible for the raids, but that the better element of oil field workers who resented the recent series of murders and robberies conducted the raids.

CAMDEN, Ark., Nov. 30.—More than 1,000 alleged undesirable citizens have left the South Ouachita County oil field since Tuesday night's "clean up" by "vigilantes," according to information received by authorities here. The exodus continued today, nearly 100 men and women from the oil fields coming here to take trains.

No arrests have been made as the result of the killing of "John Few Clothes," also known in the oil fields as E. J. Wood and "Fenrose." He was shot as he was leaving the resort of which he was one of the proprietors. His partner, "Slim" Sanders, was reported to have been tarred and feathered, but denied the report as he made his departure today.

The Coroner's Jury which investigated the death returned a verdict that "Few Clothes" came to his death at "the hands of parties unknown."

27 BLOOD TRANSFUSIONS FAIL

Special to The New York Times.

SOUTHAMPTON, N. Y., Nov. 30.—Twenty-seven blood transfusions, administered during the last two years, failed to save the life of Mrs. Adelaide E. Jones of Shelter Island, who died in Southampton Hospital yesterday of pernicious anemia. Mrs. Jones was 57 years old.

Mrs. Jones was brought from Shelter Island, which is about fifteen miles from here, on Tuesday. Dr. Irvine J. Russell, her physician, who accompanied her told of twenty-six transfusions and another treatment of the same kind was administered Wednesday, just before she died.

Mrs. Jones' nearest relative is a sister, Mrs. Casper, who lives in New York City.

Commander Has a Combination of Bronchitis and Pleurisy.

CHICAGO, Nov. 30.—Commander Evangeline Booth of the Salvation Army, who has been confined to her bed two days, today had a rising temperature and her physician diagnosed her illness as a combination of bronchitis and pleurisy.

Writ Halts Prisoner's Departure.

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., Nov. 30.—Detective James Fairly of Atlantic City today reported to the prosecutor that he had been halted at the Pennsylvania Station, New York City, when he was about to start for Atlantic City with James McCarthy, arrested on a charge of conspiracy to defraud Robert Haney of Philadelphia, by attorneys for McCarthy, who produced a writ of habeas corpus. The writ will be returned in the Supreme Court next Wednesday, at which time representatives of Atlantic City will be present.

Speeder is Jailed for Sixty Days.

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 30.—What is said to be the most severe sentence ever given in a police court here for reckless driving has been handed out by Judge S. T. McAtee in sentencing Robert F. Boyle, an electrical dealer, to sixty days in the County Jail. "I am determined to stop reckless driving in San Francisco," said Judge McAtee. "There have been too many deaths and too many injuries recently."

NEGRO SHOT DOWN IN RUNNING FIGHT

NIGHTSTICKS SUBDUE HIM

Man Who Attacked Wife Taken to Hospital — Wound in Back May Be Fatal.

Frederick Jones, a negro, of 2,[illegible] Seventh Avenue, was shot and probably fatally wounded yesterday in a running pistol battle with three policemen in which more than forty shots were exchanged. Persons in the vicinity hurriedly sought shelter as the negro opened fire on Patrolmen W. H. Cannon of the West 135th Street Station, who attempted to arrest the man for assaulting his wife.

The policeman and the negro kept up a running battle until they reached 142d Street and Eighth Avenue, where Jones took shelter behind the stoop of a house. As the officer advanced a bullet passed through his left shoe, but did not touch the foot. When Patrolmen William Franklin and Thomas Quilty joined Cannon the negro started to run, dodging behind the pillars of the elevated railroad in Eighth Avenue and firing as he ran. At 144th Street Jones fell with a bullet in his back, and Franklin rushed forward and kicked the pistol out of his hand. The negro then fought with his fists and feet, and the officers had to subdue him with their night sticks. He was taken to the Harlem Hospital.

Detective A. Trezza of the Homicide Squad, said that during the quarrel Jones struck his wife with a pistol and fired one shot at her. The detective said the bullet missed her head and that her screams brought neighbors to the scene. Jones then rushed out waving his gun and the fight with the police followed.

The woman was not badly hurt. Jones is under arrest on a charge of felonious assault.

EXPLORER TO LECTURE ON RUINS OF CARTHAGE

Count de Prorok, Who Headed French Archeological Party, Possesses Many Historic Relics.

Count Byron Khun de Prorok, the archeologist, author and artist who was placed in charge of the expedition organized by the French Government two years ago to explore the ruins of ancient Carthage, will give his first lecture here at 3:30 P. M. today in the Museum of French Art, 599 Fifth Avenue. He will exhibit the relics recovered from the ruins of the buildings destroyed by the Romans when the order was given to raze the stronghold to the ground, and he will also project the first archeological film ever seen.

The collection includes gold coins of many periods, iridescent tear flasks, silverware, bracelets and other jewelry worn by the Carthaginians, a fine collection of lamps, an arsenal containing slingshots of stone and lead, and bones of persons who were sacrificed in the temples.

Evidence was found by the expedition during the excavation on the site of Carthage, which is about four miles from the city of Tunis North, that Carthage was first settled by the Phoenicians in prehistoric times and that the legend of Queen Dido being its founder is probably mythical. Among other discoveries were the famous baths of Gargilius, the tombs of Hannibal's family and large quantities of elephants' teeth, these animals having been extensively employed in Hannibal's army.

A bag containing a number of these valuable Carthaginian relics was stolen from him while traveling on a New York Central Railroad train to Albany a month ago and was recovered by the company's detectives, who found it thrown into a ditch near the track. The relics were intact except a few coins which had probably been taken to melt down. Count de Prorok will deliver a series of lectures in the United States.

GIVES BRITISH DEBT FIGURES

Baldwin Says $132,000,000 Has Been Paid to Us Since April.

LONDON, Nov. 30.—Replying to a question in the House of Commons today, the Chancellor of the Exchequer, Stanley Baldwin, gave the particulars as to the amount owed by Great Britain to the United States and stated that since last April, $30,500,000 of the principal of the debt had been repaid, in addition to $101,500,000, mainly for interest.

He added that it remained to be settled whether any part of the $[illegible],000,000 paid on Nov. 15 was to be regarded as applying on the principal.

CLEMENCEAU MOVED AT TOMB OF LINCOLN

Lincoln left to go to Washington for his inauguration. Ten minutes were spent in the old two-story frame house, and the numerous relics were explained to Clemenceau by Mrs. Mary Brown, the custodian, whose grandmother was a sister of Lincoln's wife. From the Lincoln home the party proceeded to the tomb.

To Baltimore for Terrapin.

On the train between Chicago and Springfield this morning it was Former Clemenceau, the son of a Breton landowner, who looked out of his car window at the fertile Illinois soil. He spoke of his desire to take back with him a special variety of seed potatoes that he hopes may flourish in the poverty-stricken soil behind the sand dunes at his Vendee seaside home. This is one of the inducements that is being held out to him for a return to Chicago on Dec. 11 to speak before the American Farm Bureau Federation, which expects and more immediate interest is the realization that this organization in effect represents some 12,000,000 Americans, who thus far he has not reached directly in his addresses in the industrial and commercial cities of New York, Boston and Chicago.

Also the Tiger confessed, this morning, that one of his reasons for going to Baltimore next week is to study the habitat of the terrapin with the view to introducing this Chesapeake Bay delicacy to France. The Tiger, smoking his cigar, said he was much pleased this morning to learn of the impression in this country that his sole diet consisted of onion soup, hard-boiled eggs and Gruyere cheese. He was much merrily amused this morning when read in a Chicago paper that at one meal he had consumed eight hard-boiled eggs. "I never ate them," he announced. "Hereafter I shall increase my allowance of eggs diet by two eggs for each city visited. That makes three eggs for my return to New York. I shall be consuming fourteen eggs each meal."

After his visit at Lincoln's tomb the party left for St. Louis. At Rockford the car was sidetracked for the night, and it will be attached to a morning train that will take him into St. Louis tomorrow morning. There he will deliver one major address on Saturday afternoon, leaving for Baltimore that night. While in St. Louis he will be the guest of Joseph Pulitzer, publisher of The St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

According to the present schedule, Clemenceau will reach Baltimore Monday morning, and after a speech there is due to arrive in Washington that afternoon. Thus far his engagements during his four days in Washington will be calls upon President Harding, Secretary Hughes and former President Wilson, with an address before the Army War College and the American Chautauqua Association. His Washington host will be Henry White, former Ambassador to Germany and member of the American Peace Commission at Paris.

SAYS HE TRANSPLANTS HEADS OF INSECTS

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Nov. 30.—Walter Finkler, the Viennese biologist, has succeeded in transplanting the heads of insects. Before the Academy of Vienna yesterday he gave an account of his operation and the results, about which the Matin's scientific editor says "if true it means a real revolution in the science of physiology and biology."

The Matin adds:

"This discovery is so astonishing that before discussing it we must make all possible reserves.

"Finkler took a series of insects—butterflies and caterpillars—and with fine scissors cut their heads off. He then immediately grafted these heads onto which a male head had been, they originally belonged. After a few weeks the insects operated on began to recover, but to the intense surprise of the professor the newly formed insects began in every case to assume the characteristics of the heads which had been grafted on to them.

"Not only did the insects lose their original color and took the color of the insect whose head they were wearing. A female insect on to which a male head had been grafted became a male.

"Not only did the professor succeed in changing the heads of insects and larvae of the same species, but he grafted the heads of one species on to another, an operation hitherto considered quite impossible."

DECRIES ATHLETIC TREND.

Tending to Predominate in Schools and Colleges, Says Dr. Broome.

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 30.—Athletics, when raised to such importance that they predominate over scholastic endeavor in colleges and secondary schools, are opposed by Dr. Edwin C. Broome, Superintendent of Public Schools here.

"We have gone to the extreme limit in developing the intercollege and interschool athletics in the country," said Dr. Broome. "There is a danger of diverting the public mind from the real purpose for which higher institutions of learning are established. Athletics are useful to the extent to which they contribute toward these ends and are harmful to the extent to which they detract from the accomplishment of them. There is a serious danger of over-commercializing athletics and of making them an end in themselves.

"Enormous gate receipts, ticket speculation, professional coaches who are paid two or three times as much as the highest paid college professor or the offering of substantial inducements to promising young athletes to attend a particular institution are practices which are bringing reproach upon and will ultimately discredit entirely intercollegiate athletics as we now understand them.

"In secondary schools we should have plenty of exercise in the open air; opportunities for every student to participate in competitive games and more attention to inter-class and inter-group contests within the same school. The tendency then should be toward the extension of competitive games so that everybody can take part, rather than toward the further development of interscholastic contests in which a few play and the rest cheer."

ITALO-CROAT-MAGYAR PLOT.

Alliance Said to Have Been Formed by Fascisti Organizations.

BELGRADE, Nov. 30 (Associated Press).—The existence of what appears to be an agreement between the Frankish-Croatian Independence Party and the Italian and Magyar Fascists to establish and guarantee the independence of Croatia in exchange for the satisfaction of Italian claims in Dalmatia is revealed by a document published here today by the newspaper Vreme.

The document is signed by Colonel Eighi, representing the d'Annunzio Italian Fascisti, and Deputy Amadeo Grandi Frank, President of the Croat committee in Budapest.

The agreement contains nine articles. It provides for joint action to realize Italian claims in the third zone of Dalmatia and Fiume as well as Croatian national independence. It discusses the moral and material methods to be employed as a means or achieving the desired end, and speaks of the creation of an Italian-Croatian legion at Fiume.

The agreement also seeks a separate agreement for concerted action in Hungary between the Croat committee and the Magyar Fascists Party.

Form Paris Section of Fascisti.

PARIS, Nov. 30.—A Paris section of the Fascisti was founded tonight at a meeting presided over by Nicola Bonservisi, delegate of the Central Committee of the Fascists Party. Its special objects are to group Italians for the defense of Italian interests and to spread Italian art, culture and science by Italian propaganda, for which purpose pamphlets and articles will be published and disseminated and lectures arranged.

A GERMAN REPLY TO TIGER.

Admiralty Says Charges About the Scapa Scuttling Are Silly.

Copyright, 1922, by The Chicago Tribune Co.

BERLIN, Nov. 30.—Former Premier Clemenceau's intimation that the British winked at the scuttling of the German fleet at Scapa Flow is characterized as absolutely silly by the German Admiralty.

"It is curious how the world can forget," Captain Groos, the official Government naval historian, commented, "but it might be recalled how the British ships opened fire on the helpless German crews fleeing from the sinking vessels in rowboats, killing several seamen. This does not indicate that the scuttling overly pleased the British.

"Furthermore the motives ascribed to the Frenchman are not sound. The guns, armament and technical equipment made the use of the ships in other navies impracticable. With the exception of three cruisers taken by the French, all the ships taken from the Germans were only used for target practice.

"There was never any idea that the Allies intended to attack the ships in their navies. At that time it must be remembered, former President Wilson's Fourteen Points were the basis for peace. Besides, the scuttling was entirely a question of honor which forbade the giving of the fleet to the enemy."

The Captain expressed the opinion that M. Clemenceau was trying to drive a wedge between the Anglo-American solidarity resulting from the Washington conference. By giving the impression to the American people that England double-crossed the Allies at Scapa Flow he hopes that the effect of this British attitude at Washington will be nullified, said Captain Groos.

The Gift of Brocaded Mules

THERE'S something festive—and luxurious, too—about satin mules, that gives them an irresistible appeal. And when they're not only satin, but brocaded in gold or silver, you can scarcely wait to slip your feet into them. Particularly if they are black (this year's favorite color for the boudoir) with gold or silver, or purple with silver. $8.50

Books in Fine Bindings

TO answer the question of the difficult gift—the one that takes more thought than any other—it would be hard to find a happier solution than one of these books, beautifully bound in leather. English binders have done some of their defiest work in these bindings, and the result is a group of books, each one a work of art, none duplicated anywhere. You will find our prices most moderate in every case.

3 BANDITS KILL MAN, FIGHT OFF PURSUERS

They Enter Greenwich Village Saloon, Shoot Bartender and Rifle Till.

EX-SERVICE MEN IN CHASE

Detectives Search the Hudson Waterfront for Hours Without Any Result.

Three hold-up men invaded a saloon in Greenwich Village last night, shot the bartender dead, rifled the till and escaped after fighting off ex-service men who poured from a veterans' dance next door and tried to stop them.

All the reserves of the Charles Street Police Station were mustered and rushed to the scene, where they were joined by detectives. The neighborhood was combed for hours and particular search was pressed along the Hudson waterfront. Although the police got good descriptions of the men they failed to come upon any one resembling the robbers.

The dead bartender was Michael Kessel of 196 East 102d Street. He had tended bar for many years in the saloon of Thomas Donnelly, at 397 Hudson Street, and it was there he meet his death.

Kessel had served two customers and stood chatting with them while they sipped their drinks, when three nondescript men slouched in and sidled up to the bar. Kissel gave them cheery greeting, to which there came surly, muttered replies. Then in response to the bartender's question as to what they would have, one of the men answered grimly:

All Three Hands Up.

"Hands up."

Kessel obeyed. The two with whom he had been talking seemed uncertain whether they were included in the command, but one of the robbers whirled upon them, pointed a big automatic pistol at first one and then the other and shouted:

"Stick 'em up."

Up they went.

Then one of the three robbers, apparently the only one who was armed, forced the customers to line up near the partender so that all three might be in range of the single pistol. Satisfied that the three were covered, a second man walked behind the counter and opened the till, while the third went to the door and kept a sharp lookout on the street.

It took but a moment to scoop $30 in small bills and silver out of the till, after which the two hold-up men started backing for the door to join the third, stationed there. The bartender seized the opportunity, as the armed robber turned near the door, to snatch a bottle from a rack behind him. As he lifted his arm to hurl it at the robber the lookout spied him and shouted a warning.

Robber Fires Twice.

Just in the act of pocketing his pistol, the other man turned, snatched the weapon free again and fired quickly and apparently with practiced aim. A bullet plowed its way into Kessel's abdomen. Even as the bartender staggered and started to fall his assailant pressed the trigger again, the second shot taking effect near the first.

Then the three, brushing aside the two customers who made a feeble and ineffectual attempt to halt them, ran into the street. In a hall next door there were about a hundred couples enjoying a Thanksgiving dance of James Lynch Post, Veterans of Foreign Wars. The dancers heard the two shots and the men, deserting their partners, went piling to the street.

Patrick Heaney, Commander of the post, who was a Sergeant with the A. E. F. in France, was one of the first to get to the sidewalk, almost crashing into the robbers as they burst from the saloon. A quick look showed Heaney the man with the gun, and the veteran dashed straight for him. The man closed in, shoved his pistol into Heaney's stomach and pulled the trigger. This time the automatic jammed. Heaney grabbed the weapon and the two fought desperately.

Captive Breaks Away.

Some of Heaney's companions tried to close in to aid him, but the armed man's two companions rallied to his aid, battling a clear way for him just as he broke from Heaney's grasp. Taking advantage of the momentary confusion while the crowd came pouring from the dance hall and the veterans seemed uncertain just what to do, the three broke and fled.

Two ran west on Bank Street, while the third sped down Hudson Street. All were lost at the first turnings.

A policeman patrolling near by arrived just after the robbers had escaped. He sent a hurry call for an ambulance to St. Vincent's Hospital and then notified Captain Dempsey of the Charles Street Station. Kessel was almost dead when the ambulance arrived. The surgeon rushed him to the institution and to the operating room, but he died before anything could be done for him.

The police hunt was begun as soon as the two customers had given descriptions of the invaders, but no success had been reported at a late hour. Thomas Donnelly, proprietor of the saloon, was notified and identified Kessel at the hospital.

WANTED TURKEY, NOT GOOSE

Negro Resented Host's Menu—Two in Jail, One in Hospital.

A knife fight temporarily broke up a Thanksgiving dinner last night at the home of Daniel Young, a negro, at 431 West Fifty-second Street. The altercation started when Arthur Mackey, 47 years old, of 427 West Fifty-second Street, an invited guest, arrived and made a protest because goose was being served instead of turkey. Young and Mackey are in the West Forty-seventh Street Police Station, charged with felonious assault, and Miss Julia Brown, 21 years old, of 431 West Fifty-second Street, Young's sister-in-law, is in the Roosevelt Hospital suffering from knife wounds on the left arm.

According to the story told to the police by other guests at the dinner, Mackey had had Thanksgiving refreshments before going to the dinner. Expecting turkey, he was angered when he saw roast goose on the table and told Young that turkey was the proper poultry for the occasion. Young answered that Mackey ought to be glad even to get goose and suggested that he might find his turkey elsewhere.

Patrolman Harry Litchblau of the West Forty-seventh Station broke up the fight that followed and called an ambulance. Young, Mackey and Miss Brown were taken to the Roosevelt Hospital, where Dr. Knapp attended them. Patrolman Litchblau then took Young and Mackey to the station.

Both were there charged with felonious assault, Mackey complaining against Young and Miss Brown against Mackey.

French Chamber to Sit on Sunday.

GIFTS MEN REALLY WANT

From a Woman to a Man

For women, the selection of successful gifts to men is largely a matter of being introduced to The Man's Shop, or renewing acquaintanceship.

Here, in the compass of a single floor, a woman finds ready for her inspection everything a man wears.

Gifts from the four corners of the earth are at her elbow. China sends silk for shirts, Italy gives her scarves. A chamois motor jacket hails from Denmark, hand-embroidered hose tell of Paris, and knitted jackets speak a Scotch brogue.

Real men's things are assembled here, chosen primarily for their appeal to men. A Man's Shop gift is assured a welcome as lasting as it is hearty. It represents the type of thing a man, in choosing, would himself select.

SPEEJACKS IS HOME, CIRCLED THE GLOBE

WAS TWICE REPORTED LOST

Yacht, Owned by Mr. and Mrs. A. Y. Gowen of Cleveland, Left More Than 14 Months Ago.

MIAMI, Fla., Nov. 30.—The 98-foot motor cruiser Speejacks, owned by Albert Y. Gowen of Chicago, Vice President of the Portland Cement Company, completed a 35,000-mile trip around the world here today.

The voyage began at Miami in September, 1921, and the cruiser, said to be the smallest boat that ever circumnavigated the globe, was welcomed today by a large fleet of varied craft which proceeded several miles to sea to meet her. The party which made the trip included Mr. and Mrs. A. Y. Gowen of Cleveland, Captain F. P. Hogg, who in 1917 captained Princeton's football team; Jack Lewis, who designed and superintended the construction of the boat; Bernard Rogers of Chicago and six others.

Grave fears for the safety of the Speejacks were occasioned in the early part of October, 1921, when the sighting of a wrecked motor yacht off Cape San Lucas, Lower California, gave currency to the belief that the adventurous little band of circumnavigators had been swallowed up by the Pacific. The derelict was sighted by the Hattie Luckenbach and immediately a search of the waters in that latitude was begun with the hope of picking up some of the shipwrecked party.

On Oct. 8, however, the safety of the party in the Speejacks was established by a radiogram from the Shipping Board steamer Eastern Queen, which reported the little motor boat under convoy of the Eastern Queen, as continuing her voyage to the South Seas with all on board well.

This year again there were reports of the Speejacks being lost in the Atlantic, but the story was quickly proved untrue. The Speejacks, a costly specially constructed motor yacht, left the Columbia Yacht Club anchorage in the Hudson River on Aug. 21, 1921, and started on her tour around the world soon afterwards.

Her way to the Panama Canal the Speejacks stopped at Miami. From the Panama Canal she cut across the Pacific for the Marquesas Islands, a distance of 3,725 miles. Her route was via Tahiti, the Society Islands, thence to Samoa, Fiji, the New Hebrides and New Caledonia.

Mr. and Mrs. Gowen were intent upon sailing through the South Sea islands, much of which were almost unknown. Their arrival in the South Seas was heralded in letters later received by their relatives and friends in the United States.

One incident of their visit was that it made possible the marriage of a pair on one of the islands where they lacked a minister to unite them. Mr. Gowen searched among the musty laws of the sea until he found that the master of a ship, beyond the three-mile limit was invested with the power to unite persons in marriage. Accordingly he took the unwedded islanders aboard his yacht, sailed with them beyond the three-mile limit and there a long-delayed wedding took place.

The Speejacks, built like an ocean liner in miniature, is said to have cost her owner about a quarter of a million dollars. Mr. Gowen spent a year planning the craft and almost as much time supervising her construction.

The yacht is ninety-eight feet long, of 150 tons displacement, seventeen feet beam and draws six feet. Everything below the waterline is made of bronze. All the upper works are of teakwood, imported from India at a cost of five times the price of mahogany. The decks are of teakwood, but the interior furnishings are of mahogany.

The bronze bottom was planned to make the hull invulnerable to the teredo, a tropical pest which literally bores through an ordinary hull. The yacht's power is developed by two 150-horsepower engines. She operates on either gasoline or kerosene, of which she can carry 3,500 gallons, in addition to 1,000 gallons of water. She has a cruising radius of 3,000 miles.

When the motor yacht sailed out of New York harbor she carried 7,000 pounds of canned food, and a medicine chest planned along lines that were followed by such explorers as Amundsen, Scott, Stefansson and Roosevelt.

In order that the complete history of the world-cycling voyage might be recorded in pictures, the yacht took along a motion-picture camera and 50,000 feet of film and made arrangements to take aboard an additional 100,000 feet of film en route.

When the Speejacks sailed from New York she had aboard, besides Mr. and Mrs. Gowen, Bernard F. Rogers Jr. of Chicago, Yale, 1918, an expert photographer and taxidermist, acting as the right-hand man of Mr. Gowen on the trip. The yacht was manned in part by friends of the owner, including Frank Trevor Hogg, Princeton, 1917, former football captain and master of the yacht; Jack Lewis of Cleveland, an expert yachtsman, who served as chief engineer; David Williamson, a broker, of New York, shipping as a common seaman, and James Sterling, formerly a first-grade Lieutenant in the navy, who was rated as assistant engineer aboard the motor yacht. Ura J. Ingraham, the camera man, a secretary and two cooks completed the yacht's party.

BLIZZARD HITS NORTHWEST.

North and South Dakotas Suffer—Big Storm Approaching Lakes.

GRAND FORKS, N. D., Nov. 30.—A blizzard struck North Dakota today. Snow began falling early this morning and continued throughout the day, covering all of the State and continuing north into Canada, accompanied by a heavy northwest wind. Trains due here from the West tonight were from four to six hours late.

At Duluth, Minn., a gale of unexpected suddenness swept two heavy freighters from their moorings. Tugs went to the rescue and made the vessels fast before they had been blown more than 200 yards from their berths.

The approach of a violent storm, due to hit the head of the Lakes early tomorrow, is forecast. A strong easterly wind is blowing all along Lake Superior, accompanied by heavy rain or snow, it was said.

Two and three-tenths inches of snow fell at Fargo, N. D. Driven by a high wind, sleet and mist fell at Aberdeen, S. D., tonight. The temperature dropped to freezing. Telephone officials report about 200 poles down in this part of the state.

MORE CANTONMENT SUITS.

Special Grand Jury Also Considers Alleged Overcharges.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 30 (Associated Press).—Additional civil suits, involving $20,000,000 to $30,000,000 for alleged overcharges and waste in construction of army cantonments are being prepared by the Department of Justice. They probably will be filed within ten days.

Preparation of civil suits has been under direction of Roscoe C. McCulloch, a special assistant to the Attorney General, who, during the past week, has been before a special Federal Grand Jury, which has been strongly indicated at the Department of Justice that there may be indictments in connection with the alleged frauds.

ESCAPES A POLICE CORDON.

Massachusetts Fugitive, After Leap Through Window, Eludes Dog.

WOONSOCKET, R. I., Nov. 30.—Leaping through a closed window amid a shower of flying glass in view of a cordon of Woonsocket police and Massachusetts State officers reinforced by a German police dog, Isador Guilbault, sought in connection with the killing of Albert Touchette in a grocery store hold-up last night in Blackstone, Mass., today made good his escape into the neighboring woods. A fire alarm was sounded and a riot call sent in summoning all available police officers, but Guilbault had not been captured early tonight.

Touchette was shot and fatally wounded last night when a bandit entered his store and demanded money. State police conducted an unsuccessful search, but today the Woonsocket police got a tip that a man had been seen limping into a certain house, which they surrounded.

Guilbault, who was seated at a Thanksgiving dinner when the cordon was drawn about the place, ran to the rear of the house, leaped through a closed window and before police realized what was happening was almost out of sight. The police dog, brought to town early today for the occasion, loped after the fugitive, but a few hours later trotted back alone.

Guilbault's father and mother said their son had gone last night to see his sweetheart, Yvonne Martin, who lives not far from the scene of the hold-up. They said he did not return, but remained at the girl's home all night. The Martin girl corroborated this statement.

Last night's hold-up and shooting came as a climax to a series of robberies by armed bandits in this vicinity recently.

MRS. RAIZEN IN HOSPITAL.

Woman Accused of Murder is Threatened With Pneumonia.

Mrs. Lillian Raizen who is awaiting trial on a charge of having murdered Dr. Abraham Glickstein in Brooklyn, was removed from Raymond Street jail to Correctional Hospital on Welfare Island late last night, suffering from an attack of acute tonsillitus and incipient pneumonia. She developed symptoms of illness early in the evening and when her condition showed no improvement, Warden Honeck sent for an ambulance from Cumberland Street Hospital. Dr. Whitman, who responded to the ambulance call, diagnosed the case, and within fifteen minutes she was on her way to the hospital.

Dr. Charles Storerger, physician of the Raymond Street jail, said that the attack of illness came very suddenly. Mrs. Raizen is to have a judicial hearing within a few days if she is physically able, to determine whether she is mentally capable of standing trial on the murder charge before County Judge George W. Martin.

COUZENS'S OFFER ACCEPTED

Michigan Senator Will Remain Head of Detroit Traction System.

DETROIT, Mich., Nov. 30.—Detroit may have a United States Senator as General Manager of its Municipal traction system after Monday.

Mayor James Couzens, appointed yesterday to fill the unexpired term of Truman H. Newberry, has indicated his willingness to continue at the head of the city railway system after he takes up his duties at Washington, and the Acting Mayor, John C. Lodge, and the Street Railway Commission, have agreed to the proposal.

Under this arrangement, which the corporation counsel has ruled is permissible, Mr. Couzens will continue at the head of one of the biggest undertakings of his administration. The retiring Mayor considers the Municipal ownership venture a success, but has plans for its further development that he wishes to work out personally. This he will do along with his Senatorial duties, he has indicated.

Mr. Couzens is expected to return here Monday and assume his Senate seat about the middle of next week.

RAILWAY ADJUSTS WAGES.

Northern Pacific Reaches Agreement With Its Shop Workers.

ST. PAUL, Minn., Nov. 30.—New wage scales and working rules affording higher rates of pay for skilled workers and lower wages for classes of unskilled labor than those established by the Railroad Labor Board during Federal control have been negotiated by representatives of the new Northern Pacific Railway Shop Workers' Association and officials of the railway, it was announced here today. Approximately 5,000 workers are affected.

All of the ordinary mechanics' work in locomotive and passenger car departments is set at 72 cents an hour, with a rate of 65 cents for freight car repairmen.

Work that requires no great skill or experience is rated from 63 to 68 cents an hour.

MYSTERY IN COLLEGE FIRE.

Strange Man Seen in Winnipeg Just Before St. Boniface Burned.

WINNIPEG, Manitoba, Nov. 30.—A man whose actions were such as to arouse suspicions, was seen loitering around the grounds of the St. Boniface College on the eve of last Saturday's fire, in which ten lives were lost, according to a statement made today by Mrs. Charles Loiselle of St. Boniface, to a reporter.

Mrs. Loiselle has been subpoenaed to give evidence before the Provincial Fire Commissioner. She said in an interview that she saw a mysterious man on the college grounds carrying a rope on his arm at 8 P. M. Friday, and two hours later she saw him again in the same vicinity.

A memorial service for the victims of the fire was held in St. Boniface Cathedral this morning.

VISITOR RESCUES WOMAN.

Caller Smells Escaping Gas and Breaks Down Door.

The life of Mrs. Rachael Graves, 40 years of age, of 2,108 Madison Avenue, was saved yesterday by the timely Thanksgiving call of a friend, Clifford Gordon, 75 West 131st Street. He smelled gas as he rang the door bell. He broke down the door and found Mrs. Graves unconscious on the floor. Gas was escaping from an open jet. Patrolman Haddock of the East 120th Street station called an ambulance from Harlem Hospital and Mrs. Graves was taken there. An investigation by the police showed that the gas was escaping probably because a light had been accidentally blown out by a gust of wind.

Theatre Owners Dance Tomorrow.

Governor-elect Smith, Senator-elect Royal S. Copeland and Senator James J. Walker will be guests of honor at the third annual supper-dance of the Theatre Owners' Chamber of Commerce at the Hotel Astor tomorrow night. Harry Reichenbach will act as master of ceremonies and there will be a program under the direction of S. L. Rothafel.

Murdock Heads Federal Trade Board

WASHINGTON, Nov. 30.—With the expiration tomorrow of the one-year term of N. E. Gaskill of New Jersey as Chairman of the Federal Trade Commission, Commissioner Victor Murdock of Kansas will automatically succeed by rotation to that position, it was stated today. Commissioner John F. Nugent of Idaho will become Vice Chairman succeeding Mr. Murdock.

THE FAR EAST SHOP
announces an exhibition and sale of Russian Embroideries and Dolls in Russian Costumes from the Russian Art Embroidery Atelier at Versailles and the RUSSIAN SHOP in London

The Russian Shop in London has been established under the auspices of The Russian Zemstvos and Towns Committee for the Relief of Refugees, to enable Russian refugees to become self-supporting.

The Art Embroidery Atelier at Versailles has been maintained for three years by the Princess Vladimir Schakhovsky, herself a refugee. Its forty workers specialize in the beautiful embroideries characteristic of Russia. Old Russian 17th Century documents were used for some of the designs for this work, and such well-known artists as Bakst, Gontcharova and Stelletsky have allowed the atelier to follow their designs, and to use their daring and vivid scale of colors.

Embroideries
The Exhibition now opening at the Far East Shop includes wonderful embroideries in marvellous stitches. These stitches vary according to the districts from which the workers come just as the designs of Brittany differ from those of Provence for instance. The colors originate in the typical Russian rainbow of magenta, orange, purple, lemon yellow, crimson and blue.

Dolls in Russian Costume
Fascinating dolls in jewel-sewn fur-trimmed, flaring velvet coats, and fur caps, or glittering Kokochnik head-dresses with long veils.

Fourth Gallery, New Building.

POLICE RAIDERS FIND ALCOHOL IN LOFT

Colonel Gillett Quotes Figures to Show Drunkenness is on the Increase.

In a raid on a factory building at 11 Lynch Street, Brooklyn, yesterday, the police discovered forty-five five-gallon cans of alcohol and five half-gallon cans of coloring matter. Emilio Saladino, of 18 Walton Street, who said he was hired to watch the place, was arrested.

Captain Sullivan of the Clymer Street Station said he received information that liquor was being manufactured in the building.

Drunkenness has been on the increase since the passage of the prohibition amendment, according to a statement yesterday by Colonel Ransom H. Gillett, general counsel of the Association Against the Prohibition Amendment. Colonel Gillett criticised as "willfully fallacious, exaggerated and misleading," statements in a recent circular letter of the Committee on Financial Management of the Anti-Saloon League.

The letter said that drinking had been reduced 85 per cent.; that there has been a decrease of 600,000 in the number of persons arrested for drunkenness in a year; that 20 per cent. of the jails in the United States were wholly without inmates.

"In the face of these wild statements," said Colonel Gillett, "it would be amusing if it were not tragic to note that:

"The Health Department of New York City has announced that during the first eight months of this year there were 169 deaths from alcoholism, compared with 119 during the whole of 1921:

"In 56 cities with an aggregate population of 24,668,901, arrests for drunkenness and disorderly conduct increased from 253,810 in 1920 to 343,065 in 1921, or 36 per cent.

"The Census Bureau announced last week that the prison population of the United States has increased from 140,186 in July, 1917, to 150,181 in July, 1922.

"In this connection it is interesting to note that despite the oft-repeated assertion of the 'drys' that prohibition would promote better treatment of children, the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Children's annual report states that the number of crimes against children has increased during the last year."

TOWN AND BAND JOIN IN WHEELBARROW BET

Pine Brook (N. J.) Residents Take Part in Payment of Wager on Recent Election.

PINE BROOK, N. J., Nov. 30.—Practically the entire town turned out this afternoon to witness the payment of a belated election wager on the recent victory of Governor Edwards over United States Senator Joseph S. Frelinghuysen. The town Marshal, the local band, most of the townspeople and scores of passing autoists took part in the novelty furnished by the two principals using a decorated wheelbarrow.

Joseph Hilbert, a farmer, wagered with Joseph O'Dowd, a dairyman, and O'Dowd won. It was agreed that the bet would be paid this afternoon.

Headed by Marshal Abram Van Winkle, clad as "Charlie Chaplin," the parade got under way from the Post Office, after the Parsippany Cornet Band of twenty pieces, led by the Rev. Edmund Haines, pastor of the Parsippany Presbyterian Church, gave a concert.

O'Dowd, smoking a cigar and apparently enjoying the novelty, sat in the wheelbarrow as his friend Hilbert struggled along through the principal streets to O'Dowd's store, half a mile from the starting point. Crowds along the line cheered the men.

Autoists tooted their horns, adding to the general racket and noise, and followed in the wake of the "paraders" to the end. There another concert was given by the band.

BOSTON HORSE SWIMS FOR THIRTY-SIX HOURS

Animal Then Starts for the Open Sea, but Is Roped and Towed to Shore.

BOSTON, Nov. 30.—A Boston horse, whose usual task is to draw a newspaper delivery wagon, qualified as a long-distance swimmer when it was rescued from the Charles River late today after spending thirty-six hours in the water. The horse still was swimming when found but later went to an animal hospital to recover from a bad chill.

Early Wednesday morning, as its wagon was standing at the North Station the horse made its dash for freedom. The route lay through the train yards over tracks and culverts. Finally the horse dived through a drawbridge over the river, leaving the wagon and its load jammed between the rails. For hours the harbor police searched for the animal in vain.

A watchman saw the horse swim out from under a pier late today and make for the open sea. A stern chase in a dory followed, and the swimming animal was roped and towed to shore.

TAX PAYMENT DUE DEC. 15.

Treasury Expects a Return of About $275,000,000.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 30.—The Treasury issued a reminder tonight that another payment of income and profits taxes is due Dec. 15. It is estimated, a formal statement said, that the payment would bring in about $275,000,000.

Not all of the payment, however, will be in cash, as under the optional forms of payment permitted, taxpayers may turn in, in addition to cash or checks, either Treasury certificates of indebtedness maturing Dec. 15, or 4¾ per cent. Victory notes, whether or not they have been called for redemption. Approximately $200,000,000 of the certificates of indebtedness mature on the tax-paying date, the statement said.

Besides the certificates of indebtedness maturing Dec. 15, the Treasury must take care of about $700,000,000 in Victory notes which have been called for redemption on the same date. Permission to turn in the Victory notes, it was explained, furnishes an additional facility for tax-paying as well as aiding in the funding of the Victory loan.

WRECKED BY INCENDIARY.

Explosions and Fire Destroy Herkimer Building in Early Morning.

HERKIMER, N. Y., Nov. 30.—A three-story brick building in East Smith Street was destroyed by explosions and fire soon after 4:30 o'clock this morning. Firemen attributed the destruction to incendiarism. The entire front of the building was blown into the street, the interior bursting into flames. Within a few minutes a second explosion brought down the three floors and demolished the rest of the structure.

The building, which housed two stores and three apartments, was owned by E. Tstrucci of 156 West Fiftieth Street, New York, and was insured for $21,500. Tstrucci said he had cheese insured for $3,200 stored in the apartments, which have been vacant for three years.

Firemen said they found a barrel containing kerosene. "I would like to meet the chap that did it," the Fire Chief said. "I would tell him it was a perfect job."

WOMEN VOTERS TO MEET.

Annual Convention of State League in Albany Jan. 16 and 17.

The State League of Women Voters will hold their annual convention at the Hotel Ten Eyck in Albany on Jan. 16 and 17, according to announcement yesterday by Mrs. Frank A. Vanderlip, head of the league. It is expected the convention will adopt a resolution urging the State Legislature to restore nominations by direct primary for all offices.

It was said yesterday the league in all probability also would urge the repeal of the Davenport-Moore act providing for maternity aid by the State and urge participation in the Federal fund created for that purpose under the Sheppard-Towner act which Congress adopted.

PAROLED CONVICT ARRESTED

Ex-Auburn Inmate Accused of Many Robberies in Syracuse.

SYRACUSE, N. Y., Nov. 30.—Floyd C. Ryan, a paroled convict from Auburn Prison, was arrested tonight in connection with police investigation into a score or more house robberies here in the last few weeks, which have baffled the authorities. A woman was taken to police headquarters as Ryan's associate, and she handed to the police two rings which she said Ryan had given to her.

In Ryan's possession, the police stated, were several diamond rings and blank checks. Police stated Ryan was convicted in Binghamton, where he confessed to seventeen robberies in June and July, 1917.

ACCUSE EACH OTHER OF BECKER MURDER

told friends that he was going to "get rid of" Mrs. Becker in order to live with Anna Elias. Two years ago Becker left his wife and four children and took Anna Elias to Cleveland, but after three months he returned to his own family. He continued to see Miss Elias, however, and she took the name of Mrs. Becker and lived with him after the disappearance of the real Mrs. Becker last April.

While Becker's motives are thus clear, the motives which impelled Norkin to assist in committing the crime or in covering it up are unknown so far, District Attorney Glennon said last night. Asked if the two men were bound together by any previous crimes, Mr. Glennon said:

"We haven't been able to find anything like that so far."

Becker's charge that Norkin had already killed several persons was not taken seriously by the District Attorney's office.

Woman Held as Witness.

Miss Anna Elias, who has admitted living with Becker, and that Becker is the father of her little girl, 2 years old, was found wandering aimlessly near 171st Street and Brook Avenue, the Bronx, about 11:30 last night by Policeman Henry Schweitzer. Miss Elias, who was carrying her child in her arms, told the policeman that the woman from whom she had rented a room at 1,207 Clay Avenue, had put her out during the afternoon. She said she then went to the home of her mother, Mrs. Bertha R. Elias, at 12 East 117th Street, and that her mother refused to take her in. She said she met a similar response when she went to the home of her sister, Mrs. Carrie Rosenzweig, at 1,490 Brook Avenue.

The woman, who was in tears and greatly fatigued, told the policeman that she had no money, and the officer went with her to the house in which she had a room to see if the woman there would not permit her to occupy the room for the night. The policemen said the woman refused, saying that she did not care to harbor any one who had associated with criminals.

The policemen then took Miss Elias and the child to the Tremont Station, where it was decided to hold the woman as a material witness. She was transferred to the Morrisania Station, where there is a matron.

The exact place and method of killing Mrs. Becker has not been made known. It did not occur in Becker's house, it is thought, because his children, the oldest of whom is 8 years old, know nothing about the crime. It is believed that the woman was slain in an automobile, or was taken to some lonely spot and there beaten on the head with a hammer.

Suspicion that she had been murdered was spread in the immediate neighborhood at once, but it spread further during the eight months since Mrs. Becker's disappearance until it became the talk of the Bronx. Suspicion was caused at first by Becker's story that his wife had run away. Neighbors knew her to be devoted to her four children, who were always dressed smartly even when the mother was nearly in rags. This, coupled with the indiscreet statements of Becker, caused the District Attorney a week ago to begin the investigation.

District Attorney Glennon denied a report that the premises surrounding the repair shop of Norkin were to be excavated in search of other bodies.

"There have been rumors," he said, "that some colored person was buried there. I don't see any basis for the rumor. I am not going to have any further digging there at present."

Ready for the Grand Jury.

District Attorney Glennon and Assistant District Attorney Albert Cohn will begin presenting evidence to the Bronx County Grand Jury on Monday. Mr. Cohn called it "a dead open and shut case" of murder in the first degree against Becker. While the facts about Norkin are not clear, it is believed that his connection with the crime is closer than that of accessory after the fact.

One of the witnesses yesterday was Mrs. Rebecca Baldwin of 637 Tinton Avenue, the Bronx. She, Mrs. Samuel Martin and others had asked for an investigation of Becker. Mrs. Baldwin was in the hospital when Mrs. Becker disappeared. On leaving the hospital she heard the story that Mrs. Becker had run away, and did not believe it. After hearing more rumors she visited the orphan asylum and talked to the Becker children. She found them so shy and afraid to talk of their mother and father that she grew still more suspicious. Finally the details pointing to murder grew so numerous that she presented the matter to the District Attorney.

The conditions of admission of two of the Becker children to the Israel Orphan Asylum, 274 East Second Street, where they now are, were described by Mendel Shapiro, Chairman of the Board of Admissions.

Sarah and Celia, three-year-old twins, were admitted Aug. 25 upon the application of a Mrs. Rubinstein of 1,538 Intervale Avenue. She explained to Mr. Shapiro that the girls had been left by Becker in the care of Fred Beisiegel, a Post Office carrier, who is her neighbor.

An arrangement had been entered into between Becker and Beisiegel in June, two months after the murder, whereby the letter carrier was to receive $10 a week for the children's board. The first week's payment was made, but no more. Not wishing to keep the Becker twins unless he received some remuneration, Beisiegel decided to send them to a children's home, according to the story told to Mr. Shapiro.

The Jewish neighbors intervened and Mrs. Rubinstein made the application to the asylum. It was her belief, she said, that the girls' mother had deserted them. Mr. Shapiro said that Beisiegel was not related to Becker in any way.

What You Expect of Your Bank

"Safety, dependability, permanence, willingness and ability to serve, diversified service graciously administered, encouragement when needed, advice when asked, vision enough to co-operate, and faith in all branches of American business—these are a few of the things expected of the banker," so some one has said.

We aim to fulfill these requirements for the clients of our Banking Department and believe that we do. We are anxious to secure many more depositors of the right sort, especially those interested in real estate and mortgage investments.

We think we can be of real service to you.

CATHOLIC WEEKLY CALLS KLAN A CURSE

WARN OF METHODS HERE

Beguiling Tactics Have Been Adopted Especially for the East, the Paper Says.

The next issue of The Tablet, official Catholic newspaper of the diocese of Brooklyn, will carry a scathing editorial denunciation of the Ku Klux Klan, advance proofs of which were made public last night. The editorial, which is to appear on Dec. 3, calls upon New York legislators and Congressmen to lead in suppressing Klan activities and warns that special, mild methods, adapted to propagation of the secret order's ideas in New York are to be used to gain a following here.

The editorial says:

Organized fanaticism, bigoted nationalism, subsidized prejudice, and hate-dispensing propaganda, as represented by the Ku Klux Klan in America has grown just far enough without drawing the attention of the officials of the country. It has now grown so steadily in numbers, influence and brazen effrontery that it has become a curse to mankind, a menace to good government, a scandal to national progress and a shocking parody on the Constitution, on Americanism and Christianity. Like a plague that spreads beyond a neighborhood or gets beyond the control of appointed officials, it now demands national, State and city supervision. The time is at hand, we believe for sufficiently drastic action to drive these political rates back into their sewers of racial prejudice and religious bigotry.

The advent of the society in New York, its endeavors of the last few months during which we have watched it, indicate that its tactics here are to be a little different from what they are elsewhere. Instead of publicly and bitterly attacking the Catholic, Jew and Negro, it is pursuing "a dress-suit" policy, a polite palavering attitude, because it realizes that the Catholics and Jews are too numerous and because its high-priced salesmen know that New Yorkers, due to their association with Coney Island schemes, are too sensible to be misled by the oily, slimy, dirty, contemptible tactics found profitable in the South and West.

A more efficient program is being tried here and for this reason, perhaps, it is appealing to a certain type of Klansman, of Protestant and of Y. M. C. A. worker. We are watching the position these non-Catholics are taking and we marvel to see some of them bringing shame on their organizations. The decent, respectable and intelligent element, all of whom are our friends, are evoking its tentacles as they would the Camorra of Italy, the Bolsheviki of Russia, the ordinary Black Hand of New York. But the object of the organization in New York, as in distant parts, is the same. It aims to infect all sections of life, all denominations, all political parties. Its objective is to dynamite the cornerstone of tolerance and liberty, to upset the foundation of peace and harmony, which all true Americans revere and respect.

Instead of government "of the people, by the people, and for the people" it seeks to subvert the government of Lincoln and Washington and to give us a government "of the Klan, by the Klan, and for the Klan." And it has the blasphemous gall to assert that such a government would be Christian and American. A more dastardly plot, a more repulsive conspiracy, has not been born this side of hell in our day.

"Lincoln in a Sheet!"

"We stand for Christianity!" In the name of God since when do men need to be paraded to stand for that? Did St. Paul, did St. Peter, did any great defender of Christianity ever need to stand for Christianity with a mask on or to hide his name and aims from the public? "We stand for Americanism!" What a hollow mockery that so-called patriots have to meet in private, ashamed of their name and creed, in order to preach Americanism! Think of Washington at Valley Forge in a night gown and a mask, think of Lincoln at Gettysburg carrying a flaming torch and covered with a sheet! Christians.

The Ku Klux Klan has no more claim to stand as an exponent of Christianity than has the Sultan of Turkey. Americans! If the Ku Klux Klan stands for Americanism then in all consistency we should change our flag from the Red, White and Blue to a yellow rag, in order to match their backs. Their Christianity and Americanism are of the homebrew type, 2.75 per cent., stale, flat, tasteless and dangerous.

The Catholic people are sick and disgusted of this constant misrepresentation and calumniation, indulged in by anti-Catholic papers, tracts, lecturers and organizations. We are sick and disgusted of hearing that we are unpatriotic when fair-minded people, and unprejudiced historians, concede that no people has given more in service, blood and treasure to this glorious Republic than the Catholics. We are sick and disgusted of having to refute the constant charge that we are against the Bible when all, who want to, know that if it had not been for the Catholic Church during the first fifteen centuries there would be no Bible today and who likewise know that the Church is a steadfast champion and unflinching defender of the Word of God.

We are sick and disgusted of being charged that we are "in politics" when there are less than six Senators Catholics out of nearly a hundred, and less than forty out of over four hundred Congressmen, and not one in the President's Cabinet; no denomination has less men in national politics than we, and those who manufacture this calumny are guilty of drawing a red herring across their own trail. We are sick and disgusted of hearing the Knights of Columbus lied about and slandered, by a motley crew who know their charges are false. We are sick and disgusted of hearing that we are plotting to destroy the public schools, or opposed to public education, a charge concocted by knaves and meant to be swallowed by ignoramuses. We are sick and disgusted of all of this, and similiar charges, made either through hatred or ignorance, and frequently for personal profit.

An Assault on the Constitution.

But it is not for the sake of our Church that we protest. The Church has faced hatred, jealousy, ignorance, intolerance and persecution for over 1,900 years since Christ founded her, and she is today as much alive, as great a moral force and as sturdy a power for Christianity as ever. What we do protest against is this damnable assault on the Constitution of the country which guarantees religious freedom; what we do oppose is this onslaught on the Declaration of Independence, which holds all men equal; what we do object to is this stirring up of the embers of hatred, of the sowing of seeds of discord, of the brewing of bigotry, of the pitting of brother against brother on a platform of slander, falsehood and calumny.

As Americans and Christians who love every foot of this country, who are proud of its history, loyal to its Constitution, devoted to its flag, we solemnly protest against this un-American and un-Christian invasion of the community by self-appointed custodians of the law and self-delegated protectors of the Republic who are a danger to peace, order and prosperity, a menace to God and man.

The Tablet, in its protest, goes further. As an American newspaper it hereby calls on the Senators of New York State, the legislative body at Albany, and on the Board of Aldermen of New York to promptly and legally introduce legislation to prevent the spread of this cancerous sore on the body politic. This legislation should follow along several lines. We recommend two. First, it should compel the membership lists of every organization to be public property along with its aims; and, secondly, it should prevent any elected representative, any public official, officeholder, policeman, fireman, teacher, member of the National Guard, &c., to be a member of these Black and Tans who know not liberty, charity, tolerance or Americanism.

A Call on New York Lawmakers.

Not a dollar of the people's or Government's money should be given to any one who is identified with this anti-democratic movement. Moreover, it is high time the conspiracy laws, and the laws of public safety, applicable to the I. W. W., &c., were invoked against these disturbers of the peace. New York's representatives at Washington could give no better exhibition of service to this great State than to aid in putting a stop to the machinations of the Klan. New York's representatives at Albany could offer a splendid example for other States by tearing the masks of secrecy off these home-brew patriots.

The city's officiary could honor the community by destroying these weeds in the garden of peace and security. Public opinion today is overwhelmingly opposed to any movement which seeks to crucify democracy upon a gibbet of intolerance. It has little use for the reptiles who crawl in the high grass of secrecy, plotting against those who are of a different race, color or creed than they. Catholics and Protestants settled America. They worked together in making this country the greatest republic of modern times. They fought side by side in defending the land we love and they strove in peace to contribute to its magnificent progress.

From our earliest childhood we Catholic Americans have been taught to respect the religion of non-Catholics and we hold no animosity toward them. We have no hate-dispensing societies, lecturers or press. We ask no right for ourselves that we are not willing to grant those of another faith. In behalf of all true Americans, regardless of race, color or creed, of all who want liberty and not tyranny, democracy and not anarchy, law and order and not the torch and the mask, friendship and not hatred, peace and not discord, we urge that the public officiary, reinforcing the splendid service of exposure as practiced by the New York press, counteract this bigoted movement, which while it will not get a strong foothold in New York, is already fastening its tentacles on the small towns outside the city.

COMMUNISTS BURN PLANTS.

They Exploit Workers' Distress, German Police Say.

Copyright, 1922, by The Chicago Tribune Co.

BERLIN, Nov. 30.—The Communists are systematically destroying factory property in several places and burning plants in the vicinity of Dusseldorf and Cologne. The police say that they have evidence proving that systematic efforts are being made by the Communists to cause hardships to the workers so that they will aid in the disturbances against the Government.

While the Communists are actively trying to exploit misery for their own political ends, the Berlin police are taking special precautions to protect the Russian refugees here, against whom both the Monarchists and the Reds are said to be conspiring.

Detectives have been assigned as body guards for the former revolutionary leaders, including M. Kerensky, who is the editor of a paper here.

WANTS FRANCE IN PACIFIC.

Budget Official Says She Needs a Trade Commissioner There.

PARIS, Nov. 30 (Associated Press).—A French High Commissioner in the Pacific is indispensable, Leon Archimbaud, reporter of the Budget for the Colonies, declares in a report which he has just communicated to the Chamber of Deputies.

The Pacific, particularly since the Washington conference, has become the economic centre of the world, he says, and France must play an important part by the side of Great Britain, the United States and Japan.

ANNAPOLIS AWAITS INQUIRY.

Members of Investigating Board Are Expected There Today.

Special to The New York Times.

ANNAPOLIS, Md., Nov. 30.—While no official information on the subject has been received here, it is believed that the members of the Court of Inquiry appointed by Secretary Denby to investigate alleged intoxication among the midshipmen after the football game of last Saturday in Philadelphia will reach Annapolis tomorrow and get to work promptly.

While the court communicates directly with the Secretary of the Navy, and is not in any way subordinate to Rear Admiral Wilson, Superintendent of the Naval Academy, it is believed that its members will confer with the latter official in regard to arrangements for the sittings and other details.

The court probably will meet tomorrow for the purpose of outlining its work, and will start its regular sessions early next week. As a rule sessions of such bodies are open to the public and it is expected that this will be the procedure in the present instance.

OVERCOME IN APARTMENT.

Couple Found Unconscious From Coke and Soft Coal Fumes.

Fumes from the water heater furnace in the cellar spread through the apartment house at 102 East 105th Street yesterday and overcame Horace Lubowitz and his wife, Celia, while they were sleeping in their first-floor apartment.

Other tenants complained of the fumes generated by coke and soft coal. Timothy Collins, the janitor, put out the fire and set out to make the rounds of the apartments to notify the tenants that the hot water would be shut off until he could start another fire in the heater. Repeated knocks brought no response from the Lubowitz apartment. He then forced the door and found the couple in bed. They were taken to Mount Sinai Hospital.

GIRL CHARGES ASSAULT.

Texas Man and Wife Are Held Following Indictments.

SAN ANTONIO, Texas, Nov. 30.—Charged by indictment with criminal assault upon a 12-year-old girl, H. W. Hobson, President of the South Texas Oil and Development Company, and Mrs. Ella Hobson, his wife, were arrested and lodged in the Bexar County Jail late on Wednesday.

The indictments against Mr. and Mrs. Hobson are the result of an investigation which has been progressing by the Grand Jury for some time. The girl is said to have visited the Hobsons at their home here, and after returning to her home in North Texas reported the case to her parents.

TWO DIE IN ENGINE BLAST.

Locomotive Boiler Hurled High in Air at Kenova, W. Va.

KENOVA, W. Va., Nov. 30.—A locomotive boiler and cab, hurled high into the air by an explosion of steam, dropped two men to their death near the Norfolk and Western roundhouse here today.

The men are Albert Saunders and Percy Johnson. They were attempting to fill the boiler with water when the blast carried them to their death.

There is a decided change in overcoats

OVERCOATS for some seasons past have been rather highly standardized in design.

This winter the best custom overcoats show a considerable change in lines. Our Ready to Wear overcoats are made from the same designs used in our Made to Measure department, and reflect the very latest modes.

This same advantage favorably affects all our Ready to Wear clothes. We cannot too often repeat that there is no difference, excepting price, between our Ready to Wear and Made to Measure clothes.

CRITICISE AMERICA IN DAY'S SERMONS

ARMENIA'S PLIGHT CITED

Democracy Menaced by Those Who Formerly Were Downtrodden, Says Chancellor Brown.

In their Thanksgiving sermons yesterday many clergymen called attention to certain matters for which, they said, the United States had no cause to be thankful. Numerous preachers declared that America should face the fact that she is not doing her part in Europe. The Armenian massacres, America's empty seat, officially, so far, at the Conference of the Allied Powers, and features of the present situation in the Near East were cited as things for which not to be thankful.

In all parts of the city there were union services in the morning. The Rev. Dr. Cornelius Woelfkin, pastor of the Park Avenue Baptist Church, preaching at a union service in the Central Presbyterian Church, expressed regret that this country was taking a place as an unofficial observer in what he called "some of the critical situations of today."

"Shall nations have a right to ask, 'Why is America's seat empty at the council?'" said Dr. Woelfkin. "We came very near being a national shirk five years ago," he continued. "Shall we in times of peace neglect our obligation?"

Preaching in the Cathedral of St. John the Divine, Dean Howard Chandler Robbins said we must take thought for those less favored. "The sun is shining for us, but the horizons of sympathy lie beyond national boundaries, and these horizons are dark with oppression and woe," said the Dean.

Extermination in Armenia.

"In Armenia the ghastly work of extermination has almost been completed. A nation which was the first to embrace nationally the Christian religion and which has furnished more martyrs than any other to the Christian faith, has been deliberately and ruthlessly done to death. The great powers of the world, for the most part co-religionists, have stood by parted by mutual jealousies and suspicions and therefore unable to prevent by any concerted action this worst outrage that modern history records."

Rabbi Leo Jung preached at a union service of orthodox congregations in the Spanish and Portuguese Synagogue, Seventieth Street and Central Park West. "As Israel failed in Palestine so did Europe fail in her mission," said Dr. Jung. "Mother Europe was destined to be the inspiration of the Orient, the living example of man's free will for good and beauty. But bigotry stood at the cradle and prejudice swayed the countries."

At a union service of the Community Church and several synagogues in Temple Israel, Ninety-first Street, near Broadway, Rabbi Stephen S. Wise declared the truth is that America will not rightly view nor greatly meet the needs of the world relationship until after certain things shall pass out of the life of the American people. "Thanksgiving before God is a mockery unless it is touched by the grace of humility," said Dr. Wise.

In St. Patrick's Cathedral the annual solemn high mass was celebrated for the deceased members of the Catholic Benevolent Legion.

The mass was sung by Msgr. John P. Chidwick, new pastor of St. Ann's Church, who was chaplain of the Maine when she was blown up in Havana Harbor. The sermon was preached by the Rev. John B. Kelly, curate at the Church of the Blessed Sacrament. Father Kelly said America had ever been "a land of promise to men who sought a home and family."

Preaching in Grace Methodist Church, the Rev. Dr. Samuel G. Inman, Secretary of the Latin-American Committee for the Federated Council of Churches, said that America is the only place of light in a dark world.

At the service in the Fifth Avenue Presbyterian Church, Fifty-fifth Street, it was announced that the Sunday had risen to $237,000 toward the $250,000 necessary for the membership to raise to claim the $750,000 offered by Mrs. Stephen Harkness for a million-dollar parish house.

That the United States take its place at the council tables and assume its share of the world's burdens was the plea of the Rev. Robert Searle, assistant pastor of the Fort Washington Collegiate Reformed, preaching at a union service in the Second United Presbyterian Church, Audubon Avenue and West 173d Street.

Mr. Searle said the change in this nation's status carried with it new responsibilities. "America so far has failed to assume these responsibilities," he said.

At St. Thomas's Episcopal Church, Fifth Avenue and Fifty-third Street, the Thanksgiving sermon by the Rev. Dr. Ernest M. Stires, the rector, was broadcast so that all shut-ins with radios could learn for what to be thankful. The subject of Dr. Stires was "A Thankful Heart."

At a union service in the Marcy Avenue Baptist Church, Brooklyn, the Rev. Dr. William Carter, pastor of the Throop Avenue Presbyterian Church, preached the sermon.

"We did not accept the League of Nations, though embodied in the Peace Treaty and signed by our President as the representative of America," said Dr. Carter. "President Harding was elected on the personal pledge with his name in his campaign to establish an association of nations. Two years have passed by and we still have no association of nations and are not within the League of Nations, although every nation in the world is included save Germany, Bulgaria and Turkey, that triumvirate of infamy, and ourselves."

Says Democracy Is Menaced.

Democracy is threatened by those who formerly were downtrodden and oppressed, said Chancellor Elmer Ellsworth Brown of New York University, who preached at the Church of the Holy Communion, Sixth Avenue and Twenty-first Street.

Chancellor Brown said that democracy was being ground between the upper and nether millstones because it was once threatened from above by the forces of autocracy and plutocracy, but was now equally threatened from below by the oppressed. He pointed out that it had required generations to establish democracy as against autocracy and oligarchy, and then he said:

"And this has no sooner become accomplished, or even partly accomplished, when democracy is assailed from the other side by a new class consciousness. At its worst this new solidarity on the part of those who had been the lowest stratum of the earlier age, the exploited and oppressed, now aims at a dictatorship on its own account.

"Meanwhile autocracy has reappeared in new forms, industrial and military, prepared to fight the old fight under the new regulations. Between these two forces, each trying to master the other, democracy has been nearly lost from sight; it is disregarded as an old fashion, an Eighteenth Century fashion or, worst of all, a relic of Victorian days.

"Nevertheless, it is democracy that holds the middle of the road between the opposing systems of despotism, and in its moral quality and spiritual implications it is still the master of our earthly destiny."

MANY FEASTS MARK THANKSGIVING HERE

1,500 ELLIS ISLAND GUESTS

Good Cheer Features Aliens' Introduction to American Democracy—Special Menus in Jails.

Thanksgiving Day in the metropolitan district was celebrated yesterday on an elaborate scale, celebrated by 1,500 immigrants knocking at the doors of Ellis Island, by thousands in the hospitals, in prisons, in the homes for the orphaned and the aged and infirm, by churches and by families.

To the 1,500 aliens at Ellis Island, many of them from devastated lands, the significance of the great American holiday was made plain by an abundance of food, also by an after-dinner concert featuring the songs of all nations in the tongues of each.

The dinner at the immigration station was served in the great white dining room. Each table was decorated with flowers. And while families from almost every corner of the earth ate turkey, cranberry sauce and other delicacies, they listened to the American airs floating away from the huge organ above the concourse.

"This is the truly all-American holiday," said Commissioner Robert E. Tod. "I want these men and women and children, who are soon to take up the responsibilities and the honors of American citizenship, to join in the spirit of the occasion and feel that, as they sit down to their Thanksgiving dinner, they are also sitting in with the great American family of democracy."

Dinners in the Prisons.

Nothing that would add cheer to lives of the men and women in the penal institutions of the city was overlooked. In the city prisons the price of turkey was prohibitive. At the Tombs roast chicken was substituted. The dinner served to the prisoners there included chicken soup, celery, mashed turnips, apple jelly, baked sweet potatoes, hot mince pie, fruits and coffee. There were 412 persons who enjoyed that dinner. In the women's section of the Tombs there was a special Thanksgiving dinner for twenty-eight persons. The dinner in the other city prisons was the same as that served in the Tombs.

In the Tombs Thanksgiving services were conducted for prisoners of Episcopal and other Protestant denominations and for the Christian Science members. On the menu card given to the prisoners was printed the following:

"Greetings: A spirit of happiness and joy fills the holiday season. With the cessation of strife and the return of prosperity there is abroad the feeling of 'Peace on earth, good will to men.' As the old year comes to a close and we face the new, let us resolve to strive for better things and to lead more useful lives."

Following Thanksgiving dinner on Blackwell's Island the prisoners were entertained by a vaudeville show arranged for the last twenty-three years by B. F. Albee, President of the B. F. Keith Vaudeville Circuit. The show was to song and dance and fun in general, and at intervals cigars and candy were distributed by the entertainers through the audience.

At the West Side Prison a dinner was served to the fifty male and three female prisoners by Head Keeper William McDonald and Mrs. Mary Riordan, matron, whose mother was for seventeen years in charge of the women prisoners at that jail. A dinner for sixteen prisoners was prepared at Ludlow Street Jail.

For Prisoners' Families.

While every effort was made to make the prisoners happy, the families of thousands of prisoners were eating Thanksgiving dinners given to them by the Prison Association of New York, 135 East Twenty-second Street.

A dinner of roast turkey and all the good things that go with it was served to 3,000 boys and girls who accepted the invitation of the Children's Aid Society. Among them were several hundred newsboys who were entertained at the Newsboys' House, 244 William Street, besides youngsters at Kips Bay House, 825 Second Avenue, the Elizabeth Home for Girls, 307 East Twelfth Street, and others at the ten schools for ill and deformed children maintained by the Children's Aid Society.

The St. Andrew's One-Cent Coffee Stand Society, 31 West Eighth Street, celebrated its thirty-fifth anniversary yesterday by serving dinner to more than 2,000 men and women in the rooms of the organization.

At Montefiore Home, Gunhill Road and Bainbridge Avenue, the Bronx, more than 500 inmates were entertained at a dinner and later listened to addresses, among them, one by Dr. S. T. Rosenbaum, Superintendent of the institution.

More than 3,000 men, speaking in seventeen different languages, flocked just before noon to the Bowery Branch Y. M. C. A. to share in the Thanksgiving Day dinner. By the time the doors were opened the line was stretching several blocks away. Policemen from the Fifth Street Station kept the line in order. Nine chefs and seventy-five assistants were required to feed the crowd of hungry men, many of whom did not have the price of their next meal.

Crowds at Bowery Missions.

The largest crowds in years gathered last night in front of the Bowery missions where Thanksgiving dinners were the attraction. It required the greatest tactfulness as well as authority of the police of the Clinton Street Station to hold the men in line.

The largest crowd was at the old Bowery Mission, 277 Bowery, where the line at one time was more than a block long. More than 400 were fed and 150 turned away when the food supply was exhausted.

About 500 men obtained dinner at the Hadley Rescue Mission, 293 Bowery, where John Callahan, called the "Bishop of the Bowery," supervised the distribution. Vaudeville sketches were interspersed between courses.

Orphanages, hospitals and other institutions were visited by 10,000 Girl Scouts, who distributed fruits, candies and other delicacies. In Brooklyn the Girl Scouts were especially solicitous of the disabled former service men. They made distributions also among the families of ex-service men and to the families of the sailors confined to the Naval Hospital.

A coming-out party for boys and girls about to be graduated was arranged by the Henry Street Settlement, where hundreds of the young folk were made happy by Miss Lillian D. Wald, head of the settlement.

About seventy-five elderly men and women who are employed at the Crawford Shops of the A. I. C. P. were the guests of Miss Zelina F. Clark at a Thanksgiving dinner served at the shops. Two additional families dependent upon that association, the Women's Club of Mountain Lakes and girls of the Wadleigh High School prepared turkey dinners.

Dinner for Crippled Children.

For 100 crippled children a special dinner was served at Public School 27, 215 East Twenty-first Street, by the New York Philanthropic League.

The Sheltering Arms, Amsterdam Avenue and 129th Street, prepared a turkey dinner for more than 150 children at its various cottages. At the Bridgeside Day Nursery, maintained by the Bridgeside Mission, Washington Street, 100 children were served with a dinner.

Thanksgiving packages of food were distributed among the families of more than 500 newsboys by an anonymous donor in memory of the late L. J. O'Reilly, former Secretary of William R. Hearst. The money for food was distributed through William Louis Butcher, of the Brace Memorial Newsboys' Home.

Cheer was spread among the 2,000 patients of Bellevue Hospital and the medical staff and nurses by a regular Thanksgiving dinner for everybody, open doors to visitors and several entertainments planned by welfare workers. The sick children were delighted by good things to eat and a performance arranged for their especial benefit. Miss Mary E. Wadley, in charge of social service work at Bellevue, directed the entertainments. A Punch and Judy show was directed by Mr. and Mrs. Stevens Millett of the Hospital Service Committee. There was great glee among the children when girl pupils of the Brearley School, 60 East Sixty-first Street, arrived, bringing toys and candy.

A dinner was prepared for the 1,100 children of the Hebrew Orphan Asylum, 138th Street and Amsterdam Avenue, whose appetite for the tempting meal was highly whetted by an exhibition drill to which thousands of their relatives and friends were invited. The drill was staged in the stadium of City College just across Amsterdam Avenue from the asylum. In the evening the orphans gave an entertainment during which their brass band furnished music appropriate for Thanksgiving Day.

Disabled ex-service men in "Veteran's" Hospital 81, Kingsbridge Road and Sedgewick Avenue, the Bronx, were served with a turkey dinner and last night they had an entertainment.

At the Navy Yard, Brooklyn, all the marines and sailors who remained for the day there gathered at the Naval Hospital where Thanksgiving dinner was served. About 2,000 partook of the feast, including 500 patients at the hospital.

Warden Harry C. Honeck prepared a turkey dinner menu for 311 prisoners in the Raymond Street Jail.

Fourteen hundred patients and 800 employees enjoyed a Thanksgiving dinner at the Kings County Hospital. Following the dinner there was a motion picture show and music in the chapel of the hospital.

The annual entertainment and ball of the Police Department Honor Legion was held last night at the Hotel Commodore.

G. WASHINGTON IN PARADE.

Lincoln and Pilgrim Fathers Also March on East Side.

Under the auspices of the J. W. Gates Association, Abraham Lincoln, George Washington and a swarm of Indians, Pilgrim fathers and other similarly prominent characters in American history celebrated Thanksgiving by parading on the east side, to the vast entertainment of thousands of children and grown-ups.

With several bands in line the procession started off behind Louis Lichtenberger, Grand Marshal, from Leppig's Hall, on Avenue A between Sixth and Seventh Streets, about half-past three yesterday afternoon. The paraders covered a great deal of the territory between Seventh and Fourteenth Streets and Second Avenue and Avenue A.

After the return to Leppig's Hall, a dance was staged by the Gates Association, preceded by a frankfurter eating contest.

DINERS CROWD THE HOTELS.

Tons of Turkeys Consumed and Patronage Heavy.

Tons of turkeys were consumed by the patrons of New York City hotels in celebration of Thanksgiving. At the Waldorf-Astoria more than a thousand guests were served with turkey dinners. Among the diners was a party of 250 members of the Graduate Club of Teachers College, Columbia University.

Arthur L. Lee, manager of the McAlpin and Martinique, invited all employes of those two hostelries to have their Thanksgiving dinners with their families. Four and a half tons of turkeys were required by these two hotels. The other hotels and all the restaurants reported that their Thanksgiving patronage had been unusually heavy.

New Thanksgiving Day Record Set at Shore Resort.

Special to The New York Times.

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., Nov. 30.—A new high record for Thanksgiving travel to the shore was established today when more than 25,000 holiday visitors joined the throngs on the Boardwalk, many of whom have been guests at beach front and side avenue hotels for many days. Leading hotels declared that the influx was 10 to 16 per cent. greater than the number entertained last year.

A gentle breeze, with just enough tang to make walking briskly a pleasure, was tempered by a surprisingly warm sun. The Boardwalk presented a regular fashion promenade, with beautiful furs and the latest creations in Fall and Winter gowns and millinery on display.

MRS. HARDING AT TABLE.

Taken in Wheel Chair to White House Thanksgiving Dinner.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 30.—This was a day of personal as well as traditional thanksgiving at the White House, Mrs. Harding having dinner in the dining room for the first time since she became critically ill in the latter part of August. Attorney General Daugherty was President and Mrs. Harding's only guest for the dinner.

Mrs. Harding's condition, it was learned, has shown excellent progress in the last two weeks, and she is permitted by her physicians to walk about her room. She went to dinner today, however, in a wheel chair.

THANKSGIVING DAY PRAISED BY THE POPE

For First Time in Church's History He Joins in Celebration in Rome.

ROME, Nov. 30 (Associated Press).—For the first time in the history of the Catholic Church the Pope joined in an American national festival when he insisted this evening on receiving the students of the American College and addressed them on Thanksgiving Day.

The students, numbering 180, were accompanied to the audience chamber by Cardinal Bisleti, their protector, as well as by the Rector and Vice Rector of the college. In his address the Pope said:

"National thanksgiving! It is a noble idea on the part of your people—choosing the day for prayer. Men who lack prayer lack one of the essentials of life. Your country must indeed be blessed by Almighty God.

"It is consoling to see the heads of nations fixing days for the people to pray to and thank God for blessings received. Nations doing this cannot but prosper materially and spiritually. I am with you, with your people, on the day of Thanksgiving. We are praying together."

In accepting an offering of 1,200 lire from the students and their superiors, he thanked them "for the help you have given me for the suffering Russians, mown down by pestilence, famine and misery."

The Pope said that, through the American students, he wished to congratulate the entire American people and express his gratitude for the generosity they had shown on every occasion of need.

The Pontiff ended the reception by imparting the Apostolic benediction to the students and their superiors and extending it to the American people.

The American college celebrated the day with a dinner, which was attended by Cardinal Bisleti and Americans of various ecclesiastical orders. Many American families also gave dinners. Despite the absence of Ambassador Child in Lausanne, Chargé d'Affaires Gunther and Mrs. Gunther tendered a reception to the entire American colony at the Embassy.

HIRES HALL TO FEED TWO GENERATIONS

"Gramp" Anderson of Orange, Mass., Celebrates With 35 Children and Grandchildren.

ORANGE, Mass., Nov. 30.—To insure room for all of his progeny, "Gramp" Henry D. Anderson today hired the large hall in the Universalist Church in which to serve his Thanksgiving dinner for his children and his great-grandchildren to the number of 35.

Not satisfied with having made provision for plenty of room, "Gramp," in spite of his 79 years, insisted on being chef and general overseer, and repeatedly upset the schedule of his waiters by dashing out with food when he saw from his headquarters in the kitchen that the plate of one of his guests was lacking one of the many items listed on the menu.

The Anderson family has gathered every Thanksgiving in the old homesteam, but "Gramp" decided this year that in view of increases since last year it would be necessary to hire a hall.

STREET FROLIC IN BRONX.

Hundreds in Fancy Costumes Also Parade in Harlem.

Hundreds garbed in fantastic, grotesque, humorous and "beach costumes" paraded the principal streets of Harlem and the Bronx last night, while thousands applauded.

There were clowns, devils, beggars, tramps, cowpunchers, sailors, soldiers, bathing girls, fencing girls, chorus girls and—they called themselves—"classical dancers," with hundreds of characters both historic and humorous depicted by the frolickers. From 8 o'clock until midnight they paraded over Willis Avenue from 149th Street to 143d Street between a lane of enthusiastic onlookers.

The bathing girls had the greatest following. There were two, and as they passed the hub of the Bronx, the rush to see "Neptune's daughters" temporarily blocked traffic. A parader in a convict's suit won applause as he wheeled himself down the street in what appeared to be a replica of an electric chair.

Several "cops" caused merriment by the manner in which they handled a "tramp" across whose bosom was a placard, "Volstead's Friend." Two favorites were a "Salvation Army lass" and a "doughboy" with a bag of doughnuts.

HOLIDAY BEGGARS FEWER.

White Youngsters Use Charcoal—Negroes Whiten With Talcum.

Thanksgiving begging by children was greatly reduced yesterday by the vigilance of the police, who warned the children last week in orders issued from Police Headquarters that mendicancy would not be tolerated. Admonitions to the school children before they were dismissed from their classes on Wednesday also had a good effect. Nevertheless, the little beggars, with ragged trousers and faces smudged with charcoal, palms outstretched, were much in evidence near subway stations and other crowded spots.

Three youngsters who appeared in Times Square early in the evening and took their stand near the entrance of a restaurant blocked sidewalk traffic when they engaged in a fight over disputed gains. The controversy ended abruptly when a policeman appeared. As usual, the white children blacked their faces while the negro youngsters, particularly in Harlem, whitened their faces with talcum.

FRANCE OFFICIALLY OBSERVES HOLIDAY

HERRICK PRAISES FRENCH

Legion and American Colony Celebrate—Fletcher Gives Ball in Brussels—Festivities in Madrid.

PARIS, Nov. 30 (Associated Press).—Paris, or at least a considerable part of it, observed Thanksgiving Day in the real American manner. After attending special church services, the members of the American colony returned to their homes where old-fashioned thanksgiving dinners awaited them and in the hotels the French chefs worked overtime providing turkey, cranberry sauce and plum pudding for the hundreds of visitors.

Probably the most unusual feature of the day was a special thanksgiving mass at the French Church of the Holy Trinity, arranged under the personal direction of Archbishop Dubois as a formal expression of the friendship of France for America.

This was the first time the French Church has recognized the American holiday and the French Government joined in the recognition, with its highest official, President Millerand, as its representative. Hundreds of French citizens attended as well as a large number of Americans of all creeds.

Abbé Patrick Flynn, well known in the United States, gave an address in both English and French in which he said France owed the deepest gratitude to America and it was fitting that she should join in her day of thanksgiving.

"We feel we have a real friend in America," he said, "and I hope we never shall cease to show our gratitude and appreciation of this precious friendship."

The largest American service was at the American Church, where Ambassador Herrick delivered the sermon, Consul General Thackara read President Harding's proclamation and the congregation which included the Embassy and Consular Staffs and the members of the American colony, sang the National Anthem.

The foot of the altar was piled high with turkeys, puddings, cranberries, figs, dates and all the other good things of Thanksgiving, contributed by the members for distribution to needy Americans.

In his address Ambassador Herrick said:

"Among the things for which we are thankful is the spirit of courage and love shown in the quiet, everyday work of the average man and woman who constitute the foundation of society. The work over, the man in the street or the man in the field is not troubled with jangled nerves or disturbed amidst ruinous and international entanglements, but moves serenely along in his workaday world.

"This courage of the commonplace is nowhere more finely shown than in the devastated Departments of Northeastern France. I have been deeply impressed with the cheerfulness I have seen there. The pessimism of the thinkers, of the city dwellers, finds no place in the devastated regions, which are being slowly restored by France's courage. During my visits there I have been reminded of the Topeka or Wichita, Kan., of the early '70s, which were types of the Western cities then springing up overnight. I saw in Lens, Ypres and Soissons and in all that broken region of the Old World, the same primitive virtues as in our own winning West."

The American students in the Latin Quarter did not forget the day, and turkeys with all the fixings appeared for the first time since the war in a dozen or more of the little restaurants of the Quarter.

At the Thanksgiving dinner of the American Legion tonight Ambassador Herrick urged all the members to take Marshal Foch as their model throughout life.

"If you take him as your model you will never go astray from the field of public duty and personal sacrifice so nobly set forth in the preamble of your Constitution," said the Ambassador.

"I know the fine things which the Legion has set out to accomplish," he continued. "I know how much you have already achieved in difficult days. I wish you godspeed on your journey, and when you arrive at unmarked crossroads, and doubt should arise as to the right direction to take, ask yourselves which path would Marshal Foch follow, and the answer will clear your doubts or strengthen your decision."

Marshal Foch was present. The Legion dinner and dance were attended by several hundred ex-service men and a large number from the American colony.

BRUSSELS, Nov. 30 (Associated Press).—A ball given by Ambassador Fletcher, to which the American colony in Brussels and Antwerp were invited, marked the celebration of Thanksgiving Day in this city. The affair was preceded by a dinner given by the American Club, at which Ambassador Fletcher presided.

MADRID, Nov. 30.—Cyrus E. Woods, the American Ambassador; Consul Merrill and the entire American colony today held Thanksgiving festivities in the Embassy.

AMERICAN FEAST IN HOLLAND.

By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

THE HAGUE, Nov. 30.—A brilliant Thanksgiving banquet was held today in Rotterdam, attended by more than 100 Americans. It was the first Thanksgiving celebration held in Holland since the war.

Howard Webster Adams, commercial attaché of the American legation, who is President of the American Club in Holland, delivered the address. He spoke of the part played by Holland in laying the foundation of the American Commonwealth, in the historic association of the Pilgrim Fathers with Holland before they started from Leyden and Delfshaven early in the seventeenth century.

Those present included Louis Sussdorf, American Chargé d'Affaires at The Hague; George Merrill, Secretary of the Legation; George Anderson, American Consul General at Rotterdam; Frank B. Mahan, Consul at Amsterdam; Horace Freeveld, port representative of the United States Shipping Board at Rotterdam; the staff of the Consulates and a number of American business men and their wives.

Since the war the commercial intercourse of America with Holland has greatly increased owing to the opening of the cotton market at Rotterdam and the sale of steel, oil and other American products.

"MOVIES" AT SING SING.

Gigli Unable to Appear, Picture Is Thanksgiving Entertainment.

Special to The New York Times.

OSSINING, Nov. 30.—Beniamino Gigli, the grand opera singer, disappointed the prisoners by canceling his engagement to sing at Sing Sing Prison today, as the only Thanksgiving entertainment the inmates had was a motion picture play. Warden Lewis E. Lawes was informed that Gigli would be unable to appear at the prison because he had to sing in the Metropolitan Opera House in the evening.

The Mutual Welfare League's entertainment committee then got films showing Jackie Coogan in "Oliver Twist."

The prison menu consisted of roast chicken, mashed potatoes and sweet potatoes, celery, cranberry, mince pie, cranberry sauce, milk, coffee and cheese. There were more than 2,200 time-servers and about seven condemned murderers in the prison who enjoyed the special

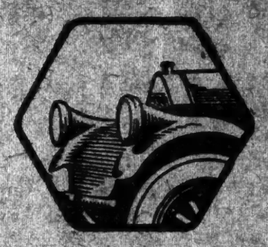
PIERCE



Perhaps the most significant fact about the present Pierce-Arrow is the high esteem in which it is held by women of taste and discernment.

The instinctive feminine appreciation for the finer things of life is instantly apparent wherever a Pierce-Arrow appears. Here is a car which seems to satisfy completely woman's desire for the same standard of perfection in motoring which she enjoys in other phases of her daily life.

The appeal of smartness, with good taste; of luxury, without ostentation, is particularly evident in the Pierce-Arrow enclosed models. A personal examination of these beautiful cars will reveal an unexpected degree of refinement in details. To the masculine eye these may seem inconsequential, but they are judged in the light of their true importance by women of discrimination. A telephone call will bring a car to your door.

"Delivery" is the camel in the business tent

Profits are being crowded out—Electric trucks will bring them back

WHEREVER business executives get together the high cost of delivery comes up for discussion. It is out of all proportion to volume and profits. In many businesses using horses or gas trucks on city routes, delivery is costing from 18c to 25c out of every dollar received, and sometimes as much as 30c. Laundries using horses or gas trucks on these routes are spending 20c to 30c. Bakers are spending 18c to 25c. Ice cream makers, 20c to 25c, and sometimes 30c. Milk delivery is costing 25c out of every dollar taken in. These figures include interest, depreciation and maintenance on vehicles, stables or garages, operating costs, insurance, drivers' salaries, etc.

Analysis shows that the variation in delivery costs is due largely to the method used—horses, gas trucks or electric trucks. In nearly every case it has been found possible to make substantial savings—20% to 35% and more—just by using the right vehicle on each route.

The yearly saving effected by the use of electric trucks on the frequent-stop or short-haul routes is often equivalent to 2%, 3%—or more—of the user's gross business for the year. If you make 8% to 10% profit on your gross business, this electric truck saving means increasing your profits by 20%, 30% or more. Or the saving makes it possible to render better service or give greater value at the same prices you are now charging.

Perhaps you are skeptical? But skeptical or not, isn't it worth while to find out for sure?

Some business men assume their delivery is being handled at the lowest possible cost—they don't keep complete segregated delivery costs. But why guess when analysis is so easy and the possible saving so great? By using the Cost Analysis form shown here, you can quickly find out your total delivery costs. Then we will set up against your figures the costs of electric truck delivery—and you can see just what saving can be effected on your routes.

Ward Electric Trucks on short-haul or frequent-stop routes cost 20% to 35% less to operate and maintain than any other type of delivery.

Ward Electrics are built to last more than 10 years and to run almost as cheaply in the 12th or 15th year as in the first or second year. They can be safely depreciated at 10% a year. Gas truck life averages only 5 years and the cheap light gas trucks much less than 5 years on frequent-stop and short-haul routes. You must depreciate gas trucks at 20% to 33⅓% a year to be safe. Horses average only 5 to 6 years on busy routes—depreciation at 20%.

Ward Electrics operate at limited speeds—about twice the speed of horses and as fast as sane driving, city traffic conditions, and frequent delivery stops permit. This prevents joy riding, reckless driving, and the high cost of excessive speed—did you know that tires and many vital parts of a gas truck cost nearly four times as much at 25 to 30 miles an hour as at 12 to 14 miles an hour?

Insurance companies, which base their rates on accumulated statistics and the law of averages, have made preferential rates on electric trucks—25% lower rates for liability, collision, fire and theft insurance than on gas trucks.

Repairs on Ward Electric Trucks are rarely necessary and quickly made. It is unusual for these trucks to be out of service half as many days as gas trucks, including even revarnishing.

Tires on Ward Electric models most used for city delivery often go 12,000 to 15,000 miles. Users repeatedly report tire costs on light models at less than 1c a car mile or about ¼c per tire mile. This is far less than the cost of horseshoes for a single horse for the same work.

Ward Electrics are clean—no odor, no dirt, no fire risk. They are in keeping with your product or your service. Some users store and charge their Ward Electrics right at the loading platform, doing away with stables or garages—another economy.

Ward Electrics are the acme of simplicity—the fewest possible moving parts. There is no complicated, expensive engine. The motive power is furnished by storage batteries—Edison, Exide, K-W or Philadelphia—at about half the fuel or feed cost of gas trucks or horses doing similar work.

Ward Electrics are standard construction—Sheldon Locomotive Axles, Spicer Universal Joints, Schwartz Artillery Wheels, Firestone or other well-known tires, General Electric Motor, etc. They are worm-driven—the drive that has won recognition to the point where it is now used on 72% of all motor trucks built.

Wards are such sturdy trucks that our 1250 lb. chassis, for instance, is often taken for a ton-chassis when compared with other trucks.

They cost less to maintain and operate than any other trucks of equal size and capacity. Require minimum power consumption per average hour of travel, winter and summer. When they come to a stop in traffic or in delivery there is no engine left running—this saves fuel and prevents wear and tear; yet they start quickly and get away better than a gas truck—no gear shifting.

In the baking industry, where the price of the product is low and the margin of profit small, Ward Electric Trucks lead hands down—more than all other electrics combined and almost five times as many Ward Electrics as the leading line of gas trucks.

In the laundry industry the same thing is true.

In milk delivery, Ward Electrics have won even against horses that knew the routes. In stop-watch tests, they have saved 1¾ hours per day on long routes and at least 15 minutes on each short trip, enabling drivers to take care of much more work. They have cut the cost of house-to-house milk delivery—the only trucks that have successfully and economically displaced milk-men's horses.

Ice cream companies, department-stores, confectioners, grocers and others, using Ward Electrics, testify to their economy and efficiency. The J. Burns Baking Company of Lincoln, Nebraska, say Ward Electrics have saved them nearly 50%. Mr. McClellan, of the Chalmette Laundry Company, says their 47 Ward Electrics have saved them $50,000 compared with their former delivery. The Pilgrim Laundry Company, of Brooklyn, having completely eliminated horses from their city routes, are using 38 Ward Electrics and their delivery costs are about 25% less than laundries using horses and gas trucks.

If your delivery system includes either frequent-stop or short-haul city routes—from 2 miles up to 35, 45 or 50 miles—and you haven't Ward Electrics, you haven't economy at all. If your business volume is good but your overhead is too high—with profits less than they should be—look into Ward Electrics to cut your delivery costs and increase your profits.

Have you hesitated to buy electric trucks because of the initial investment? Fill in the Cost Analysis form shown here, let us set up against your figures the Ward Electric costs, including everything, and we can demonstrate to you that even had you got your original stable of horses or fleet of gas trucks for nothing, you could not afford to operate them on frequent-stop routes in comparison with Ward Electrics. These efficient trucks are so very much more economical to operate that they quickly wipe out the difference in first cost and from then on they pile up profits for you. The evidence is so astounding that even if you hadn't the ready capital it would pay you to borrow and buy.

75% of our business is repeat orders.

We have been in business 20 years. Our experience enables us to say to you that, based on your own description of your routes (number of stops, loads, roads, grades, etc.), we will tell you what Ward Electrics will do. If they do not do the work that we will guarantee them to, they belong to us, not to you—money back.

Yes, we have books that tell about Ward Electrics from both the dollar-and-cents point of view and the mechanical side. You can send for them if you want.

But somewhere in your organization is a man whose mind is on cutting the cost of doing business. He may be General Manager, Treasurer, or even President. It will pay him to sit down with us and get to the bottom of this problem. You can get a quick perspective on the probable saving by figuring out what 2% to 8% of your gross sales would be, if you are in a business such as the laundering, dairy, bakery, ice cream, ice, coal, bottling, etc. We will match our time against yours without obligation. Our factory and our offices are both right here at your door. Telephone or write us today.

NEW YORK, FRIDAY, DEC. 1, 1922.

A THIRD PARTY "IN BEING."

Admiral MAHAN made the world familiar with "a fleet in being." It was a menace which put naval strategists to their trumps. It might mean an immediate offensive, but the threat of one was always existent. Apparently, it is this lesson from naval history that is prompting the organizers of today's conference in Washington. Admiral LA FOLLETTE proposes to have a third party in being. It may not put out into the stormy political sea at once, but the tactical scheme is obviously to have it ready to sail, if need be, in 1924.

Already the effect of the manoeuvre is visible. Admiral LODGE has set about collecting a little squadron of his own among the seagoing farmers of the Senate, and the Lords of the Admiralty in the Administration are taking measures to assemble a fleet too powerful for the La Follette ships to dare to attack. The result of this is to compel Admiral LA FOLLETTE to go into a secret council of war with his brother officers. It would never do to let the public know of the profound strategic plans which are being worked out for the mobilization and the destructive operation of the third party in being.

THE BATTERED SUBSIDY.

The victory of the Administration in getting the Ship Subsidy bill through the House is almost more disastrous than would have been a defeat. The bill itself had to be torn to pieces to be passed at all, and even so the Republican majority was cut almost to the vanishing point. No less than sixty-nine members of President HARDING's party refused to vote for the bill which he had so strongly urged, and the final majority for it was only twenty-four. The measure thus goes to the Senate with the worst of omens. In the House it split the Republicans and developed such opposition that the proponents of the bill were forced to consent to sweeping changes in it. Its fate in the Senate is much more problematic than it was before its unfortunate experience in the House of Representatives.

Advocates of a shipping subsidy admit that the bill was so emasculated by the House that it remains of little practical value. They hope, of course, that the Senate will put back the clauses stricken out by the House, and restore its amendments. But if this is done, and by any chance the measure gets through the Senate and is sent back to the House, what chance is there that the Representatives will submit to be overridden? Make the vital matter of Congressional control of the yearly appropriation for a subsidy. The Framers of the bill had an ingenious device to avoid this control. They proposed the creation of a revolving fund of $125,000,000, out of which the subsidies should be paid without having to ask the consent of Congress. But the House would have none of this. It voted to amend the bill so as to compel an annual appropriation by Congress, revolving fund or no revolving fund. Now, as the plan is for shipping companies to make contracts with the Government extending over a period of years, what assurance can they have that they will get their money? The probability is strong that the very next Congress will refuse to vote it to them. So it looks ahead at all it will be upon a highly contingent. In that there will be no appeal to business investors.

Thus the financial aspects of the bill thus thrown into grave doubt, political effects become every day more serious. Congress a bill that divides Republicans and Democrats, and that need something to bring them together, rather than a measure to split their factions further asunder. Why risk the failure of the whole short session of Congress by demanding that the Senate take up a bill which will surely have to face a determined filibuster led by Republicans? If the President has so far been moved in this matter mainly by a desire to keep promises made in the name of his party, he may now conclude that he has done his full duty. The steps already taken at his request have had sufficiently unhappy consequences without putting a further strain upon the loyalty and unity of his party.

REAFFIRMING AT LAUSANNE.

Ambassador CHILD, chief of our observers at Lausanne, takes occasion to explain that his observations have not led and will not lead to the formation of a Russo-Turco-American bloc. He says that we have merely reaffirmed our traditional position. As stated, this seems to be that we want to share any melons that may be cut, without doing any of the work. Lord CURZON values our support so much that he threw away the San Remo agreement the other day and announced that England stood for the open door in the Mosul oil fields. Since it is not yet certain that England's title to those fields will be confirmed by the conference, this was obviously a bid for American favor.

Undoubtedly ISMET Pasha has made about the same proposal from the Turkish side. Turkey's interest in the open door is as keen as ours. Turkey has no friend at the conference but Russia; and the three great Powers of Western Europe are still trying to keep Russia out of everything but the negotiations on the Straits. Our merely material interests at this conference coincide, in the main, with those of Russia and Turkey. There are serious moral objections to standing with them, and it would take a good deal of explaining to the churches that have tried to get the State Department to do something for the Christian minorities.

The Western European Powers would probably bid high to get America away from the Turkish side. CURZON's bid has already been made. The others will probably be willing to support our demand for the open door; will perhaps even promise to hold it open for us. But the open door means an end to the hopes each nation has entertained of making its own private deal with the Turks to its own great advantage. Consequently we can expect this support from England, France and Italy only under pressure.

If Mr. CHILD means what he says, we have thrown away a useful weapon. We can reaffirm our traditional position till we are blue in the face without getting anything, unless we are able to threaten the great Powers with effective opposition to their plans. Of course, it may be that the State Department is not thinking about any such selfish and worldly matters at all. Our observers may have been instructed to spread Thanksgiving cheer and let who will be clever. The plain fact is that we have heard a good deal since the conference started about American rights, but nothing about any intention on the part of America to help other people get their rights.

HAIG'S WORK IN FRANCE.

Field Marshal HAIG's resolve to bequeath his military papers shedding light on the campaign in France to the British Museum for use after his death seems to have undergone modification. He must have been advised to sanction the publication of "Sir Douglas Haig's Command" and even to allow the authors, Lieut. Col. J. H. BORASTON, his military secretary, and G. A. B. DEWAR, editor of The Nineteenth Century, access to his memoranda of the war, for the book, just out in London, is frankly a tribute to the generalship of HAIG and an answer to critics and enemies who have decried his abilities and minimized his services in the field. It would be going too far to say that there was ever a feud between the British Commander-in-Chief in France and Premier LLOYD GEORGE, but one has only to read the soldier's assertion in his Cambrai dispatch that he had asked in vain for reinforcements, and to remember the reports that HAIG was to be removed, to understand that there was a lack of harmony between them. It is not surprising, then, that the editor and the secretary say, in defending the reputation of the Commander-in-Chief, that the statesman knew next to nothing about military operations, and that when he intervened he never knew where to draw the line. He is charged with spurring on NIVELLE "to a headstrong course which ended in disaster." It is no secret that Sir DOUGLAS HAIG had no faith in General NIVELLE's grandiose offensive.

The authors maintain that the soldier, and not the statesman, should have the credit for bringing about unified command. They aver that HAIG welcomed the appointment of FOCH. There can be no doubt that both PÉTAIN and HAIG earnestly preferred it to any arrangement that subordinated the allied commanders to the vagaries of politicians. Mr. LLOYD GEORGE, with his weakness for strategic offensives on other fronts, especially in the Near East, was anathema to them. There is reason to believe that the British Generals and to impose his ideas of warfare upon them.

A striking feature of the book on HAIG's campaigns is the attempt to show that, in spite of unified command, he sometimes originated strategy that has been attributed to Marshal FOCH and prevailed upon his chief to adopt it. Thus, to take one instance, it is said that HAIG in August, 1918, convinced FOCH that the latter's plan to have the British attack the Roye-Chaulnes position would be a useless sacrifice of life, and offered the alternative of striking north of Arras, which FOCH accepted. According to the authors, HAIG proved his case by "further reconnoissances." Of the Battle of Amiens (Aug. 8, 1918), the authors say that it was "the first of the great and decisive series of British operations, all of which were conceived and worked out by British leadership." It had been previously intimated that FOCH was a convert to HAIG's proposal to launch the British Army against the Hindenburg line in an attempt to break it on a wide front. FOCH, speaking over the body of the unknown British soldier at Boulogne, declared that "the annals of history tell no more glorious story than that of those 110 days of ceaseless offensive which was waged by the British Army and brought the war to a close."

It was already known that the Government at home did not approve of HAIG's "brilliant but massive scheme of operations," dreading the casualty list and final failure. "I was convinced," HAIG has said in one of his dispatches, "that the British attack was the essential part of the general scheme, and that the moment was favorable. Accordingly, I decided to proceed with the attack." Here one notes a resemblance to the resoluteness of GRANT. BUCHAN in his "History of the Great War" sets down that FOCH was doubtful of HAIG's success, and that the British Government was cool to the plan. The authors assert that HAIG pocketed a warning message and went ahead. They say that early in September FOCH adopted a proposal by HAIG that "the whole allied advance should be of a converging or concentric character, and not on eccentric lines, as previously."

If half of what the friendly authors of this book submit is true, justice has not been done Field Marshal HAIG. But he chose the part of reticence. JOFFRE and FOCH have also refused to write or talk. Now apparently there must be a change for the sake of reputations—a flow of memoirs over the broken dam. The British Commander-in-Chief seems to be under a special obligation either to sustain or reprove the authors of the challenging book upon his work in France.

NO RAILWAY LEGISLATION.

The farm bloc has listed eleven important things which this Congress "must" do. It is humanly certain this Congress will not do them, because it is preoccupied with the appropriation bills and contentious topics which have priority. First on the bloc's list is retaliation on the railways. But Senator CUMMINS has decided not to press his amending bill, and even the most light-hearted radicals admit that nothing can be done this session. The farmers are enduring great losses which have caused them to suffer from a delusion of persecution. No earthly force could have kept the farmers' prices up when the foreign consumers of their products stopped buying because they were unable to pay. This is the origin and sole basis of the farmers' delusion about deflation. In retaliation the farmers plan to repeal the miscalled "guarantee" clauses of the Transportation act and to compel a reduction of rates on their products. In that manner the farmers will prosper, although the railways and the country may suffer. It is a curious idea that prosperity can come to anybody from a policy of destruction to others.

There are few spokesmen for the railways in Congress or outside. For that reason there was nobody to challenge Senator CAPPER's misstatements about the prosperity of the railways, derived from rates which are "consuming our farmers" and which amount to a subsidy of a billion a year to the railways. The Senate listened to a short list of railways which are paying high dividends on their shares without any one replying that the railways are entitled to earn a reasonable profit on their investment, and that the "guarantee" had never been earned, or hardly more than half earned, over the time of its existence. The Senator said that the railways were doing the greatest business in their history at an increase of rates of 78 per cent. a ton for freight and 60 per cent. for passengers. No one remarked that this was a great exaggeration and that the increases of rates were offset by increases of costs, some compulsory by law and others by economics.

Senator RANSDELL challenged the right of Senator CAPPER to deliver the vote of the bloc on all subjects. A split in the bloc would be more beneficial to the railways than any array of facts to show that the destruction of the earning power of the railways is more harmful to all interests than the reduction of rates is helpful to them. If the railways had the surpluses of the industrials, there would be a railway service which would have swollen profits so that the reduction of rates would make no appreciable difference to any shipper. Meanwhile the railways are asking for a trade which has been accustomed to deliver grain from our innermost primary markets to foreign consumers at a charge of one cent per bushel. Mr. JULIUS H. BARNES said that there are 4,000,000,000 bushels of grain in our markets which are worth ten cents less than a proper relation to foreign prices, a loss of $400,000,000, because the railways are unable to deliver it. And the farmers think the remedy is further to cripple the railways!

TWO RESOLUTIONS.

It is always improving to watch a Conscript Father in his moments of high creative activity. Two opportunities for such observation were given last week. Senator BALL of Delaware introduced a joint resolution "providing funds for the maintenance of public order and the protection of life and property during the convention of the Imperial Council of the Mystic Shrine, in the District of Columbia June 5, 6 and 7, 1923, and for other purposes." The resolution would appropriate $50,000 "or so much thereof as may be necessary." The Mystic Shriners are highly respectable, well-behaved and prosperous citizens. The crowd that their visit is expected to attract will hardly be equal to that of an old-fashioned Inauguration multitude. Some Senators have shown themselves chary about appropriations even for Inauguration festivities. Isn't the City of Washington big enough and governed efficiently enough by the Commissioners of the District of Columbia to keep order without extra dole from the United States?

Washington is a good place to visit, but associations of citizens may feel a little shy about going there if the much-enduring Federal milch cow has to be specially milked in consequence. To be sure, the District is the child of the United States, but is pretty well grown. There are times when its inhabitants might dip into their own pockets rather than those of the taxpayers in general; and, while $50,000 is a modest sum, many a mickle makes a muckle. Senator CARAWAY of Arkansas mulcts the taxpayers only for the cost of printing his concurrent resolution, in which, after a procession of nine whereases, he comes to a resolution in three articles. Resolved that it is "the sense of the Senate"—a phrase not without ironical implications—that all members of the present Congress defeated at the November elections shouldn't vote save on routine legislation; "that Chairmen of committees not in sympathy with the people's wishes as expressed at the polls and which have an important effect on legislation, resign * * * so that their places may be filled by those who are known to be willing to carry into legislative effect the mandate of the people"; that "the Senate of the United States reaffirm their readiness to bow to the people's will, when expressed at the polls, and declare that the vote of want of confidence in the leaders which has been registered should not be disregarded."

All this must be regarded as Mr. CARAWAY's little joke, deriding his Republican colleagues and putting forth a deliciously absurd view of the constitutional duties of members of Congress. Even if his theory were true, what "popular mandate" was expressed? A highly mixed one, at the best, full of miscellaneous and local and personal discontents and preferences. Nobody can tell what "the will of the people" is. Apparently, the balance of power in the next Congress will be held by Mr. LA FOLLETTE's coterie, which may or may not succeed in expressing the will of the people, or many of the people, of a few States. Mr. CARAWAY's resolution was appropriately referred to the Committee on Agriculture and Forestry. It belongs to the latter department. It is a wild-goose chase. Mr. CARAWAY has had his jest. That is his happiness, and the people to whom he bows will have the happiness of footing the bill for printing it.

TAX FACTS AND TAX HOPES.

A few days ago we had the facts about the internal tax collections for the fiscal year ended with last June, before the Treasury had felt the business reaction. The record shows a decrease of $1,397,905,978. Now we have the facts about the tax collections for the new fiscal year beginning with last June. For October alone the decrease is $42,150,237. For four months the decrease is $468,205,414. Both years show the principal decreases in the taxes which reflect business conditions—the income and excess profits taxes. When business is declining it is futile to increase taxes in the hope of increasing receipts from the source which is dried up by the tax itself. In recent years there have been distinct signs of flight of investment money into the tax-exempt refuge. Now the signs are different. Business money is shrinking now, the sort of money which seeks profits above the investment rate and avoids investment except temporarily. There are now $81,000,000,000 of public bonds subject to exemption in such varying degrees that the old simplicity of the investment market has disappeared. The Treasury still has a few billions of exempts to offer at the very time that the Administration condemns exemption.

It is useful to contrast these tax facts with tax hopes. About a month ago a Treasury official estimated a reduction of Treasury expenditures by $500,000,000 from last year. Whatever the reduction of expenditures may be, it will be less than the realized reduction of tax receipts. But better times lie ahead, in the opinion of the estimators. The tax receipts decreasing in the current year will increase in the fiscal year 1923-4, for which Congress must soon prepare the budget. Then the Treasury hopes to receive an increase of $100,000,000 from the new tariff, a maximum customs record of $445,000,000. The Budget Director is reported as increasing sundry items, in reliance upon an increase of revenue of $250,000,000. Ordinary vision hardly runs into 1924. Allowing the expected increases, there remains a gap before the realized reduction of receipts can be covered. The Treasury and the Budget Director are doing their best, and are not to be reproached for their hopes. But tax bills cannot be paid without money, and unrealized hope maketh the heart sick.

PAN-ARABIA.

Prince HABIB LOTFALLAH, who is on his way here as Minister from the Hedjaz, makes some remarks about the future of the Arab State which are likely to cause shivers in London as well as in Paris. "We are setting up one kingdom under King HUSSEIN," which extends from the Taurus Mountains to Persia, and takes in all Arabia as well. This is sad news to European diplomats who thought they were going to use the Arabs for their own purposes. The territory takes in all Arabia; King HUSSEIN of the Hedjaz rules only a part of Arabia. It takes in Syria, held by the French; Palestine, which has been promised government by a sort of British-Jewish dyarchy; Mosul, now in dispute at the Lausanne conference—all this as well as Transjordania and Irak, now ruled by HUSSEIN's sons, ABDULLAH and FEISAL; not to mention the hot sands of the desert, where there are chiefs who hate HUSSEIN and all his tribe.

The British diplomats who conjured up the Arab djinn seem to have rubbed the magic ring once too often. Of course, these dreams are still dreams. So long as most of the British air fleets are at Bagdad and not at Dover, FEISAL will have to keep within bounds. If anybody takes Syria away from the French, it is more likely to be the Turks than the Arabs. Still, the Arabs can make a good deal of trouble, and much of it will be due to the fact that the British elected to back HUSSEIN and his family to the exclusion of other Arabs. A few years ago HUSSEIN was only a local chief; but he happened to control Mecca, and consequently got rich out of the Moslem pilgrims. However, HUSSEIN is now a King. An incautious British official addressed him in that style by way of flattery, early in the war, and HUSSEIN not only took it seriously, but persuaded the British to provide a kingdom for him and others for his sons.

FEISAL, most distinguished of these sons, set himself up in Damascus. The French soon ran him out, so FEISAL got Mesopotamia as a consolation prize. Apparently all Arabs looked alike to Downing Street. The Mesopotamians are Arabs, or at least speak Arabic; so they ought to be flattered at getting such a distinguished Arab for a King. FEISAL was put on his throne after some local dignitaries had been arrested and carted off to Ceylon; but there is continual trouble in Mesopotamia. Native leaders work against FEISAL and the English; FEISAL works with the English to hold his job; but first of all he is for FEISAL, the Pan-Arab State and the dynasty which the English have called the House of Mecca, in pious imitation of their own royal family.

If the British have bitten off more than they can chew, things are none too easy for the House of Mecca. There is a gentleman in Central Arabia named IBN SAUD. His family has a hereditary feud with the Mecca dynasty. Sometimes one side wins, sometimes the other; but it is plausibly suspected that IBN SAUD could run HUSSEIN out of Mecca in a standup fight. When HUSSEIN's sons became Kings in Moab and Chaldea, however, IBN SAUD was surrounded. Naturally, he was restive. The British are keeping him quiet by an annual payment of $300,000, but there seems to be some fear that the French may overbid them at any moment, in which case British schemes and Meccan schemes might get a serious setback. "Arabia for the Arabs" is an attractive program, but there are other Arabs besides the family of Mecca who want to have their say about it.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

An Illinois Law Is Repealed.

As there is no legal, but only a moral, responsibility on a State Governor in regard to his use of the pardoning power, it is not surprising that some Governors occasionally excite comment, sometimes surprised and sometimes indignant, by the way in which they exercise the practically unlimited discretion which they have in this matter. Latest opportunity for the display of one or the other of these emotions—which one depending largely on the commentator's opinions and temperament—is provided by Governor LEN SMALL of Illinois.

He has seen fit to release from prison, and thereby restore to all the privileges of citizenship, including that of helping to make laws and to vote, sixteen men who had little more than begun to serve sentences of considerable length — sentences imposed by the courts of Illinois. They had been convicted after careful trial of violating the Illinois Anti-Syndicalist act. None of them had lacked the services of able counsel, and one of them was possessed of sufficient wealth to make certain that there was utilized in his defense all of those supposedly greater advantages which a rich man accused of crime has over a poor man.

Governor SMALL, in explaining these pardons, does not impugn the fairness of the trials; he goes further and impugns the law the sixteen were charged with breaking, and he practically repeals it. These men, he says "are not criminals." But they are, for the very essence of criminality is the breaking of law, and that they did break the law he does not deny, though he cites a dissenting and unprevailing opinion as to the constitutionality of the Anti-Syndicalist law, filed by Justice CARTER when it was upheld by the Supreme Court.

What the Governor did, therefore, was to set his own judgment against that of the courts, and to proclaim that as he saw no wrong in what the men did he decided to release them.

In "Red" circles and out of them, all through the country, these pardons will be discussed, chiefly, perhaps, because one of the hurriedly liberated prisoners is that rarity among the more extreme radicals, a rich man. WILLIAM BROSS LLOYD claims to be a Communist and to desire the replacement of our industrial and governmental systems by that which has just been tried in Russia and found impracticable by supporters both powerful and devoted.

Probably, in spite of the inconsistency he shows by his retention of a fortune which "by definition" he regards as not rightly his, the communism is sincere. Anyhow, for its sake, he has been to much trouble and some hardship, and he is yet to say the first word of repentance or recantation.

Cynics will declare, probably, that if LLOYD had not been rich the other fifteen prisoners would still be behind bars—that they, too, had to be released to make his liberation but one of many and so not as simply explicable as it otherwise might have been. Cynics, however, are usually wrong, and the chances are that they are wrong in entertaining a suspicion so unkind.

What the radical press of the country will have to say about these pardons remains to be seen. That it will not be grateful for them can be set down as certain, for it is never grateful for anything done under the capitalistic régime. As likely as not it will take Governor SMALL's action as an attempt to postpone the revolution so confidently promised by showing what can be done for "Reds" with the laws as they are and with men in office who were elected to office and retained in it under those laws. At least it cannot keep on insisting that there is no "justice" for members of a dissenting minority.

To Be Pondered Well by New Yorkers.

JAMES COUZENS, the newly appointed Senator from Michigan, has been talking about what he thinks the certainty that soon all New York's lines of urban transportation will be operated as well as owned by the city. He admitted that this probably would result in the manning of the lines by men selected by Tammany leaders, and that "they might not be the most efficient men who could be picked for the job."

That is a statement at which our supporters of municipal operation will frown, not because it is untrue, but because they will be afraid of its effect; but they will be still more troubled by other remarks made by Mr. COUZENS. He said, for instance, that "people do not mind that [less than highest efficiency] as long as they feel assured that the lines are run to serve the public and without graft." Also he said:

> I do not claim that municipal operation is the most economic or the most efficient mode of operation. But the point I make is that it is organized for service, not for gain. People do not mind so much whether they pay 3 or 4 cents for a ride, if they know that no one is going to make unconscionable profits at their expense.

How does all that strike our Mayor? How does it strike the multitudes of New Yorkers who hitherto have expressed a vehement disinclination to pay more than a nickel for their rides and seemingly had no interest in whether operating profits were large or small, so long as fares were stabilized?

Coal Prices Seem Excessive.

Again and for about the twentieth time, WILLIAM H. WOODIN, the head of the State Fuel Administration, scolds the people in this part of the country for their obstinate refusal to realize what an irremediable anthracite shortage of 16,000,000 tons is going to mean before the Winter is over. Not being able to buy the sizes of coal to which they are accustomed, they are buying none at all, he says, though other sizes are abundant, and are efficient producers of heat.

No doubt this is true and the scolding well deserved, but perhaps it would be a little better heeded if householders, when they do make up their minds to heed Mr. WOODIN's advice, did not discover that the small-sized anthracite and the substitutes for anthracite recommended by him are little, if any, cheaper than the nut, stove and egg sizes for which they yearn in vain. There is a feeling that the prices of all fuels have a far closer relation to the prevailing scarcity than to the cost of production and distribution — in short, that the Administration is not paying as much attention as it could and should to the prevention of profiteering somewhere along the long road from the mines to the cellar bins.

The individual consumer is loath to complain to or about his dealer, for reprisal is easy and its effects appalling. When the charge for buckwheat and pea coal—by-products both—is $13.50, as it is in the suburbs, when it is not more, there is something wrong, and it is a wrong that ought to be remediable, however it may be as to the 16,000,000-ton deficit in supply.

Clemenceau's Record.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

I wish to explain to you why I consider M. Clemenceau one of the most unselfish, most sincere and most honest as well as one of the greatest statesmen in the world.

It seems to be forgotten the part he played in the Dreyfus affair. It was Clemenceau who commenced the fight for Dreyfus. It was Clemenceau who published Zola's famous letter, "J'accuse," in his newspaper, l'Aurore. It was Clemenceau who fearlessly kept up the fight against the corrupt General Staff of France, the pride of France, and exposed every one of them, creating enemies right and left, but never stopped until justice was done.

And, after all, why should Clemenceau not be suspicious of Germany?

France kept every pledge to the letter after its defeat in 1870. And what has Germany done? Does it need look to every same person that Germany is trying to get out of it?

OTTO H. KAHN.

PAYMENT BY CONFISCATION.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

I have observed with interest the recent passage of a resolution by the American Manufacturers' Export Association demanding that the mark deposits which they have in German banks shall be paid to them by the German Government at 17 cents to the mark, and that the money thus deemed to be due them shall be paid out of the funds in the hands of the Alien Property Custodian in Washington.

I wish to direct attention to the dangerous precedents these suggestions involve. For an association engaged in the export trade to advocate that private property invested here in reliance upon American constitutional principles shall be taken from its owners in order to pay a Government obligation of their Government is subversive of the foundations of our history and of our economic institutions. No one could suffer more from the adoption of such a principle than business men engaged in the export trade.

The provisions of the Treaty of Versailles which authorized the confiscation of private property to pay Government debts are, I think, attributable to the shortsightedness of the gentlemen who dictated the terms of the treaty. The extent to which France and England suffered may palliate, though not excuse, this unwise proceeding. For American business men in 1922 to support this revolutionary principle indicates, I believe, a lack of comprehension of the probable results of the practice they support. Such a principle makes every foreign investment most precarious; and, at a time when prospective wars seem not improbable, it seems very shortsighted for business men in the export trade to advocate a doctrine which undermines the security of their own business.

Modern business depends upon the mobility of capital across international boundaries and its security abroad. The world had come to that realization in 1815, after long trial of the practice of confiscation of private property, and the doctrine of immunity was deemed immutable until the gentlemen of Versailles undertook to upset it again and with it the foundations laid by a century of industrial progress. It ought to be the function of business men to rescue private property and our business institutions from the insecurity under which they now suffer. It must be remembered that the confiscatory proposal advocated would, if adopted, constitute an international precedent which in due time would not improbably find imitation in our domestic policy. Any business man will appreciate the necessary results. We rightly protest against confiscation of private property by Russia and Mexico, but some of the protestants appear to have little compunction in advocating confiscation when it seems profitable.

It seems to me a duty to point out the dangers of the precedents thus supported. If the ostensible friends of private property advocate doctrines which undermine our institutions, what can we expect from its enemies? The few millions that could now be gained by thus subverting American traditions in confiscating the funds held by the Alien Property Custodian would very probably be lost many times over by the business men of present and future generations in the application to them by other countries of the principles they now appear to advocate.

The Traffic Problem.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

We have read a lot about what should be done, but nothing is being done, and all the time more and more automobiles are crowding the city streets, the taxicabs are running wild, the automobiles are flying through side streets and the pedestrians are ducking in and out between fenders and wheels, wondering when they are going to be able to collect on an accident policy.

Our speed regulations are all bunk and more accidents occur from careless driving on streets where the automobilist thinks it is safe to evade the law. I would like to see all speed limits abolished and a ruling established that any driver found guilty of careless driving, whether he be going sixty miles an hour or five miles an hour, be severely punished. It is manifestly unfair to arrest a driver who is going a few miles above the limit when the streets are not crowded and he knows that he is not driving dangerously. And it is just as unfair not to arrest a driver who worms his way in and out of traffic when the streets are crowded and he just misses a pedestrian every few moments. Once a few hundred wild drivers are punished our streets will be safer.

All the cross streets of New York should be made one-way streets. All drivers should know, for example, that the odd numbered streets are for westbound traffic and the even numbered streets are for eastbound traffic.

GALLERY GODS.

We climb Olympus and become as gods;
Forgotten our fatigue—our muddy shoes,
The shabby wraps we hustled out of sight;
The meagre meal that gave us pence enough
To compass these two folding gallery seats.

How high we are! We even can look down
Upon the wealthy, with superb disdain,
Who sit in loges far beneath us there;

And now it comes—
The moment we have bought in place of food—
The rising of the curtain, and the strains
Of music that remind us we are gods.
For that is Elsinore; the night is chill;
And ghostly shadows haunt the castle walls.

How good it is to bathe our tired minds,
Bruised with the noises of the city streets,
In measured cadences of Shakespeare's words—
The noble music of our English tongue!

We climb Olympus and become as gods;
And who shall say that we, who toil by day
Within the city's crowded market-place,
Three hours of pleasure for a week's dull grind—
Are not Olympian in our scorn of thrift?
Far better to be gods for three short hours,
Knowing Ophelia's love and Hamlet's pain,
Than stuff a stocking full of grimy bills,
Gained by the cheating of our higher selves.

"The dreadful City!" So our brothers cry.
Who know the peaceful silence of the woods,
And dream within the country's solitudes;
But cities only are the home of Art;
And we who crowd the subways and the streets,
And live like bees within a swarming hive—
[illegible]

FLORENCE VAN CLEVE.

ENDORSES HARDING'S PROHIBITION STAND

CLAIM 204 IN HOUSE COUNT

Statement Estimates a Gain of 79 Members With Existing "Liberal" Support Will Win Purpose.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 30.—While expressing satisfaction with President Harding's insistence on complete enforcement of the prohibition law the Association Against the Prohibition Amendment in a statement issued tonight asserted that the President's stand left the "forces of the Government committed to a losing struggle" and that a way out would be found through the amendment of the Volstead act by Congress.

"President Harding's position is thoroughly logical and is complete keeping with his clear recognition of the responsibilities as well as the limitations of his high office," said Captain W. H. Stayton, head of the association. "There should be no occasion for surprise in our hearty and unqualified endorsement of his stand, for it represents most definitely the precise position of our entire membership as taken, namely, respect for and submission to all the laws of the country so long as they remain on the statute books.

"It is for Congress itself, acting in response to the will of the people, to effect the necessary changes in legislation that will enable the President to maintain his position, and yet rescue him and the whole executive machinery of the Government from the intolerable condition in which they are now hopelessly entangled. That this will be accomplished through the initiative of the next Congress in effecting wholesale modifications of the Volstead act we have every reason to expect.

"According to the most careful estimates we can make, there will be in the new House a gain of seventy-nine members who will favor reasonable modification of the Volstead law—by reasonable we mean the legalization of the manufacture, transportation and sale for home consumption of wine and beer in ordinary use and which in truth and in fact is not intoxicating, although of much higher alcoholic content than the absurd one-half of 1 per cent. limit now imposed. These House gains, together with the 'liberal' membership that will continue in office in the next Congress, brings the so-called wet strength to a total of 204.

"While this falls short of a majority of the declared attitude on the most important issue before the country today, there is a large margin which in the past has been non-committal. I have been personally told by a number of these 'non-committals' that until the last election the 'wets' had never proved their mettle, but that now they were amenable to the registered decision of the trend of public opinion at the polls.

"Of all the non-committal members interviewed, ninety-one said that if ever the 'wets' of the United States showed that they actually would scratch their tickets they would, on presentation of such proof, stand ready to vote for some liberalization of the Volstead law. With a moderate accession of these 'liberals,' control of the next House is certain."

The Anti-Saloon League scoffs at the claim that the House will be controlled by the "wet" forces and insists that the nation will never consent to a modification of the Volstead act.

CALLS "DRY" LAW A JOKE.

Oklahoma Prosecutor Welcomes Investigator Sent by Governor.

TULSA, Okla., Nov. 30.—Clifford W. King, Assistant State Attorney General, who arrived here today, announced tonight that he had arranged a conference for tomorrow morning with W. F. Beaver, County Attorney, on the outcome of which depended the nature of action to be taken by the State in relation to the dismissal by Beaver of a number of cases against alleged violators of the State liquor laws.

Beaver said today that the Attorney General's representative would be welcomed to his office and that he would give any assistance he could.

The County Attorney tonight amplified his original explanation of the dismissals by asserting that the State law against possession of liquor was inadequate. "It is almost impossible to obtain convictions," he said, "and I am trying to clean up the docket for my successor."

"Not only is it true that the people do not want prohibition, but the possession law is a joke. I hope the Governor can take enough time off from his little affair at Ada to come over and take a hand, too."

Governor Robertson, who instructed the Attorney General's Department to investigate Beaver's actions, goes to trial at Ada on Dec. 12 on a charge of accepting a bribe.

On his arrival from Oklahoma City the Assistant Attorney General was greeted with the published announcement of the 74-year old County Attorney that "the whole Attorney General's force can come down here and see what they can do about it." Declaring that he thought the action of Governor Robertson in ordering an inquiry was "a big joke," County Attorney Beaver made it plain that he intended to do things in his own way until his term expires.

Mr. King has orders from Attorney General George Short to renew charges against any alleged violators of the "dry" laws in Tulsa County where it appears there is evidence sufficient to gain conviction.

The force of the Federal Government was thrown behind the State officials with announcement by Frank Lee, United States District Attorney for Eastern Oklahoma, that his office would give the closest co-operation in the investigation. Lee said he was prepared to file Federal charges in all cases dismissed by Beaver.

REINDICTED IN PORTO RICO.

Revenue Agents and Alleged Liquor Dealers Escaped Prosecution Once.

SAN JUAN, Porto Rico, Nov. 30 (Associated Press).—New indictments charging conspiracy to violate the Prohibition Enforcement law were returned late yesterday against a dozen insular revenue agents and alleged rum dealers, following dismissal of the previous indictment by Federal Judge Odlum.

Mariano R. Pesquera, Federal Prohibition Director for Porto Rico, and former Insular Treasurer José A. Benedicto, who were included in the dismissed indictment, are not named in the new bill.

Bernard Y. Duffy, brother of the bride, acted as best man, and the ushers were Walter F. De Vine, Nicholas J. De Vine, William F. Duffy and James F. Bergen.

Following the ceremony at the church a reception and a wedding breakfast were held at the Hotel Commodore.

Dols—Dols.

The marriage of Miss Julia Dols, daughter of Mrs. Adelaide Dols of this city, and Leopold Dols Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Leopold Dols of Havana, Cuba, took place Thanksgiving morning at 11 o'clock in the palm room at the Belleclaire. The bride and bridegroom are relatives, the bride's parents having come from Havana. The Rev. Father Ryan performed the ceremony.

The bride was attended by Mrs. E. Narganes, her sister, and Mr. Narganes was best man. Following a breakfast at the hotel the couple left for Charleston, S. C., where Mr. Dols is Consul General for the Cuban Government.

MISS ROBBINS ENGAGED.

Sister of Dean of Cathedral of St. John to Wed E. F. Champney.

Mrs. Francis L. Robbins of Greenfield, Mass., has announced the engagement of her daughter, Miss Mary Alice Robbins, to Edouard Frère Champney of San Francisco, son of the late Mr. and Mrs. James Wells Champney of this city. Miss Robbins is a daughter of the late Rev. Dr. Francis Le Baron of Philadelphia and a sister of Dean Robbins of the Cathedral of St. John the Divine. She is also a niece of the late Levi P. Morton of this city.

Mr. Champney is a graduate of Harvard and of the Beaux Arts in Paris. No date has been mentioned for the wedding.

Bruce—Baldwin.

Mrs. Lucy Craven Bruce of this city has announced the engagement of her daughter, Miss Isabelle Fitz-Randolph Bruce, to Willard A. Baldwin, son of Dr. Linnaeus Baldwin of Baltimore. Miss Bruce is a granddaughter of Alfred Craven, well-known engineer of this city. Mr. Baldwin is a graduate of Harvard, class of '08. The wedding will take place the latter part of this month in this city.

Rispoli—Trotta.

Mr. and Mrs. Michael Rispoli of this city have announced the engagement of their daughter, Miss Rose Rispoli, to Vincent Trotta of Flushing, L. I. The announcement was made at a Thanksgiving dinner yesterday at the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. Geraldi in Brooklyn. Miss Geraldi is Miss Rispoli's aunt. Mr. Trotta is art manager of the Famous Players-Lasky Corporation and is a brother of Giuseppe Trotta, whose portrait of Secretary Hughes was recently presented to the Government of Italy by the Italians in this country.

Neff—Vosburgh.

Mr. and Mrs. John Thornley Neff of East Orange, N. J., announce the engagement of their daughter, Miss Marianna Wentworth Neff, to Frank Arthur Vosburgh Jr., also of East Orange, a son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank A. Vosburgh.

Miss Neff is a granddaughter of Colonel Harmanus Neff of Philadelphia and Dr. Hollis E. Gray of this city, and is a pupil of Miss Beard's School at Orange, N. J. Her father is a member of the St. Nicholas Society, Society of Colonial Wars of New Jersey and is vice president of the Orange Chapter, New Jersey Society of the Sons of the American Revolution, and is Vice Commander of the Essex County Chapter, Sons of the American Revolution.

PLAN PRINCETON MAGAZINE.

Special to The New York Times.

PRINCETON, N. J., Nov. 30.—Literary efforts of Princeton graduates are about to find a new medium of expression by the creation of a magazine to be known as "The Princeton Quarterly." This publication will be a distinctly literary periodical, and will have no connection with the university. It will be edited by Princeton graduates, although contributions will not be confined to sons of old Nassau. Last Spring an informal dinner was held at the Nassau Club in Princeton, with fifteen or more Princeton writers attending, where the scheme was discussed in a general way. On Nov. 16 a second dinner was held and a committee appointed with power to act. The following graduates of Princeton University were chosen: Booth Tarkington, Hugh McNair Kahler of Princeton, James Barnes of New York, Arthur B. Maurice of New York, Edwin M. Merrie of Princeton, editor of The Princeton Alumni Weekly; Paul G. Tomlinson of Princeton, manager of the Princeton University Press, and E. C. Olds of New York.

The magazine will start as a quarterly and will have to be subsidized at first. An organization of Princeton writers will be formed called the Princeton Quarterly Club. This organization will elect the members of the editorial board of the magazine, and they will in turn elect the editor, and have general supervision over the entire management.

THEIR ENGAGEMENT BROKEN

Miss Elizabeth R. Caswell and Jasper Morgan Are Not to Wed.

The engagement of Miss Elizabeth Robbins Caswell, daughter of Mrs. John Caswell of Boston and Jasper Morgan, son of Mr. and Mrs. Edwin D. Morgan of this city and Westbury, L. I., has been broken by mutual consent.

Their engagement was announced last Autumn. Miss Caswell made her début in 1919 in Boston. Mr. Morgan is a great-grandson of New York's War Governor and has been a student at the Rensselaer Polytechnic Institute in Troy, N. Y. He is a brother of Mrs. De Lancey Kane Jay and Edwin D. Morgan Jr., who married Miss Elizabeth W. Elmhirst, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. Temple-Emmet.

Miss Tauscher to Wed in Berlin.

The wedding of Miss Lotte Tauscher, daughter of Mme. Johanna Gadski, the prima donna, and Ernest Busch, grandnephew of the late Adolphus Busch of St. Louis brewing fame, is to take place in Berlin next June. Their engagement was announced last week in San Francisco, where Miss Tauscher is staying with her mother.

The romance between the two began at Berlin at a reception in honor of Mme. Gadski. They are to reside in Berlin, where Mr. Busch is now in business.

Daughters of Israel to Give Ball.

The Harlem Home of the Daughters of Israel, 92-94 East 119th Street, will hold its annual ball and entertainment at the Harlem Casino, 116th Street and Lenox Avenue, on Dec. 7. Mrs. Abraham Lincoln Gerlach is president of the home.

ART NOTES.

Hamilton Field's Collections on View at American Galleries.

At the American Art Galleries until the date of their sale Hamilton Field's collections are on public view. They make the impression to be expected from works of art gathered by an artist and steeped in strong personal sentiment. Most artists are distinguished from average men by the personal attitude they are free to indulge, but Mr. Field more than most artists emphasized his personal attitude. Hardly a thing in his collection but speaks of it, and for this reason his collection is coherent and extremely delightful. For this reason, too, it is difficult to see it as it will become in its separated and scattered parts.

The Japanese prints and paintings and screens form by far the largest but perhaps not the most interesting section. Its catholicity is apparent, and, as Mr. Gookin points out in his introduction to the catalogue, the individual items were acquired each for some specific artistic appeal that made the artist collecting love and desire it. Sometimes a transition of color, sometimes a strong and original pattern in the design, very often an exceptionally mellow and rich tonality, seems to have determined the choice. Kuniyoshi was the favorite, and in addition to esthetic interest offers a fillip of gaudy Oriental humor which may account for the inclusion of some of the prints by this entertaining observer of life.

There are several items in the print section singled out for special notice by Mr. Gookin either on account of their rarity or other claim to salesroom importance, and among these are a number of Chinese color prints and stone prints in black and white, and a still larger number of Japanese primitives.

In the section of furniture the early American pieces are those that speak most clearly of the collector's taste and traditions. Everything here has extreme reality and simplicity. Most things seem to have been owned rather than collected. Mahogany tables and sofas, an early mahogany cradle, a comb-back Hickory chair, a Windsor rocker, a Windsor settee painted green with rush seat, hooked rugs, a number with unusual colors and patterns—everything without pretense and many things not in perfect condition, but wearing an aspect of genuineness and use most ingratiating to those who care for the associative charm of things that have had long human companionship.

There is a small group of paintings by Mr. Field, most of them fairly well known to the public from previous exhibitions. The sales begin next Tuesday.

MAJESTIC MAY SET RECORD.

Will Cross in 5 Days 5 Hours If Schedule is Maintained.

The Majestic, according to officials of the White Star Line, was scheduled to reach Cherbourg breakwater at 11 o'clock last night, the equivalent of 6 o'clock New York time. If this schedule was kept the Majestic would set a world's record for passage between Ambrose Lightship and Cherbourg breakwater, a distance of 3,095 miles.

The Mauretania, of the Cunard Line, held the world's record for this run of 5 days 24 at five days, eight hours. The Majestic's figures would be five days, five hours.

A radio received yesterday by the White Star Line from Sir Bertram Hayes, commanding the Majestic, stated that she averaged 24.87 knots an hour for the twenty-four hours ending at noon Tuesday, and 24.70 an hour for the twenty-four hours ending last night. The average speed had been 24.75 knots an hour.

JOHN WANAMAKER NOW GRAVELY ILL

Merchant, 84, Passes Through an Exhausting Series of Attacks of Coughing.

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 30.—The condition of John Wanamaker, who has been ill at his home here several weeks, was reported tonight by his physicians as having assumed a grave aspect.

"Though resting comfortably now," the doctors' bulletin stated, "Mr. Wanamaker has today passed through an exhausting series of attacks of coughing and as a result his condition has assumed a grave aspect."

Mr. Wanamaker celebrated his eighty-fourth birthday July 11 of this year. From time to time in the last three or four years reports that he was ill have appeared, but in no case did the trouble prove more than a temporary ailment. As recently as last Spring he was sufficiently active to win a fishing prize in Florida.

SAMUEL MARX DIES, CONGRESSMAN-ELECT

Samuel Marx, Congressman-elect from the Nineteenth District, and for many years the Tammany leader for the Thirty-first Assembly District, died yesterday morning of heart disease at his home, 1,846 Seventh Avenue, after a short illness. Services will be held at 10:30 o'clock Sunday morning at the Institutional Synagogue, 87 West 116th Street, of whose Board of Directors Mr. Marx was a member.

In addition to his political activities, Mr. Marx was one of the leading auctioneers and appraisers in the city, with offices at 115 West Twenty-third Street and in the Woolworth Building. He was one of the founders of the Association of Auctioneers of Greater New York. In 1921 Surrogate Foley awarded him $12,500 for his appraisal of the estate of Benno Loewy, lawyer.

Mr. Marx was born in this city in 1867 and educated in the public schools here. He had served on the Board of Aldermen as representative of the Thirty-first Aldermanic District, and in August, 1919, following the resignation of Mark Eisner, he was appointed Internal Revenue Collector for the Third New York District. In 1889 he married Irene Smith, who survives, as do several brothers and sisters.

The opinions of Mr. Marx on Socialists were expressed with considerable vigor. He once said: "I don't care whether a man is a Republican or a Democrat. If he is for our present form of Government I'll work for him. But I will fight a Socialist every time I see one. I believe their principles are entirely subversive of what a real American ought to stand for."

M. M. WALL SHOT DEAD.

Horseman Killed After Altercation With a Tenant, Who Surrenders.

NASHVILLE, Tenn., Nov. 30.—Mose M. Wall, a prominent horseman, who lived near Franklin was killed at his home last night by Nat Munday Jr., a tenant on the Wall place, according to reports reaching here today.

Mrs. Wall was expected home on a train last night. Wall instructed John Carter, the tenant, to meet the train and Munday accompanied Carter to the station. It was reported that Wall resented Munday's going and a heated discussion followed the party's return. Both men reached for their pistols. Wall was standing at the top of the stairway in his house and Munday was at the bottom. Munday fired and Wall was killed instantly. Munday surrendered.

JOHN G. HOLME DEAD.

John G. Holme, former city editor of The New York Evening Post, died yesterday at his home, 34 North Twenty-eighth Street, Flushing, L. I. Mr. Holme had been connected with the Inter-Ocean in Chicago, The Tribune in New York and newspapers in Minnesota and Wisconsin. While associated with the campaign of General Leonard Wood for the Presidential nomination in 1920 he wrote a life of General Wood. Recently he was Assistant Manager of the Better Business League and before that was actively engaged in establishing the Swedish-American News Bureau, an organization for the promotion of Swedish publicity in America.

Mr. Holme was 44 years old. In 1912 Mr. Holme married Miss Ada Collings of Chicago. Besides his widow he leaves a daughter. He will be buried today in Flushing Cemetery and one of his pallbearers will be Vilhjalmur Stefansson, the arctic explorer.

Thousands at Krantz Funeral.

Thousands of working people attended the funeral yesterday of J. Rombro, better known by his pseudonym of Philip Krantz, a member of the editorial staff of the Jewish Daily Forward. They marched silently behind the hearse as it left the late writer's home at 3,006 Hughes Avenue, the Bronx. Among the organizations represented were the Paper Jewish Writers' Association, the Forward Association, United Hebrew Trades, Workmen's Circle, Jewish Socialist Association and all the members of The Forward staff. Mr. Rombro died Tuesday of heart disease at the age of 44.

Alfred Charlton Wessmann.

Alfred Charlton Wessmann of Forest Hills Gardens, L. I., President of the J. F. Tapley Company, book manufacturers, died yesterday in St. Mary's Hospital of an illness that began three years ago with a paralytic stroke, due to overwork. He was born in Brooklyn in 1874 and went to work as a boy for the Tapley Bindery, soon going into business with Jesse F. Tapley, whom he succeeded in the company in 1910. He was formerly President of the Bookbinders' Association of New York and a Commissioner of Education.

John Kneeland Green.

John Kneeland Green, 73 years old, for forty-five years a member of the Seventh Regiment, died yesterday at his home, 209 West Ninety-second Street, from the effects of a stroke of apoplexy suffered two weeks ago. He was born and spent most of his life in New York City. He served as an aid to General John F. O'Ryan when the latter was Adjutant General of New York State. He left a widow. Mr. Green dealt in window patterns at 14 East Fortieth Street. The funeral, which will be military, will be tomorrow at 1 o'clock from St. Paul's Chapel, at Broadway and Fulton Street.

GEN. JAS. N. WHEELAN DEAD.

Brig. Gen. James Nicholas Wheelan, United States Army, retired, died at the Park Avenue Hotel yesterday in his eighty-fifth year.

General Wheelan was one of the organizers of the First New York Mounted Rifles in 1861, serving throughout the war with that organization, being mustered out as Lieutenant Colonel in 1866, and in the same year brevetted Colonel for gallant and meritorious services during the war. The following year he was appointed Second Lieutenant in the Second United States Cavalry. He served with that organization until 1873. In 1877 he took part in the action against the Indians on the Rosebud, and was later brevetted Major for gallant services in that action. He was assigned to the Eighth Cavalry in 1885, was made Lieutenant-Colonel, Seventh Cavalry, in 1896, and in 1901 Colonel in the Twelfth Cavalry. He was retired from the regular army by law in 1901, and in 1904 was advanced to the rank of Brigadier General by a special act of Congress. He served subsequently as Military Attache at the Courts of the Netherlands, Belgium and Berlin.

AMERICAN FLIER TO TRY WORLD TRIP

PLANE WRECKED IN ALASKA

Says If He Can Conquer Winds and Cross Bering Strait, He Will Succeed.

C. C. Prest, who was within ten hours last Summer of completing an air flight from Buffalo, N. Y., to Siberia when his plane fell in Alaskan marshes, has arrived in New York to prepare now to circle the globe by air. Profiting by the last experience, Mr. Prest said he was certain he would realize his ambition on his next start.

"The worst part of the trip will be over the Bering Strait," Mr. Prest said. "A heavy wind sweeps constantly in the path of the aviator. As it is a side wind, as far as the plane is concerned, it will be necessary to buck it diagonally, thereby increasing the length of the trip over the water. The terrain for many hundreds of miles before reaching the shores offers little in the way of landing fields.

"My attempt this year ended in a marsh about fifty miles out of Eagle City, a mining settlement ten miles from the Arctic Circle. Engine trouble forced me to descend and my plane was stuck in the heavy grass and weeds. I landed close to a herd of several hundred caribou which stood by and watched the proceedings. I had a motion picture camera and took several hundred feet of film.

"I left the plane with the engine running while I walked for about a mile to determine if it were possible to 'take off' again and return to Eagle City. After discovering it was impossible to move the plane I turned and saw the caribou surrounding the machine. The caribou on my approach simply moved away to a respectful distance and resumed their interest in my activities. The plane had not been touched."

Prest wandered four days, subsisting on what little food he had carried, before he was found by a searching party from Eagle City. Prest said his plane was the first that had been seen there.

"I was about ten hours from success when the mishap came," Prest said. "The next time I will follow the coast around Point Barrow, thence to Kotzebue Sound, and diagonally across to Siberia. The water distance is about 150 miles. On the trip I flew over and landed on sections of Alaska that had never been explored."

Prest brought back several thousand feet of film showing the country over which he flew. He said his plane was still in the marshes.

Prest has been a flier for twelve years. A year ago he flew under the bridge at Niagara Falls, guiding his plane with one hand and operating a motion-picture camera with the other. At one time he held the world's altitude and passenger carrying records. During the war he was an instructor in flying.

DIES, SILENT AS TO SLAYER.

Reputed Gang Leader Refuses to Tell Who Shot Him.

Unswerving to the last moment in his statements that he did not know who shot him, Thomas Flanagan, 30 years old, of 346 East Forty-eighth Street, died yesterday afternoon in Bellevue Hospital from a gunshot wound in his chest.

Flanagan, known as "The Little Turk," was brought to the hospital Wednesday night after his father, Malachi, had telephoned to the police station that his son had been brought home in a taxicab seriously wounded.

Detectives could only learn from Flanagan that the shooting had occurred at Second Avenue and Twentieth Street, in the "Gas House District." If, as detectives are inclined to think, he ventured "out of bounds," it may have precipitated a gang fight, as Flanagan and his two brothers are reputed leaders of a gang.

Frank Flanagan, an elder brother, was tried and convicted several years ago of murdering Patrick Mulhearn, a bartender. He spent a year and a half awaiting electrocution in the death house at Sing Sing, but was granted a new trial and was subsequently given his freedom.

Another brother, Martin, was proprietor of the Blue Bird cabaret on Fourteenth Street, a place much frequented by Monk Eastman, from which he was lured early one morning to meet death at the hands of gunmen.

T. G. PATTEN JOINS HAYS.

Former Postmaster Appointed Aid to Motion-Picture Chief.

Thomas G. Patten, who was Postmaster here from 1917 to 1921, has joined the staff of Will H. Hays, President of the Motion Picture Producers and Distributors of America, Inc., and left yesterday for Hollywood, Cal. Mr. Patten will remain in California indefinitely as Mr. Hays's Western representative.

The exact duties of Mr. Patten were not set forth at the Hays offices, 522 Fifth Avenue, but it was said part of his work would be to maintain a spirit of co-operation between Mr. Hays and the actual makers of pictures. Mr. Patten has been for years a member of The Players club. He has a wide acquaintance among persons connected with the motion-picture industry.

"The industry is going to be sure that it discharges its full duty in helping to maintain an industrial community," Mr. Hays said, "which shall stand as a model not only to the activities of the industry itself but also in its relations to the splendid civic community of which it is a part."

DEATH HOUSE EXAMINATIONS

Special to The New York Times.

OSSINING, Nov. 30.—Governor Miller has directed the State Lunacy Commission to go to Sing Sing early next week and examine four men in the death house, who have been denied new trials by the Court of Appeals and sentenced to death.

Those to be examined are Alvin Westling, who killed Sam Mollar, jeweler, at 1,809 Nelson Avenue, the Bronx; Henry Brown, who killed Mrs. Anna Blaustein at 1,931 Morris Avenue, the Bronx; Samuel Pelusi, who killed Mary DeSano at Ravenswood, L. I., and Joseph Jawarski, who killed a woman with whom he boarded in Chautauqua County.

Identifies Son's Body.

The body of a man who died suddenly last Sunday in the Marble Arch, Central Park, opposite Sixty-sixth Street, was identified yesterday by Mrs. Sarah Melberg of 969 Caldwell Avenue, the Bronx, as that of her son, Hyman, 29 years old, a Columbia graduate and a veteran. The man lived at 2[illegible] Street.

2 LINERS SAIL FOR EUROPE.

Manchuria and Hansa Leave With Tourists for Winter Resorts.

The Manchuria of the White Star Line, sailed at noon, yesterday, for Hamburg, Plymouth and Cherbourg with a large cabin and a small third-class passenger list. There were only twenty-five in the steerage, the smallest number carried by the Manchuria for several months. With few exceptions the cabin passengers consisted of tourists bound for the Winter resorts of Southern France.

Among those sailing were Miss Louise A. Cook, Mr. and Mrs. W. W. Howard, Mrs. Edith Durand, R. J. Dryer and Alwin Esche of New York; Captain M. Ide of the Japanese Navy, who is on a mission to Germany; Miss Sarah S. Lyon, Y. M. C. A. worker, en route to India, and Miss Matilde Vossler of New York, who is on her way to Constantinople, where she will be married to a member of the American Consular Service.

The Hansa of the Hamburg-American Line sailed at noon for Hamburg. In the cargo was a Texas wildcat, destined for the Hagenbeck circus in Berlin.

Among the passengers were Mrs. V. Katz, from Mukden, China, her son, Boris, and a daughter, Miss Alla Katz, who are on their way to relatives in Germany for Christmas; Count Alfred Wedel of Dresden, and Carl Ulshoefer, a banker of Hamburg. The passengers had a real Thanksgiving dinner, which began shortly after the vessel was off Sandy Hook.

2 ROBBER SUSPECTS HELD.

Woman Helps Police Make Arrests —$5,000 Bail in Each Case.

John Kerns of Mills Hotel and Thomas Cooley of 270 Bowery, suspected of entering a cigar store at 131 Ninth Avenue on Nov. 22 and stealing $1,000 worth of cigars, were arraigned in Jefferson Market Court yesterday and held in $5,000 bail each by Magistrate Moses R. Ryttenberg for examination Dec. 4. The men were arrested Wednesday night by Sergeant Louis Schilling and Detective Peter Corcoran, at Ninth Avenue and 39th Street.

Kerns and Cooley were followed for a number of blocks Wednesday night by Mrs. Elizabeth Martell of 418 East Fifty-eighth Street, who told the police Kerns opened the kitchen door of her apartment five weeks ago and entered, but left hurriedly when she confronted him. She had followed him at the time and passed him to study his face. On Wednesday night she saw him again with another man. She told the two policemen, who made the arrests.

DR. HIBBEN PLEADS FOR CANCELING DEBT

WANTS PEOPLE'S VERDICT

He Scoffs in Houston Speech at a "Spectator" Representing America Abroad.

HOUSTON, Texas, Nov. 30.—Declaring that America should cancel at least part of the war debt owed to her by the Allies, in order to make sure that the World War was a war to end wars, President John Grier Hibben of Princeton University in an address at Rice Institute here today said that "now is the time for the United States to gauge whether the war sacrifices of the country have been in vain."

"A great toll," he said, "was paid by the Allies in the year when we were in preparation to enter the war. If we exact further payment in money we will be demanding that the Allies pay the debt they owe us twice over."

Dr. Hibben advised "safeguarding our generosity" by the demand that European nations should balance their budgets and wipe out their annual deficits. In order to do this, he pointed out, there would have to be a marked reduction in their army and navy expenditures.

He said that he did not know whether to consider it a tragedy or a comedy that the United States was represented at conferences abroad "by one whose function is that of a spectator."

Address of Dr. Hibben.

"I recognize the fact," said Dr. Hibben, "that we meet today on our national holiday, a time set aside by immemorial custom to express our gratitude and praise to the Giver of every good and perfect gift for our national blessings and prosperity. It is my intention, however, not to recount our manifold blessings, but rather to consider our obligations, for in our national life as well as in that of the individual, we must not overlook a law of universal application, that with every privilege which we enjoy there is some corresponding obligation.

"We appreciate the fact in reference to the individual that there are certain duties owing to self and also duties owing to others, and the same is true of our national responsibilities. There are obligations which we all must recognize which begin and end with maintaining the integrity and the progress of our national life. There are other duties, however, which we as a nation owe to the other nations of the world. And it is upon this second type of obligations that I would especially dwell today.

"The task assumed by us in April of 1917 is not yet finished. What we have done will be recorded in history as the chapter in our national life of which we and our children may be most justly proud. But the great objective held before the thought of the world during the four years and a half of the war has not yet been attained. Universal peace based upon justice and liberty has not yet been realized.

"The sacrifice which the war exacted, the suffering, the pain and anguish, were all bravely and persistently endured because the spirit of man was kept alive and constantly quickened by the dream of better times to come, of a new world order, free from provincial envy, hatred and suspicion, a dream of an era of international co-operation and sympathetic understanding, of peace and prosperity, the healing of old wounds and the dawn of a new day in the history of the world's progress. This dream has not come true.

"I recently met a mother whose son was killed in action in France. His name is on the Roll of Honor in our Nassau Hall at Princeton. The mother said to me that at first she had been reconciled to her son's death, for it was a sacrifice for the welfare of his country and of the world, but latterly she had begun to think that the sacrifice was in vain.

"Such judgment, I believe, is premature. It has not yet been determined whether the sacrifice of the war was in vain. In my opinion the supreme obligation which rests upon our nation at this time is to do our part to prove that such sacrifice have not been in vain.

America as the Favored Nation.

"We have emerged from the war the favored nation of the earth. Before the war we were a debtor, now we are a creditor nation. Two-fifths of the gold supply of the world is in our hands. There is owing to us from the nations of Europe, $10,150,154,196.

"While England and France are heavily indebted to America we must remember also that there is owing to Great Britain from other nations of Europe approximately $16,500,000,000; this includes $7,315,000,000 of the German reparation debt. There is owing to France likewise $18,404,000,000. If the smaller nations of Europe could pay France and Great Britain they in turn could pay us. It is this crushing load of debt which is one of the great factors of disturbance in Europe today.

"The people of Europe are today in every nation struggling against terrible odds. With splendid resolution and courage they are attempting to build up the waste places of the War, and yet often without confidence and hope for the future.

"I feel that America in order to restore this confidence and hope among our former allies should cancel at least a part of this debt. There are many economic reasons for this. It does not seem possible for the nations of Europe in their crippled condition to discharge it within any reasonable time.

"Even though they were able to pay, can we as a nation afford to receive that payment? The payment cannot be made in gold and can be made only if we are willing to import more goods from Europe than we export. Such a method of payment, carried on for a number of years, would destroy our markets abroad; for nations that are straining every ounce of energy and resources to pay the heavy debt cannot afford to buy from us. And on the other hand they at the same time would cripple our industries at home because of the deadly competition with the cheaper products of Europe.

"I, however, do not wish to place this matter before you upon its economic basis, but would appeal to higher considerations. At least one-half of this indebtedness was incurred by moneys expended in the year after we had decided to enter the war and before we were able to place an effective force in the field. In that year our Allies were holding the line for us against a common foe.

"The money which they borrowed from us was expended in clothing, food, ammunition and all the other material of war. They were fighting the battle for us. They have already paid the debt covering that period over and over again through the blood of their sons.

"In that period the losses of Great Britain and France alone were as follows: In the year 1917 Great Britain lost in France alone 190,000 men. This includes those who were killed in battle and those who died of wounds or from other causes. In the statistics of the French losses the numbers given include not only deaths but also those taken prisoner or disappeared. Altogether they amount to 245,000.

"This is the toll paid by the Allies in the year when we were in preparation to enter the war. If we exact further payment in money we will be demanding that the Allies pay the debt they owe us twice over.

"It may be said by some that, while this is a generous solution on our part of some of the difficulties of Europe, it is not right that the nation should forego a contractural debt; that the Government is the trustee of the funds of its people and must safeguard the financial interests of its citizens. But if the people themselves demand it they have the right to sacrifice their own interests in view of a higher end possible of realization.

Higher National Obligations.

"We must recognize in life two kinds of obligations. There is one due to external social pressure upon us; this represents the rights of others about us which we must acknowledge and respect. There is a second class of obligation, however, born of a compulsion from within, which expresses itself in the will to serve.

"It is not a duty which others have the right to demand of us, but a duty which we are constrained to demand of ourselves, as the expression of our true nature. It is a recognition not of the rights of others, but of their needs, and such an obligation, self-imposed, may rest upon a nation as well as upon an individual, if the spirit can only rise to the level of its opportunity.

"We have adready manifested this spirit on a small scale in our history. The indemnity given to us by China on account of the Boxer Rebellion was found to be larger than the claims of our American citizens. Consequently we returned $13,000,000 to China. China, on her part, was so impressed with our generosity that their Government regarded this as a sacred fund and set it aside for the education of Chinese youth who were to be sent from time to time to our schools and universities in the United States.

"A similar action now on our part would not only give new courage and hope to Europe, but would bring to our American people again the same elevation of spirit which we experienced in the years of 1917 and 1918 dusing the World War. It will be a great day in the history of mankind when a powerful nation shall rise up and prove to all the world that it has a soul.

Wants Balancing of Budgets.

"If we are wise enough and great enough to do this thing we should very carefully safeguard our generosity through the demand that the nations of Europe receiving this consideration from our hands should balance their budgets so as to wipe out the present annual deficits. They cannot do this, however, without a very substantial reduction of all their army and navy appropriations.

"To reduce their armaments and war appropriations they must be delivered from the bondage of fear, the fear of invasion and the scourge of war. This is particularly true in the case of France. An assurance of this kind can be gained only by means of the combined authority of the great powers of the world reorganizing the sovereignty of the common cause, as in the days of the World War, to the end that there may be 'Peace on earth and good will toward men.'

"But European nations cannot at present give this assurance of immunity from invasion and war without the active help and co-operation of the United States in their councils. It is very evident that they would welcome our presence, whatever conditions we may be pleased to lay down. We can give them the help they need by our presence and power in their councils and at the same time safeguard our constitutional rights and natural traditions in any manner we please.

"What is imperative is that we in the United States should no longer keep ourselves in short-sighted, self-centred, complacent isolation. Europe needs us, and we recognize that need, and yet we withhold our help.

"Morocco such a policy would react most favorably throughout the foreign population of our country. We think ourselves isolated from Europe, but we are bound by many invisible ties to all the countries abroad.

"It is estimated by Sir George Paish that there is annually sent to Europe by residents and citizens of the United States $150,000,000. Supposing that there is an allotment of this sum of $100 to each family. That would mean that 1,500,000 European families are united in terms of kinship and affection with as many families in the United States.

"One of the most serious problems of the present and the near future in America is to create and hold a spirit of loyalty among our foreign-born population. The belief of international co-operation on the part of our Government would tend to create through the consequent feeling of gratitude this much desired spirit of devotion to their adopted country.

"Spectator" at World Meetings.

"I do not know whether to regard it as a tragedy or a comedy that we should in the present world situation be represented at the various conferences abroad by one whose function is that of spectator. We are the only nation of the world that can act at present with striking power, and yet we are satisfied to look on with arms folded, while others almost submerged are struggling in the deep waters, and fighting for their lives.

"There are many in our country who rejoice in America's isolation and count it a happy fortune that we are so far removed from the confusion and turmoil of European troubles. But the world is one world and whatever disaster may come to a part of it vitally affects the whole.

"Why should we not as a nation, in the midst of our prosperity and power, be willing to take some chances, to undergo some sacrifice, to realize the end for which we were consciously fighting in 1917 and 1918, 'a war to end war'? We may delay, and delay, and delay, safeguarding ourselves and our treasures, until it is too late to avert such a war, and too late to guard ourselves from participation in it, or from the disastrous effects upon us and upon the generations yet to come, of another world conflict.

"Is there no spirit moving over the face of our nation today save that which imparts to men an ambition to increase still further our great wealth, which is the most cruel curse in the feverish pursuit of material prosperity? Are we to be content merely with our dollar as the standard of the world's exchange, with our trade balances and our rapidly accumulating wealth? Have we no ambition to raise before the world a standard of moral and spiritual values?

"Public opinion was slow in recognizing our international obligation. In the early years of the World War, and slower still to speak, but at the beginning of 1917 the voice of the people was raised with no uncertain sound, calling its young men to the great adventure of service and sacrifice. And as I have faith that again, before it is too late, America will recognize the way of duty, and follow it in the traditional spirit of fortitude and integrity of purpose which is our birthright and immemorial possession. So may we guard our holy heritage!"

Edge Endorses Wet Plan Of New State Senator

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., Nov. 30.—United States Senator Walter E. Edge, in a letter read at a meeting of the Republican Club here today, endorsed the plan of State Senator-elect Emerson Richards, who has announced that he will work for the repeal of the Hobert act, the New Jersey prohibition enforcement law.

"I am in hearty accord with the proposal of Senator Richards," Senator Edge's letter read. "I propose to do everything I possibly can in Washington to alleviate the situation existing. I am afraid, however, that we will have of necessity to await the next Congress, because the present Congress is on record as decisively dry."

'MAD ILIODOR' HERE TO BECOME BAPTIST

GAVE CZAR LAST GOOD MEAL

Has Spent Five Years of Hell in Soviet Russia—Intends to Make His Home Here.

Sergius Michailov Truvanov, called "Iliodor, the Mad Monk," former colleague of Rasputin, reached New York yesterday on the steamship Lituania of the Baltic-American Line. He brought with him a story of having been offered the position of Patriarch of the Russian Church under the Soviet Government in the place of Tikhon, Archbishop of Moscow. Through interpreters the Russian priest said he hoped to become an American citizen and a Baptist minister to work among Russians in this country. In reply to questions asked by officials of the Department of Justice and the Immigration Department, Iliodor said:

"I am leaving what has been five years of hell." The monk brought with him his wife and their three children, Sergius, 7; Hope, 5, and Iliodor, 4. He related the following story to reporters:

Leaving Russia in 1916, he came to the United States because Rasputin turned Czar Nicholas against him. He remained here until 1918 and went to Vladivostok, where he was taken into custody as an enemy of the Bolsheviki, but was released on orders from Moscow and permitted to enter Soviet Russia. He went to Tsaritzin and later to Ekaterinburg. There he met the Czar, the Czarina and their children on May 3, 1918, a short time before they were killed.

Found Imperial Family in Straits.

He found the royal family in dire straits and bought food for them. He believes he supplied them with their last satisfying meal. He talked for two hours with Czar Nicholas, who expressed the belief that he was marked for death. Iliodor said he had no doubt that members of the royal family were slaughtered, and that the bones found in a nearby mine were those of the former rulers.

Returning to Tsaritzin he was asked to aid the Bolshevist Government by preaching to the Red Army. He was requested to threaten the Red soldiers with excommunication in order to help keep them loyal to the Bolsheviki. Because of the treatment of the royal family by the Bolsheviki, Iliodor said he refused the request though threatened with arrest. He escaped further demands by disguising himself as a religious pilgrim and wandered in various parts of the country. For eighteen months he lived in this way, sometimes with the White army and sometimes with the Red army.

In the Fall of 1918, he said, he was betrayed to the Bolshevist officials in Saratov and arrested. He asserted he was told that the Bolsheviki wished him to become head of the Russian Church in order that he might undermine its organization and personnel so as to make it an "ineffective machine." He was in jail and was threatened with death if he refused. He asked time to think it over and was released and kept under surveillance. In October, 1921, he was invited to Moscow, where Bolshevist officials told him they wanted to get rid of Patriarch Tikhon and were willing that Tikhon should be killed or imprisoned.

Iliodor delayed making a decision until last June when he learned through private sources that unless he took action against Tikhon quickly he would be executed. He put his wife and two younger children in a place of safety and, accompanied by his son Sergius, he made the long trip to Riga by wagon. His wife and children followed him on foot.

Iliodor said he left Russia without a passport, but was permitted to sail by virtue of a document issued by the American consular office in Riga. Instructions to issue the papers had been cabled, it was said, as the result of the request of Baptist church officials here. In explaining his interest in the Baptist church he said that in recent years his views had leaned toward those of the Baptist church and away from the Russian Orthodox church.

During his stay here Iliodor will live in the home of Joseph Podlesney, son of a Baptist minister, at 120 East Eleventh Street. The priest is 6 feet tall, is 47 years old and his wife is 30. They have been married about ten years.

NEGROES MIGRATING FROM THE SOUTH

CLEVELAND, Nov. 30.—Another migration of negroes from the South to the industrial cities of the North is believed to be under way. During the last few weeks many negroes from Georgia and Alabama have gone to work in Youngstown and Pittsburgh steel mills, according to advices received here, while hundreds have obtained employment in Cleveland.

According to William R. Connors, Executive Secretary of the Negro Welfare Association, 1,387 colored men from outside the city have registered for employment during the last four months. Some of these, he said, returned to their old homes during the recent depression, but most of them had left the South for the first time.

"They are leaving Atlanta for the North by the carload," Connors said.

Between 500 and 1,000 obtained employment at the Carnegie Steel Company at Youngstown and a smaller number at the Youngstown Sheet and Tube Company, advices state. Hundreds have gone into the Connellsville coke field since the middle of Summer.

NEGRESS DEAD, MAN SHOT.

Each Accused the Other of Doing the Shooting.

PROVIDENCE, R. I., Nov. 30.—A quarrel in a North Main Street tenement here today resulted in the death of Willemina Petterson, aged 23, colored, and the probably fatal wounding of her sweetheart, Frank B. Furtado.

Lingering between life and death at a hospital here, Furtado accuses the girl of shooting him and then herself. The girl, however, just before she died, told the police that Furtado fired all the shots.

URGES OUR AID FOR EUROPE.

SWARTHMORE, Pa., Nov. 30.—President Frank Aydelotte of Swarthmore College, in an address at the Thanksgiving Community Church service today, urged greater participation in European affairs by the United States.

"At a time when the world is suffering for want of leadership," he added, "a tariff wall which shuts off the importation of a neighbor's goods, the highest ever made by any country, is preventing the economic readjustment of the world.

President Aydelotte closed his address with an appeal "to translate the best of our private thought and feeling into public act, to forget our selfish safety and material benefits and dedicate ourselves to the task of expressing the greatness and idealism that is inherent in America."

Thanksgiving Hostess Finds Mother Dead With Brother in Gas-Filled Rooms

Mrs. Margaret Hoff, 54, of 30 Carmine Street, and her son Henry, 30, were found dead in their beds, yesterday morning shortly before noon by Mrs. Helen Amatto, a daughter of Mrs. Hoff, who had gone to summon her mother and brother to their Thanksgiving dinner. Death was due to asphyxiation caused by gas escaping from a small heater.

According to the story told Patrolman William Hermance, of the Charles Street station, the mother and son, who occupied adjoining rooms on the first floor, had retired late last evening. They had planned to spend Thanksgiving Day with Mrs. Amatto, who occupies an apartment on the floor above.

Neighbors were awakened by the barking of a terrier which Mrs. Hoff kept in her apartment. The barking became fainter and ceased. Then, just before noon, Mrs. Amatto arrived.

After knocking several times on the door, the daughter became alarmed and made her way to the fire-escape. The window leading to her mother's room was down, but the odor of gas was noticeable.

Forcing the window open, Mrs. Amatto entered the gas-filled room and found her mother dead. Near the window, the terrier lay dead beside the body of Mrs Hoff's cat.

Rusing into the next room, Mrs. Amatto saw her brother and thought he still showed faint signs of life. She hurried to the street and called Patrolman Hermance. He telephoned for an ambulance from St. Vincent's Hospital, and Dr. Guinee responded with a pulmotor. Aided by the policeman, the physician worked for nearly an hour over the asphyxiated man, but without effect.

John Sessler of 606 Courtland Street, West Hoboken, N. J., who had written his brother Harry that he would take Thanksgiving dinner with him yesterday, found his brother's body in the gas-filled kitchen of his newly erected home 10,240 Debevoise Avenue, Hollis, Queens, yesterday morning.

In a note found on the table addressed to his brother, Harry had written that he intended to take his life, as his wife had left him five weeks ago. The note indicated that he had notified nearly a score of persons that he intended to take his life.

PASSENGERS HURT AS WAVE HITS SHIP

Presidente Wilson Runs Into Storm, Causing Excitement Below Decks.

Officers Calm the Fears of Tourists as Tons of Water Sweep the Decks.

Rough weather that marked the passage of the liner Presidente Wilson from Trieste to this port, culminated in a heavy storm on Tuesday, during which a mountainous wave struck the vessel, smashed port lights, stove in the door leading to the salon and caused severe injuries to an immigration official and a woman passenger, and minor injuries to several other passengers and members of the crew. Officers went among the second and third cabin passengers and calmed their fears.

The Presidente Wilson brought 232 cabin and 352 third class passengers. Rough weather began practically as soon as the vessel got out on the North Atlantic lane. It was on Tuesday, however, that she ran into the worst part of it.

All Monday the vessel ran through rough seas and had to fight through a storm that increased in violence until at 10 o'clock Tuesday morning the wind instrument on the bridge recorded a velocity of 120 miles an hour. This was accompanied by high seas that sometimes broke over the bows and sent tons of water down the decks. Captain Roberto Stuperich, the ship's commander, and Captain Ettore Zar, her former commander, who comes to this country to take command of another steamship of the line, agreed after the Presidente Wilson had berthed at Pier 7, Bush Stores, Brooklyn, that it was one of the worst storms of their experience.

Describing the wave that struck the vessel on Tuesday, the skipper said:

"It rose like a green wall slightly on the port side of the ship, and as the vessel rushed to meet it, it broke and the ship was momentarily buried in a another of water that swept her from bow to stern. The onrush of the water stove in some of the port lights and smashed the two-inch glass in the verandas and summer garden forward of the promenade deck. The glass protection on the bridge was smashed.

Captain Zar, who had the bridge, was swept back against the bridge railing and bruised. He was also cut by flying glass. Captain Stuperich was in the chart room. He was flung against the opposite wall, but was not hurt.

Commander G. B. Berardelli of the Royal Italian Navy, who was Italian immigration commissioner at Trieste, was sitting on a lounge at the head of the grand staircase with Miss Clara Mary Frank, daughter of a Washington (D. C.) florist, whose home is at 1,301 Brentwood Road, Brentwood, D. C., and Mrs. Marie Delano Donati, who before her marriage lived at 137 East Thirtieth Street, New York. The lounge was torn from its fastening. Mrs. Donati managed to cling to it, but Commander Berardelli and Miss Frank were catapulted down the staircase and knocked unconscious.

Commander Berardelli suffered a dislocation of the right shoulder, severe injury to his back, and bruises and contusions. Miss Frank received lacerations of the head and body and possible internal injuries. One cut, four inches long, on the top of her head required five stitches. They were treated in the ship's hospital by Dr. Sasciolo Domenico, who also treated other passengers for slight hurts, and several members of the crew for injuries of more or less seriousness.

Captain Zar left the Presidente Wilson and will go to New London, Conn., to take command of the liner Martha Washington, which has been sold to the Cosulich Line by the United States Shipping Board.

The Martha Washington belonged to the Austro-American Line before the war and was seized by the Government to be used as a transport. After the war for a time it was in service with the Munson Line. Captain Zar commanded the ship for four years before the war. He brought with him on this trip Luigi Gherlans, who will be his chief engineer.

The Presidente Wilson sailed from Trieste on Nov. 13 and touched at Patras, Naples and Algiers. One of the passengers was Mrs. Harriet Pelenzi, mother of the Councilor of the Hungarian Legation at Washington, who came to visit her son.

WRITER'S HOME ROBBED.

Kew Gardens Woman Mourns Notebook With Data for Stories.

Mrs. Thyra Samter Winslow of 102 Newbold Place, Kew Gardens, Queens, writer of short stories, is one of the latest victims of the band of robbers which in the last week has robbed about forty homes in Richmond Hill and vicinity.

As a result of the visit of the thieves, the writer and her husband, John F. Winslow, lost among other things, part of the cheer preserved for their Thanksgiving dinner yesterday—the last lone bottle of port wine, sole survivor of pre-prohibition days. The robbers, who ransacked the house Wednesday night while Mr. and Mrs. Winslow were at a theatre, also took a $250 fur coat, silverware, $5 worth of postage stamps and a notebook.

The notebook, which is of no value to any one save myself, is the greatest loss," said Mrs. Winslow last night. "In it were notes and memoranda of plots for stories and novels. I do wish the robbers would realize its utter worthlessness and mail it to me."

The robbers also visited the home of F. C. Bingham of Onslow Place, Kew Gardens, just back of the Winslows'. Ten policemen and detectives from the Richmond Hill Precinct were at the Winslow house within ten minutes after Mrs. Winslow telephoned Wednesday night that they had been robbed. The detectives said that the robbers had carefully obliterated their fingerprints.

CRASH INTO TREES KILLS 2, INJURES 4

EAST PROVIDENCE TRAGEDY

Fast Driving at a Sharp Turn Tragically Ends a Trip After a Dance.

PROVIDENCE, R. I., Nov. 30.—E. John Decker, 23, of LaGrange, Me., a Brown University sophomore, was killed instantly and Miss Nadine De Witt, 22, of Millinocket, Me., a student at the New England Conservatory of Music, probably was fatally injured when an automobile in which they were riding with two other student couples was demolished early this morning in East Providence. She died later in a hospital.

George R. Decker, a senior at Brown, brother of the dead man and driver of the car; Robert H. Spellman, another Brown senior and a varsity football man; Miss Irene Coy of 118 Hemenway Street, Boston, and Miss Lucille Burroughs of Warren, Mass., the last-named two classmates of Miss De Witt, were the other occupants of the car. They escaped with cuts and bruises.

The ride started early this morning after a dance held at the Phi Kappa Psi Fraternity House here. The accident is ascribed to George Decker's unfamiliarity with the roads. It is believed that he was driving too fast to negotiate the sharp turn at the junction of two streets where the crash occurred. The car skidded and crashed into trees and poles at the roadside.

No action has been taken yet by the East Providence police, who are investigating.

CAUGHT UNDER BLAZING CAR

Special to The New York Times.

STAMFORD, Conn., Nov. 30.—Miss Edna Sturgess, 21 years old, and Lebert V. Brinckerhoff, 25, were severely injured early this morning in Hope Street when an automobile in which they were riding turned over after hitting a curbstone.

The car caught fire, and only for the timely arrival of people in front of whose house the accident happened the couple would have been burned to death. They dragged Miss Sturgess and Brinckerhoff from beneath the blazing car. The Springdale Fire Department was called out to put out the fire.

Brinckerhoff was arrested. The police say he was speeding and was in no condition to drive a car. He was badly cut about the eyes and head, and Miss Sturgess received bad scalp wounds and was injured about the legs.

ORANGE WOMAN RUN DOWN.

Dr. T. W. Harvey's Sister-in-Law May Die of Auto Hurts.

ORANGE, N. J., Nov. 30.—Miss Fannie Halsey of 60 Main Street, sister-in-law of Dr. Thomas W. Harvey of 59 Main Street, one of New Jersey's foremost surgeons, was probably fatally injured in East Orange tonight when struck by an automobile near Parke Avenue and Washington Street.

Abraham Barnett of 76 North Eighth Street, Newark, said to have been the driver of the machine, was released on his own recognizance.

Killed When Automobile Overturns.

Special to The New York Times.

MIDDLETOWN, N. Y., Nov. 30.—Arthur Dexter of Narrowsburg was instantly killed today when the automobile in which he was riding overturned near Liberty. He was identified by a license tag found in his pocket.

ROUTED BY STREET DUEL.

Trenton Pedestrians Scatter When Baker Fires at Fugitive Employe.

TRENTON, N. J., Nov. 30.—Persons walking in South Clinton Avenue near the Pennsylvania Railroad depot scattered to safety in sheltering doorways and vestibules late this afternoon as two men ran down the middle of the crowded street exchanging revolver shots.

Peter Accardi, who, the police charge, was one of the duelists, said later at the Second Precinct Station that the man at whom he fired more than a half dozen bullets was his employe, who early in the day had stolen $200 in cash and a quantity of jewelry from his home above his bakery at 204 Mills Street, Bristol, Pa., about ten miles from Trenton.

The employe fled when Accardi demanded his surrender at the railroad ticket window here. He returned the pistol fire, it was said, with which Accardi attempted to arrest his flight. The men ran down South Clinton Avenue and into Yard Avenue, where the employe vanished, uninjured, in an alley.

Accardi was accompanied by his brother, Anthony, and Aleaip Lorenzo, the latter of whom was locked up with Accardi.

Car Plunges 45 Feet Over an Abutment in East Forty-Second Street.

Holiday automobile accidents cost the lives of three persons and resulted in injuries to twenty-two others, four of whom are in a critical condition. Several drivers who figured in accidents were arrested, three of them charged with driving while intoxicated. One man was arrested on five charges—homicide, trying to escape after an accident, driving an automobile while intoxicated, assault and having an improper license.

Don Ebner of 340 East Eighty-fourth Street was the driver against whom the five charges were lodged. Early last evening Ebner ran down and fatally injured Charles Warren, 65, a janitor's helper, of 514 East 148th Street, at East Seventy-fifth and Exterior Streets. Ebner, it is charged, failed to stop his car after the accident, but Patrolman Harry Ervin jumped into another car and caught him after a chase of six blocks.

Warren, it was learned, was about to come into possession of $50,000. He was employed by Mrs. Mary Seidhouse at the Bronx address and it was she who told the police of his fight for the possession of a legacy, which he won Wednesday after litigation extending over many years. When Warren was 14, $50,000 was left to him under the will of an aunt, Mrs. Seidhouse said. In the seven years that elapsed before his majority the money became involved in litigation and he did not receive it, she added.

Some years ago Warren inherited a large sum of money from his father. This he spent in a few years and took up the fight again for the $50,000 his aunt had left him. Recently he brought suit against Henry Stevens of Hoboken, N. J., a cousin, to recover this money. Mrs. Seidhouse said, adding that Warren told her the suit had been settled out of court and that papers had been signed giving him the money.

Warren was at first taken in an ambulance to Flower Hospital, where he was examined by Dr. Bernstein, who found his skull and right ankle fractured. He was transferred to Bellevue Hospital, where he died. He was identified after a letter addressed to him was found on his person.

Later an attorney for Ebner appeared in Night Court and asked Magistrate William Sweetser to admit the prisoner to bail. The Magistrate denied the request.

Jeremiah Coleman, 34, a laborer, died in Beekman Street Hospital last night from injuries received when he was struck at Oak and New Chambers Streets early in the morning. The automobile was operated by Jacob Fox, 25, of 830 Pitt Street, who was arrested by Patrolman Frank E. Gutherman on a charge of homicide.

Small Boy Killed.

The death of a four-year-old boy under the wheels of an auto truck at Eleventh Avenue and Forty-eighth Street resulted in a charge of homicide against the driver, James W. Dorry, 22, employed by the Polar Products Company, 11 West Forty-eighth Street. The boy, James Stewart of 600 West Forty-eighth Street was crossing the street with his brother, William, 10, when he was struck. Dorry continued on his way after the accident, but stopped when several boys who had seen the accident ran yelling after him.

Charles Ely, the Stewart boy's cousin, who saw the accident, took the child to Bellevue in a taxicab, but the physicians there said that he was dead. Patrolman George Ward of the West Forty-seventh Street Station arrested Dorry. He told the police he did not know he had struck the boy.

William Stewart told the police that when he saw the automobile bearing down on them he jumped back, but his brother, who had taken his little brother when he tried to pull him from the truck. The boys had gone for candy and were on their way home for Thanksgiving dinner.

Edward F. Harvey of 2,082 Ryer Avenue, the Bronx, died in Greenville Hospital, Jersey City, from a fractured skull, received when he was run down Wednesday night at Bergen and Bostwick Avenues. Witnesses supported the story of Robert Breese of 107 Wesman Avenue, Jersey City, that the man had stepped from behind a bus directly in front of Breese's car.

Auto Drops Into Navy Dry Dock.

A taxicab plunged to the bottom of a dry dock in the Brooklyn Navy Yard last night when the driver lost his way in the dark and ran through a chain stretched across the top of the dock. The taxi dropped thirty feet, but, according to naval officers on duty in the yard, the only person injured was the chauffeur, who was treated for cuts on his hands. The taxi was still at the bottom of the dock early this morning.

Captain Todd, in charge of the yard last night, declared he did not know the name of the chauffeur and disclaimed knowledge of a report that the taxi had two passengers — a man and woman. One report was that the man in the cab was an officer named Bartlett. Captain Todd said that there was no man of that name in the yard, so far as he knew. It was learned from other sources that one of the ensigns on the U. S. S. Rochester, tied up near the scene of the accident, is named Bartlett. Captain Todd refused to allow reporters to board the Rochester. He said that there was no water in the dock.

At the naval hospital it was said that there was no record of any chauffeur having been treated there last night.

The cab entered the yard at about 9:30, according to the records there. At Dock 3 there is a chain across the end to keep vehicles from running off. There are also arrows pointing away from the dock, but apparently the driver could not see them.

Car Plunges 45 Feet.

Traveling at high speed, a car driven by James Williamson, 22, of 656 East Sixteenth Street, plunged over an abutment at the east end of Forty-second Street into First Avenue, forty-five feet below. The chauffeur was thrown from the car and struck the pavement. He was taken to Bellevue Hospital with a compound skull fracture and internal injuries.

At the place where the accident occurred, the street car tracks enter a cut in the middle of Forty-second Street between First and Second Avenues. No one saw the accident, which occurred at about 3 o'clock yesterday morning, but marks on the street indicated that Williamson had applied the brakes about thirty feet from the spot where the car plunged. Police investigation disclosed that the license plates had been issued for another car.

Andrew McGovern of 22 Douglas Street, Brooklyn, was arrested on charges of intoxication and felonious assault following a collision between two automobiles last night at Atlantic and South Portland Avenues, Brooklyn. Both cars were running in the same direction and, according to witnesses, McGovern's car had been zigzagging when he tried to pass the other, which was owned and driven by Jacob Levy of 830 Herkimer Street, Brooklyn. McGovern's car struck the other, and both turned over. John Fox of 300 Union Street, Brooklyn, who was riding with McGovern, was treated at the Jewish Hospital for severe cuts of his right arm. In the Levy car were Levy's wife and two children, Evelyn, 8, and Joseph, 4, who were all treated for minor injuries.

Mob Attacks Taxi Driver.

Police reserves from the West 136th Street Station were called out last night to save a taxi driver who had run down a negro at 136th Street and Lenox Avenue, and then attempted to escape. Friends of the negro were attempting to take the prisoner from the custody of a patrolman who had placed him under arrest and were shouting "Lynch him!" when the reserves arrived.

Ralph Rosenfeld of 849 Eagle Avenue, the Bronx, was the driver. He ran down Nathaniel Matthews of 100 West Eighty-eighth Street, as Matthews was crossing the street. Rosenfeld, according to the police, stepped on his throttle and sped north on Lenox Avenue after the accident. Patrolman Daniel Mandell of the West 123rd Street Station, off duty and riding in his own automobile, saw the accident and followed the taxi. The chase continued to 141st Street and Fifth Avenue, where Rosenfeld ran the car into a garage.

Several friends of Matthews who had seen the accident came up shortly after Rosenfeld had been placed under arrest. They urged the crowd to take the law into their own hands. The crowd attacked Mandell and he was getting the worst of it when he blew his whistle. Several other policemen came up and held the crowd back until the reserves arrived. Rosenfeld was locked up in the West 135th Street Station on a charge of felonious assault. Matthews was removed to Harlem Hospital with a compound fracture of the right leg.

Driver Fined as Intoxicated.

Louis Sayre of Corinth, N.Y., was fined $25 by Judge Rosenwasser in Yonkers on a charge of operating an automobile while intoxicated. Sayre ran into a car driven by Henry Golden of 28 Prospect Street, Yonkers. He told the Judge that he was on his way to Manhattan to celebrate his birthday. Henry Golden's younger brother, Isidore, figured in another accident yesterday when a street car ran into his automobile on South Broadway.

Miss Ethel Tracey of 105 West 109th Street, Miss Theodora Winter of 210 West Eighteenth Street, and Samuel Rubman of 484 East 164th Street were taken to Lincoln Hospital after their automobile crashed into a tree at 163d and Tiffany Streets, the Bronx. Miss Winter suffered a fracture of the hip and the others suffered less serious injuries. Alfred Cohen, the driver, of 1,296 Union Avenue, the Bronx, was treated for minor injuries and went home. He said he lost control of the wheel.

Harry Hichekop, 4, broke away from his mother as they were crossing Hart Street, near Tompkins Avenue, Brooklyn, and ran into the rear of a passing automobile, owned and driven by Philip Fisher of 53 Hart Street, Brooklyn. He was taken to Beth Moses Hospital in a serious condition.

Martin Engel, an auto truck driver, of 610 Howard Avenue, Brooklyn, was held in $5,000 bail on a charge of homicide. Abraham Wolwitz, 16, of 1,614 Park Place, Brooklyn, was thrown from his seat on Engel's machine and killed in a collision with another truck on Wednesday at Lewis Avenue and McDonough Street, Brooklyn.

Two men are in a critical condition in the Bayonne Hospital as a result of injuries suffered Wednesday when their automobile struck a truck in West Fourteenth Street, Bayonne. The injured are Salvadore Celemento, 21, of 124 West Twentieth Street, and Abraham Otzen, 26, of 489 Avenue A, both of Bayonne. Celemento's skull was fractured and he was possibly internally injured. Otzen's right arm and right leg were broken. They were returning from a wedding when they sidewiped the truck.

AMMONIA ROUTS DINERS.

Pipe Under Restaurant Bursts and Rescue Squad is Called.

Scores of diners in the Restaurante de la Paix, 423 Madison Avenue, hurriedly left their Thanksgiving dinners last night when an ammonia pipe in the refrigerating room in the basement broke. The rescue squad was called to shut off the escaping fumes.

While the fumes did not get above the basement floor of the building, the clanging bells of the fire apparatus was sufficient to send the diners scurrying to the street. Members of the squad entered the basement wearing gas masks, cut off the escaping fumes and repaired the damaged pipe.

DRUG STORE IS ROBBED.

Leo Dreyfus, proprietor of a drug store at Second Avenue and Fourteenth Street, reported to the East Twenty-second Street Station last night that his store, which was closed for the holiday, had been robbed some time early yesterday morning for the second time this year.

The robbers took about $250 worth of drugs and sundries, Dreyfus reported. The other robbery was in September, when he lost $500 worth of goods, he said. The proprietor also told the police that an attempt at robbery was made on his place last March. Entrance was made yesterday through a window in the rear of the store.

SETS HIMSELF AFIRE.

Elizabeth (N. J.) Man First Pours Kerosene on Clothing.

ELIZABETH, N. J., Nov. 30.—William Echlers, 38 years old, of 431 Marshall Street, Elizabeth, was severely burned this evening, when, according to the police, he poured kerosene oil over his clothing and set himself afire.

He returned to his home at supper time and told his mother that he believed he was being followed by a crowd. A short time later he obtained the kerosene and went into the back yard. Neighbors saw the flames and extinguished the fire by wrapping him in a blanket. He was taken to the General Hospital.

Sexton Writes United States Senator Edge to Push the Search for Murderer.

STATE TROOPERS REMAIN

Hall Family Direct Detective Felix de Martini to Continue Inquiry.

James Mills, husband of the murdered New Brunswick choir singer, yesterday wrote letters to United States Senator Walter E. Edge of New Jersey and Prosecutor Asariah M. Beckman asking them to push the murder investigation despite the failure of the Grand Jury to return indictments. Mills, who is sexton of the church at which Mr. Hall was rector, sent the following letter to Senator Edge:

"As I saw in the paper the discussion on the Senate floor about the crime, will you please continue the investigation of the Hall-Mills murder case? There was no indictment, and the public at large think that this case should be looked into.

"Mr. Edge, it has been a lonesome Thanksgiving Day for me and my children, but it might have been a brighter holiday for the family if the Grand Jury had brought the guilty ones to justice.

"The townsfolk tell me it is a shame to let things drop.

"Yours very truly,

"JAMES MILLS."

While Mills was bending over the table and laboriously reading out his letters to the Senator and to the Prosecutor for Somerset County, reading with frequent apologies for the faulty diction, his son Danny discussed Indians, admitted he was fond of chocolates and said he planned to be a chemist if he didn't become a doctor.

Thanksgiving Day in the big Hall home, set far back in the lawns that fringe Nichol Avenue and Redmond Street, found Mrs. Hall dining with Miss Kelly Peters and her brother, "Willie" Stevens. After dinner relatives and friends dropped in for brief visits, and the flood of congratulatory telegrams and messages of faith in Mrs. Hall continued to pour in.

It was learned that Colonel Norman H. Schwarzkopf, Superintendent of the New Jersey State Police, had instructed the corps of troopers assigned to the case to remain in New Brunswick and continue their investigation.

Timothy Newell Pfeiffer, Mrs. Hall's attorney, said yesterday that he planned to direct an independent investigation, on behalf of Mrs. Hall, with Detective Felix Demartini, a New York private detective, as chief of staff.

Rescuers Also Find Woman Who Had Fainted—Carry All Down Fire Escapes.

Two babies, a crippled girl, and a woman were rescued last night from a smoke-filled tenement, at 51 Henry Street by two patrolmen, a Street Cleaning Department driver, and a fireman searched the building after the other occupants had fled to the street.

Patrolman Arthur Dittrich, of the Clinton Street Station, discovered flames and smoke bursting from the windows of the handkerchief store of Jacob Shroot on the first floor of the six-story building shortly after 8 o'clock. While he turned in an alarm, the smoke crept up through the hallway of the building, causing the twenty-two families to flee.

Patrolmen John McEntee, of the Oak Street Station, and Joseph Swaider, of the Clinton Street Station, and Joseph Montalto, of 58 Henry Street, driver of a Department of Street Cleaning truck, who were nearby and noticed the flames, feared that the tenants, in the excitement might have overlooked sleeping children or sick persons. The three men ran into the building and searched the deserted rooms. On the fourth floor Montalto discovered 14-months-old Dorothy Oeotsky. On the third floor McEntee found 12-year-old Frieda Schaeffer, a cripple, under a bed. Swaider found 13-months-old Bernard Kabakow on the fourth floor. Fireman Edward Hegewalk discovered in the hallway of the third floor Mrs. Kemik, who had fainted.

The hallway was so filled with smoke by this time that the rescuers were unable to make their escape by the stairs. They carried their charges through front windows and down the fire escape to firemen who waited on ladders below. After half an hour of hard fighting the flames, which had been confined to the first floor, were extinguished. The damage was estimated at about $5,000.

CHINESE CABINET RESIGNS.

President Names Ta-hsieh as Acting Premier and Finance Minister.

PEKING, Nov. 30 (Associated Press).—President Li Yuan Hung has accepted the resignation of the Cabinet headed by Wang Chung-hui as Acting Premier.

Wang Ta-hsieh is named Acting Premier and Minister of Finance, and C. T. Wang (Wang Cheng-ting) Foreign Minister.

Wang Chung-hui was impeached by the House of Representatives on Monday, together with Foreign Minister Wellington Koo, on the ground that he had participated in signing the agreement with the Sino-Italian Bank under which a commission is alleged to have been paid for the proposed flotation of a loan of $6,000,000.

Why we gave New Yorkers a bottle of Scotch Brew

WHEN Harry Lauder was in New York last month, playing at the Lexington Theater, we asked him to try Good Old Scotch Brew.

He was delighted with it. He exclaimed, "Every man and woman in New York ought to know Good Old Scotch Brew. Why, it's wonderful! Full of sparkle—a rare flavor! Just look at those beads tumbling into the glass! It's the best drink I've found here in years!"

We know that the brew is good. The best malt and hops with the secret Scotch formula insure that. We agreed with Sir Harry that the public should have it. The plan we worked out and submitted to the hotel and restaurant owners of New York was accepted with enthusiastic co-operation. The result was that more than 600,000 guests in 1,200 restaurants and hotels drank Good Old Scotch Brew on Harry Lauder Day.

We thank all our many friends whose effective assistance made this event a huge success. It was the greatest day in our history.

This excellent beverage made so many new friends that our sale of Good Old Scotch Brew is even greater now than before.

Good Old Scotch Brew is on sale in all leading hotels, restaurants and clubs, and at your delicatessen, grocery and drug stores.

A Short Story by A.S.M. Hutchinson

This man Hutchinson has a faculty for writing stories that get talked about. If Winter Comes, This Freedom—and now The Rough Little Girl and the Smooth Little Girl. Not to read it will be to miss the literary treat of the month—the delightfully whimsical tale of a hate that grew into a whimsical friendship. It's complete in one issue—the first of several short stories he is writing for The Journal.

Zane Grey's Greatest

The Vanishing American—the story of the love of an Indian and his desperate fight against terrible odds—is the greatest, the most vital, the most vigorous of Mr. Grey's splendid Western novels. Don't fail to read it! . . . Read also in the big Christmas Journal The Golden Adventure, a story of Paul and Philemon, by Katharine Holland Brown; The Prince Rides Home, by Frances Noyes Hart; and Dusty Star, by Olaf Baker.

A Play For Christmas

The Loveliest Thing, by Roland Pertwee, is both story and one-act play—delightful to read and jolly to act in amateur performance. Write The Journal for permission to put it on without charge. It has the real Christmas spirit. . . . So has The Man Who Didn't Know Christmas from the Fourth of July, by Eleanor Hallowell Abbott—the story of a wonderful house party, with mistletoe and jingling bells and happy holiday romance.

Has The Church Failed?

Yes, says A. Maude Royden, greatest woman preacher in the world. So long as the churches fret themselves with piffling details and ignore the big problems of Christianity they will continue to lose the men and the women, the boys and the girls. What can the churches do? They can tackle the big issues; they can—but read her article in The Journal. It is a tocsin cry to the churches and to Christians everywhere.

Grace Richmond

Is writing for The Journal a series of articles that picture with keen humor and rare understanding the problems of every home. Read The Visits of Mrs. Trelawney. Other articles of particular interest include The Greatest Painting in the World, by William Lyon Phelps; Grandma's Gone Fishing, by Sarah D. Lowrie; The Winter Baby, by Dr. S. Josephine Baker; and Harnessing Industry with the Vote, by Elizabeth Frazer.

The Story of Christ in One Great Painting

Look at the cover on the Christmas Journal! It is one of the most wonderful religious paintings ever made. In thirteen pictures Henry J. Soulen has depicted the whole life of Christ—Madonna and Child, Adoration of the Shepherds, Adoration of the Magi, Flight Into Egypt, Child Jesus in the Temple, Suffer Little Children to Come Unto Me, Jesus Writing on the Ground, Procession Through Jerusalem, Mary Magdalene's Box of Precious Ointment, Sermon on the Mount, Last Supper, Christ Before Pilate, Golgotha. There are three other great paintings in this issue—each one worthy of framing—Raphael's Sistine Madonna; The Sermon on the Mount, by Copping; and the Friend of the Lowly, by Lhermitte.

For Women's Clubs

Mrs. Thomas G. Winter herself, president of the General Federation of Women's Clubs, has written The Citizenship Program in The Journal's notable series of programs for your woman's club. In December.

The Dress You Need Now

Even in midwinter some new dresses are surely needed. Follow The Journal's styles and what you buy or make will be good until it is worn out.

The House of Helen by Corra Harris

A small town in Georgia—a man and a maid—a romance, a marriage, a heartbreak—a regeneration that will thrill you with its simple intensity. That is Mrs. Harris' new novel, which begins serial publication this month, and will appear in four generous installments. Never before has Mrs. Harris shown such soul-searching insight. Don't miss the opening chapters, in the December issue.

Enemies of Prohibition

Who are they? Who are these people who want to flood us again with rum? Those who are screaming for "personal liberty" are only the puppets of the old whisky ring that is eager to get back the profits of drunkenness. Charles A. Selden has found out all about the anti-prohibition crowd, and in three articles he will reveal their insidious propaganda. Read the first one in the December Journal.

About Mrs. Santa Claus

It's a story for children and grown-ups, too—this gay little Pudding Lane Christmas tale by Sarah Addington. How Mary wanted a red-headed doll; how Santa Claus met with an accident; and The Great Adventure of Mrs. Santa Claus. . . . Something to look forward to is a whole series of new Pudding Lane stories next year, with Gertrude Kay's colored cut-outs of favorite Mother Goose characters.

Booth Tarkington

OTHERS COME TO HER AID

Five-Year-Old Victim of Thanksgiving Lark Is in a Serious Condition.

Distracted by the screams of a flame-enveloped child from the ragtime music she was playing at a Thanksgiving dance in her home, Angelina Salvado, 18 years old, of 2,352 Pacific Street, East New York, last night ran to the hallway of the apartment house and beat out with her bare hands the fire which was eating away the child's clothing. Two other girls were then burned about the arms and hands extinguishing the flames which spread to Angelina's dress. The child is now in a serious dress.

The trouble began when 5-year-old Annie Dicco of 2,108 Bergen Street, ran around to the Pacific Street address to celebrate Thanksgiving night with some of her small friends. The children began playing with matches, and before any of them knew just what had happened, little Annie's dress was on fire. She ran about the hallway of the building screaming and trying to beat out the fire, but as she ran the flames increased.

Annie's screams were heard by the Salvado girl, who jumped from her piano and ran to the hall. Seeing the hall illuminated by the flames from the child's clothing, she ran after Annie, attempting to strike out the blaze with her bare hands. Partly successful, she picked up the child, carried her into the apartment, and wrapped her in a coat, which smothered the remaining flames.

Meantime Miss Salvado's own clothing had caught fire. Two other girls ran to her and beat out the flames. They were her sister Jennie, 15, and Rose Alfico, 16, of 2,333 Pacific Street, East New York. Samuel Catatema, 19, 247 Rockaway Avenue, Brooklyn, also was burned.

ANNUAL GAME CONFERENCE.

It Will Be Held at the Waldorf on Dec. 11 and 12.

The American Game Protective Association announces that the Ninth National Game Conference will be held on Dec. 11 and 12 at the Waldorf-Astoria. The dinner held on the evening of the second day, which concludes the conference, is looked upon as a real event, not only by those in attendance from all over the country, but by New Yorkers who are more or less hard to interest. William L. Finley of Oregon, will show his latest motion pictures of wild life. The association states that last year Will Rogers from the platform accused Irvin Cobb of going hunting and getting one wooden decoy and making a claim that this entitled him to be called a sportsman. Major Cobb has promised to talk at the dinner this year and substantiate his claim.

Starting with a mere handful, the First National Game Conference was held on March 1, 1915. Last year more than 500 sportsmen conservationists from every section of North America were seated at the dinner in the Waldorf.

PENNSYLVANIA STRIKES.

1,661 in Six Months Caused $117,546,466 Loss in Wages.

Some idea of the losses incurred by workers and industry due to strikes in 1922 is afforded by an analysis of the situation in Pennsylvania during the first six months of this year.

There were 1,661 strikes reported to the Pennsylvania Bureau of Mediation and Arbitration during the first six months of 1922, involving 348,079 men and 4,101 women, with a loss to the workers of 23,346,711 days and of $117,546,466 in wages. The coal strikes led all the others in both numbers and losses, with a total of 1,263 strikes, involving 340,108 men, whose losses in working days aggregated 22,869,096, with an attendant wage loss of $114,562,914. In the printing trades, where the general strike has been carried on continuously since May 1, 1921, there were 162 plants affected, only fifteen of these strikes being reported during 1922. With 1,609 men and 35 women involved, the strike among the printers during the six months covered resulted in a wage loss of $969,012 and a loss of 147,502 working days. On July 1 it involved 133 separate plants, 29 having settled their difficulties after the first of the year.

After the mining and printing industries the clothing industry was the most affected. It had a total of 174 strikes up to July 1, of which 104 were pending from the previous year. These involved 850 men and 2,974 women, with a total loss of $343,653 and 97,596 working days.

At the close of the six-month period 1,377 strikes were pending in three groups—printing, 133; mines, 1,242, and public service, 2. The bureau was active in 1,517 of the 1,661 strikes reported, and of the total number 284 were officially closed. In their settlement, 53 were won by the employes, 180 were won by the employers and 51 were compromised.

Wage differences alone, that caused about 00 per cent. of the strikes last year, were responsible for only 29 strikes this year. Wages and hours combined caused 172 strikes; wages and union matters, 15; union, 23; hours, 162 (all printing strikes were for the 44-hour week); wages and agreement (in mines), 1,242, and sympathy, 1 mine strike.

The total loss in wages due to all strikes for the six months was $117,546,466. Excluding the printing and coal strikes, the loss in the remaining ten industries affected was $2,023,640, or about one-tenth the loss in wages for the same period in 1921, when the total was $38,375,104. The rail strike does not enter into this report, as it was not effective until July 1.

Philippine Mission to Urge Republic.

MANILA, Nov. 30 (Associated Press).—The expectation is that the Independence Commission, which is composed of all members of the Philippine Legislature, will send a special mission of perhaps five to Washington to urge its cause. The present proposal is for Congress to authorize the Philippine Legislature to call a constitutional convention for laying the foundation of a future independent republic.

Verdier Gets Legion of Honor.

PARIS, Nov. 30.—Today's Official Journal contains the nomination as Knight of the Legion of Honor of Paul Verdier of San Francisco. The award is made for "marked services rendered to France."

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 30.—Paul Verdier is President of a department store here, and was an officer in the French forces throughout the World War. He was wounded in some of the major engagements, and for a time acted as liaison officer between the French and American forces.

Free Two Leavenworth Prisoners.

LEAVENWORTH, Kan., Nov. 30.—Two Thanksgiving pardons issued by the War Department to military prisoners in the Federal penitentiary here were announced today. Charles E. Talkington, serving a three-year sentence, and George Ferguson, under a two-year sentence, were released.

STREET DUELLISTS DIE, THEIR PISTOLS EMPTY

Each Accuses Other, but Motive Is Mystery—Philadelphia Pedestrians in Danger.

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 30.—In an interchange of bullets that lasted for several minutes and until their ammunition was exhausted, Charles Sutton and William Ehern shot and mortally wounded each other at Somerset and Memphis Streets late tonight.

Both died soon afterwards. Hundreds of pedestrians were attracted to the scene and several narrowly escaped being hit by the flying bullets.

No motive for the duel has been established by the police. Each man identified the other as his assailant in antemortem statements.

HAILS WOMEN'S PEACE HELP

Russian Doctor Says Hague Meeting Will Be Supported.

By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

THE HAGUE, Nov. 30.—A woman doctor whose name is kept secret has sent the following letter from Russia to Mrs. Ramón Hirschmann, Secretary of the Women's Congress on the "new peace."

"The Russian pacifist women, who realized at the first conference of the Women's International League, held at The Hague in 1915, the need for the abolition of war and establishing world peace, do so today with still more ardent conviction, viewing the present catastrophic condition of Europe torn by hatreds increasing among the peoples and threatened with complete submergence of moral principles in a triumph of martial glory and violence.

"Acclaiming with ardor the initiative of eminent women in the great cause of humanity, the Russian pacifist women express the hope and confidence that, thanks to the energy and enthusiasm of which women are capable, the conference for the new peace will open a new era of conciliation among peoples and a co-operative organized effort for a humanizing, civilizing peace. They hope that the conference will create a strong, efficient organization to carry through the noble work."

BURCH SEES "ACQUITTAL."

Laughs When His Third Murder Trial Jury Disagrees.

LOS ANGELES, Nov. 30.—It was a happy Thanksgiving for Arthur C. Burch, who was said to agree with his chief counsel, Paul Schenck, that the disagreement last night of the jury in Burch's third trial for the murder of J. Belton Kennedy was "the equivalent of an acquittal." Burch laughed aloud when Judge Shenk polled the jurors and each declared there was "absolutely no chance" for an agreement.

This came after more than thirty hours had passed since the case had been given to the jury and six ballots had been taken. The first was the same as the last—seven to five for acquittal—the jurors said after they had been discharged. The defendant's parents, the Rev. and Mrs. W. A. Burch of Evanston, Ill., were in the courtroom when the jury reported and was discharged.

The third trial of Mrs. Madalynne Obenchain, jointly indicted with Burch for the murder of Kennedy, her former sweetheart, is set to begin next Monday. Indications are, however, that it will be postponed, as her attorneys are busy with a case on trial in the Federal Court.

BAIL FOR LABOR OFFICIAL.

Schleifer, Accused of Inciting Shopmen, is Released.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Nov. 30.—Ernest Schleifer of Watertown, Mass., an organizer of the International Association of Machinists, who has been held here under a bond of $10,000 on a charge of inciting striking shopmen to violence, was released today when international union officers furnished the bail. No date for a hearing has been set.

Schleifer was arrested November 23 on a warrant issued at the request of City Attorney Sheridan T. Whitaker, who said that he would prosecute the organizer on two counts of a charge of inciting others to murder and burglary. He said that evidence had been gathered at a strike meeting here.

On the same day Schleifer was ordered to appear before Judge Edwin S. Thomas in the United States District Court to show cause why he should not be judged in contempt of court for the alleged violation of the injunction issued in Chicago some ti me ago. The order was issued on the complaint of the New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad, which charged that Schleifer had urged striking shopmen to interfere with railroad traffic for the Yale-Harvard game.

FIRE IN MONTREAL COLLEGE.

Dental Department of University Apparently Doomed to Destruction.

MONTREAL, Friday, Dec. 1.—Fire which broke out at midnight in the Laval Dental and Veterinary College, a department of the University of Montreal, seemed destined to destroy the building at an early hour this morning.

Two hours after the fire was discovered the building was nearly gone, despite the combined efforts of every fire brigade in the city. The building and equipment were valued at $500,000. The structure was built ten years ago and was supposed to be fireproof.

LIVE WIRE KILLS MAN.

Electric Light Official Seizes It in Fall From Tower.

PERRY, N. Y., Nov. 30.—C. W. Torrey, Superintendent of the Perry Electric Light Company, was killed in a fall from the electric tower at Silver Springs this morning.

Torrey and another man were repairing the switch on the tower when the former lost his balance and fell. In falling Torrey caught hold of a live wire and the shock caused him to release his hold. He struck on his head and lived only fifteen minutes.

CANADA MAKING TREATIES.

Ministers to Look Over Belgian Trade Possibilities.

PARIS, Nov. 30.—The conference between officials of the French Ministry of Commerce and the Canadian Government Ministers, W. S. Fielding and Ernest Lapointe for the negotiation of a treaty of commerce has been adjourned until next week.

Meanwhile, at the request of the Belgian Government, the Canadian Ministers will go to Brussels to discuss the commercial relations between Belgium and Canada. They will start this evening.

Houghton Entertains at Embassy.

BERLIN, Nov. 30.—Senator Medill McCormick of Illinois and Mrs. McCormick arrived here today. They assisted the American Ambassador, Alanson B. Houghton and Mrs. Houghton, in their informal Thanksgiving reception, at which about 500 Americans resident in Berlin or sojourning here were entertained.

"He Dies at The Wheel"

"A TAXI man dies at his post." The wheel slips from his nerveless hands. His cab swerves, crashes into a tree; his passengers are seriously injured. The incident is a bit of news selected from a recent newspaper. They happen quite frequently—these sudden deaths.

By Bernarr Macfadden

What is the cause? Why should people, apparently in good health, suddenly drop off into the unknown?

Life is uncertain at best, we all have to admit. But when one appears to be in good health he ought to be free from such a fate.

There is a very wide and definite separation between life and death.

Some people radiate aliveness. They are simply bubbling over. Like a pulsating auto they are ready to jump forward at any moment. Their voice, gestures and every movement are convincing evidence as to their physical status. They are so animated that they are like the effervescence of bubbling champagne.

The more alive you are, the more thoroughly you are influenced by the vital forces we call life, the less danger there is of "dropping dead." If your body is heavily loaded with dead cells, refuse material that should be eliminated by functional activity, the more likely you are to be attacked by disease which may mean death, sudden or otherwise.

Make yourself thoroughly alive to your very fingertips. If life is worth living, then it should be worth living at one hundred percent. When youthful activities are left in the background it is our inclination to fall into a physical rut. The muscles become soft, infiltrated with fat. The functions slow up. Your appetite becomes "finicky." Your body loses snap, vigor and vitality.

And after a while we wonder why life is so uninviting at times. We often feel stupid when we should feel keenly alive. And it all comes from bodily neglect.

Here is this wonderful human machine for which we are responsible. Give it the attention each day that it deserves. Rich rewards of incalculable value will then come to you in added health and aliveness.

In every issue of Physical Culture you are shown how easily those who were weak have become endowed with new strength; how those who were ill and nervous or run-down have been given a new lease on life. You will find numerous cases similar to those which may occur in your own family and the means by which they have obtained new vigor and new health is fully explained. No Physician, no Body-Builder, no Specialist in curative and preventative measures can offer you more than is offered in the absorbing articles and true and interesting stories which go to make up the great health magazine.

"Weakling at 46—Champion at 50"
by Arthur Leslie

Have you ever thought about "The Dangerous Age"—when a man is neither one thing nor the other—just a little too old to be young—just a bit too young to be old—and the next few years will decide. Either he will grow old rapidly and become a has-been or he will take a new lease on youth and remain young for many a year to come.

Arthur Leslie had reached "The Dangerous Age." With him it came at 46 and he walked right into it with his eyes closed just as most men do. He awakened to see old age sneaking up to grab him—and he side-stepped just in time.

He made himself completely over—exchanged an old worn-out body for a young, strong one that is good for many years of the hardest kind of work and strenuous play.

He tells his story in PHYSICAL CULTURE for December. His system of exercise is fully illustrated. What he did, you or any other man can do.

"I Had Taken Barrels and Barrels of Medicine"
by J. Floyd Blake

Taking pills has become the great National game and J. Floyd Blake was batting 1000. He tried every sort of pill, every variety of liquid and every sort of mechanical contraption that could be found in these United States. He had visited health resorts without number. He got rid of his money easily enough—but his ailment stuck like glue.

Then Blake met a REAL doctor who refused to write a prescription, but told him what to do. And in two days he was well. It didn't cost a penny . . . . But you will probably want to read the entire article so we won't spoil it for you.

"What You Should Know About the Mind Cure"
by Annie Riley Hale

As ordinary, practical people we know that we want health in both body and mind.

We do not feel that right thinking or autosuggestion or any form of mind cure can nullify poisoning through wrong diet, drugs, narcotics, bad air, or incomplete elimination, or that one can so easily offset other results of bad habits and conditions of life. But given satisfactory physical condition, then the attitude of the mind becomes of tremendous importance and may either hinder or help very greatly.

There has been so much speculation and discussion regarding the effect of mind over matter and vice versa that this resume by one of the most capable living writers on scientific subjects will be of particular value to you.

"The Big Indian Chief With the Big Voice"
by A. F. Harlow

It is a far cry from the lofty peaks of the Andes to the stage of the Metropolitan Opera House where Chief Caupolican holds vast audiences in thrall. How he developed his great, beautiful voice and the superb physique that enabled him to bridge the seemingly impossible gap reads like a wonderful novel written by a master hand, In Physical Culture for December.

"Are Cereal Foods Health Foods"
by Milo Hastings

Mr. Hastings, Director of the Physical Culture Food Research Laboratory has been conducting a protracted series of feeding experiments to determine the relative values of leading brands of cereal foods. In this article he tells you the facts you ought to know about the very foods that appear upon nearly a million breakfast tables every morning.

"I Went Back to Nature—And Back to Health"
by Diane Pasquale

Every woman will profit by Diane Pasquale's amazing story. After the doctors had given her up she took a large dose of common sense and made a wonderful recovery. The beautifully illustrated series of exercises, developed specially for women, is alone worth many times the price of the magazine.

"What Cigarettes Will Do to Your Growing Boy"
by G. D. Brandon

Will show you by facts and figures the actual effect that tobacco has upon the mentality of the not-yet-fully-developed young man. It answers a question that every responsible mother and father ask themselves sooner or later.

OPERA

By BERNARD ALDRICH.

"Carmen."

Carmen.....Florence Easton
Micaela.....Queena Mario (debut)
Frasquita.....Charlotte Ryan (debut)
Mercedes.....Marion Telva
Don José.....Giovanni Martinelli
Escamillo.....Giuseppe De Luca
Dancaire.....Paolo Ananian
Remendado.....George Meader
Zuniga.....Louis D'Angelo
Morales.....Vincenzo Reschiglian
Conductor, Louis Hasselmans.

The first "Carmen" of the season was allotted to Thanksgiving afternoon at the Metropolitan Opera House. It seemed to suit the holiday taste of a large number of people, who heard it with evidences of interest. It was under the direction of Louis Hasselmans, and was a brisk and rather mellifluous performance on the whole, it had numerous interesting features.

Mme. Florence Easton was the Carmen, a part she has taken before not infrequently at the Metropolitan, and successfully, as she does most of the parts she attempts. Her Carmen yesterday seemed to have made a slight gain in rowdiness and vulgarity, and was extremely vicious, although less destructive of the furniture than some other Carmens have been. Mme. Easton's voice seemed to be somewhat constricted in the first act; later she sang with greater freedom and with great brilliancy.

Mr. Martinelli was the Don José, as he too frequently has been before, and was quite as stentorian in voice as ever. Some may wonder how lately he has looked at the pages of the score that contain the air ("La Fleur que tu m'avais jetée"), and when he did, whether he noticed the composer's directions as to its dynamics. Mr. De Luca's Escamillo is admirable in singing and in action; it needs, perhaps, only a heavier voice than he brings to the part. It would be hard to bring greater finish.

A new soprano of the company made her first performance with it as Micaela—Miss Queena Mario. She has had experience in Mr. Scotti's opera company and elsewhere; and she has had the training of Mme. Sembrich in the art of singing. Both these facts were evidenced by her performance. She attempted to make it something more than the perfunctorily acceptable presentation of a minor part. She put something of character, something of significant detail into it, and she sang the music, her aria and her part in the duet, with style and finish, in a voice rather small but of agreeable timbre.

A highly satisfactor feature of this performance of "Carmen" to some purists if not to some enthusiastic playgoers was the fact that the principal artists seemed to avoid the recognition of applause during the scene, even at the end of their airs, but stood, knelt or sat, as the case might be, immovable, till they were allowed to go on.

"La Traviata."

"La Traviata," already sung in Brooklyn, was added to the local series at the Metropolitan last evening. True, the title of "Camille" should have been a Countess, at least, in the admired person of charmian Lucrezia Bori, who looked too good to be untrue; but since when was sickening to Violetta to have personal charm? Miss Bori's lyric singing was paired with that of Gigli and Danise as the Germonts, son and father, while others were Mmes. Evener and Anthony, Messrs. Bada, Pisoni, Angelo and Italo Picchi, the last named making a modest debut as Doctor Grenvil. Gaull and Bentivoglio danced and Mr. Moranzoni conducted. Verdi's opera is again announced for Saturday night of next week. There will then be further opportunity to observe with what skill Miss Bori discounts the hypnotic of exacting coloratura, she avoided one hurdle of a high B flat while investing this music, if not its heroine's character, with much sincere emotion.

The Boston Symphony Orchestra.

The Boston Symphony Orchestra made its first appearance in New York this season in Carnegie Hall last evening. It was probably not the most fortunate evening of the year on which to begin a series of symphony concerts; and the audience seemed to show the effect of a counter attraction at home. However this may have been, the orchestra was in remarkably fine form as it played a program in which older art (its most recent music figured in Ravel's "Daphnis") and Berlioz's "Fantastic Symphony" unquestionably now belongs to older music, and shows it more and more at each new hearing. It is some ninety-two years old and does not betray it. The paucity of specifically musical ideas in the composition is equalled only by the fullness of extant biographical and autobiographical details concerning it. The symphony has been much written about, and it is all interesting reading, so long as there is no requirement to hear a performance of it. Then the interest completely collapses, swallowed up in musical dullness. As for the orchestration, that is of great historic importance; but it no longer impresses modern ears as extraordinary in and of itself.

The performance under Mr. Monteux's direction was a brilliant one that missed not one of Berlioz's points. The last two movements at least were soothing and splendid.

The symphony was followed by R. Vaughan Williams's "Fantasia on a theme by Thomas Tallis" for double string orchestra. The English composer broke it a dozen years ago; it was first heard in New York last season, played by the New York Symphony Orchestra. It improved on further acquaintance, especially when that acquaintance was renewed in the truly fine performance that Mr. Monteux led.

Thomas Tallis, it will be recalled, was a sixteenth century English composer. The theme is a tune he wrote for a psalm to at its time, it was necessarily, in one of Dr. Ecclesiastical modes then in use. Mr. Williams has retained completely the modal characteristics in his harmonization of this fantasia, which justifies its name through the rich play of fancy that he has brought to bear on it, the great skill with which it is wrought, and especially the fine and delicate effects of tone that he has made by his luminous division of the orchestra.

But the impression is new, as it was on the first performance of the fantasia, that Mr. Williams has carried it too far. The modal harmonies exclusively used produce an effect of monotony in a modern ear sometime before the end is reached. The composer would undoubtedly have strengthened his effect by greater conciseness.

Two pieces by the late talented American composer, Charles Tomlinson Griffes, were played: "Clouds" and "The White Peacock." Both of these pieces have been previously heard in New York. Both were originally for the piano. In the composer's Op. 7, entitled "Roman Sketches," it is not stated whether the orchestration is by Mr. Griffes or not. By whomever it is, it is exceedingly subtle in its imaginative use of orchestral color to enhance the effect of musical ideas in themselves elusive but singularly full of suggestion. The pieces are both enchanting and were enchantingly played.

They were followed by the symphonic poem, "Stenka Razin," written by Glazunow in his youth before he had become so reckless in his output of orchestral compositions.

Ethel Katz, Young Pianist, Appears.

Ethel Katz, a fifteen-year-old pianist, appeared for the first time in recital in Aeolian Hall last evening before a small audience. The program included Bach, Beethoven, Chopin, Rachmaninoff, Brahms and Liszt compositions. In Beethoven's "Appassionata" sonata she played with a technique that was somewhat advanced for her age, but without the depth of feeling such as this music calls for. Bach's favorite in B minor was played with a certain brilliance.

Theatres Crowded on Thanksgiving.

Thanksgiving Day proved the customary bonanza for the New York theatres. Capacity audiences were the rule in practically every theatre last night, and the holiday matinees, while not sold out in most cases, attracted large audiences. In the Keith vaudeville houses throughout the country messages appropriate to the day were flashed upon the motion picture screens.

THEATRICAL NOTES.

The Casino Theatre will celebrate its fortieth anniversary on Dec. 22. Many stars who acquired their fame at the Casino will be introduced from the stage on that night during the performance of "Sally, Irene and Mary."

"Merton of the Movies" will be produced in London by Robert Courtneidge.

"The Love Market," by Erno Vajda, will be produced here by the Continental Play Company. The play, which has been produced in a number of Continental cities, has been adapted by Edward Emery and Louis Rittenberg. Margot Kelly will head the cast.

Jane Manner will give the last of her current series of dramatic readings at Aeolian Hall tomorrow night.

GUN FLOURISHER WOUNDED.

Eight Men Attack Him When He Draws Weapon in Club.

In a fight in a club near Forty-fourth Street and Twelfth Avenue early yesterday among Greeks and Jugoslavs Charles Chatich, a tailor, brandish a revolver. Eight men attacked Chatich, and left him in the street a block away. Chatich, who lives at 1620 Eleventh Avenue, is in Bellevue Hospital, with stab wounds in the face and body and his right eye so badly gouged that he probably will lose it. He is a prisoner on a charge of violating the Sullivan Law.

Detectives James Fitzpatrick and Stephen Love, of the West Forty-seventh Street Station, arrested a man and took him to Bellevue, where he was identified by Chatich. He said he was John Gurnov, 30, of 656 Ninth Avenue. He was held in $1,000 bail by Magistrate Moses J. Rothstein in West Side Court, charged with felonious assault.

MOTION PICTURE NOTES.

New motion pictures next week will be "Lorna Doone," directed by Maurice Tourneur, at the Strand; "A Blind Bargain," with Lon Chaney, at the Capitol; "Outcast," with Elsie Ferguson, at the Rivoli; "A Daughter of Luxury," with Agnes Ayres, at the Rialto, and "The Super-Sex," with Robert Gordon, at the Cameo.

D. W. Griffith's "The Birth of a Nation" will be revived at the Selwyn Theatre on Monday evening for one week only.

Buster Keaton's latest comedy, "The Blacksmith," will be at the Rivoli next week.

A one-reel film, based on the Einstein theory, made by Professor Delmar Whitson and Jesse E. Orndorff, will be shown at the Capitol next week. Robert C. Bruce's "The Split Outfit," one of the "Wilderness Tales," will also be on the program.

The annual entertainment for the benefit of the Seaside Home for Crippled Children will be given at the Strand Theatre this morning at 10:30 o'clock.

"One Exciting Night" will end its engagement at the Apollo Theatre on next Sunday evening.

The annual dance of the Motion Picture Theatre Owners' Chamber of Commerce will be held at the Hotel Astor tomorrow evening.

The annual dance of the Goldwyn Pictures Corporation will be held at the Astor on Dec. 15.

MOTION PICTURES.

A.—Entertainment.
Q.—What is entertainment?
A.—According to the dictionary, it is
1. A diverting performance—(and that's what Barry Craner gives in "THE TOWN THAT FORGOT GOD.")
2. Amusement—(and that's what you'll get in "THE TOWN THAT FORGOT GOD.")
3. Entertaining in the mind—(and your mind will thrill as never before as you watch "THE TOWN THAT FORGOT GOD.")

The Evening Mail says: "This picture is done with real power."

LOVERS LANE

Do you like love stories? Surely your heart beats in time with Cupid! Here, then, is a brand-new handy-sized magazine, for you today, brimful of delightful heart tales which will make you fall in love with it at sight.

LOVERS LANE will lead you into the golden realm of Romance! This is the first number ever published, but from now on, every two weeks, LOVERS LANE will be waiting for you with a wonderful garland of romantic stories and tender counsels to your heart.

10c TODAY ON ALL NEWSSTANDS

Eight splendid stories in this, the first number, of the kind you'll love to read. Seven other novel features. There is a letter to the lovelorn from the sweetheart you have not yet met. THE HEART HEALER—a remarkable exclusive LOVERS LANE feature; she will solve your love problems if you will only let her. There are poetry, glamor, tales of enthralling heart-adventure—all in the new handy-sized magazine which will make you ask: "Why hasn't this been done before?"

Dobie's Big Red Team Completes Its Second Consecutive Season Without a Defeat.

QUAKERS LACK OFFENSIVE

Red and Blue Holds Score Down by Stubborn Defense—Cassidy and Hanson Count.

65,000 WITNESS CONTEST

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 30.—Coach Gilmour Dobie's high-geared Cornell steam-roller, which has been accustomed to having things pretty much its own way in gridiron affairs this season and which has piled up a mountain of points during the year, met an unexpected Tartar when it crashed into the hard-fighting University of Pennsylvania eleven at Franklin Field here this afternoon.

At the end of sixty minutes of fighting, during which the Ithacan offense completely eclipsed that of the Red and Blue, the final score of the annual Thanksgiving Day battle between these two old-gridiron rivals stood 9 to 0 against the Pennsylvanians, who went down with colors flying as a result of their terrific defensive battle at critical stages.

The result was somewhat of a disappointment for the men from the shores of Lake Cayuga who, on the basis of past deeds and in comparison with Penn's comparatively modest achievements, were expected to add mightily to their season's total at the expense of the rejuvenated Red and Blue.

In spite of this, however, the Cornellians are rejoicing tonight, for today's victory, scant though it was, marked the second consecutive defeat that the Ithacans have meted out to their ancient conquerors and it likewise marked the second consecutive season that the Red and White eleven has gone through its schedule without being defeated. The honor of being the team last to humble the Dobie eleven belongs to the team that was vanquished today, Penn having turned in a 28 to 0 count against the Ithacans on Thanksgiving Day two years ago.

One touchdown and a placement goal was the final margin that separated the two teams today, but Cornell showed enough drive to have put over one or two more tallies, only the masterful fight of Penn preventing the score from mounting higher.

A crowd estimated at 65,000 witnessed the gridiron struggle. The new Franklin Field Stadium was filled to overflowing with a gathering of holiday football enthusiasts, attracted by the promise of a stirring battle in this clash of the Ithacans with the Quaker City collegians. In its sentiments the larger part of the gathering was naturally partical to the Penn team, but there was a goodly assemblage of Cornell supporters, who made themselves heard frequently through the fray as the Ithacans fought to maintain their unblemished season's record.

Cassidy Makes Touchdown.

To Charles E. Cassidy of Honolulu, formerly of Hitchcock Military Academy, went the honor of making the lone touchdown, when he pierced right tackle for a 3-yard gain in the middle of the third period, after the Ithacans had made a march of fifty-six yards on the famous off-tackle slants and straight rushes.

Leonard C. Hanson, Cornell's big left tackle, failed to convert the try for extra point into a marker, when his kick went wide of the cross bars but earlier in the game he put his team mates out in front with a magnificent goal from placement on the 32-yard line. Twice later he tried his foot, but both kicks went astray.

Cornell's team, which has bowled over Colgate, Dartmouth and all its other opponents this season, in winning by a 9-0 score brought its scoring total 339 points to its opponents 29.

Penn held the Ithacans to their smallest score of the season today, the Dobie pupils averaging 47 1-7 points per game in all the preliminary contests.

Pfann Outshines Kaw.

It was not Captain Eddie Kaw, who was playing his farewell game, who ran wild as in 1921, but Quarterback George R. Pfann. The Marion, Ohio, boy outshone the versatile Kaw when it came to ground gaining.

Kaw was brilliant at times, but Pfann performed much better than the Penn coaches had figured. In the off-tackle thrusts it was Pfann who was always good for 3 or 5 yards at a clip.

Aiding Pfann in the steady marches, Cornell also owes its victory to the wonderful machine-like play of the other backs, Ramsey, Cassidy and Kaw. This was their second straight year together and they functioned like a well-oiled racing car for the most of the day.

Three times in all Cornell took the ball from beyond midfield right up to the very shadow of the goal line and on two occasions Penn put up a masterful stand and took the ball on downs.

The first big Cornell drive came almost at the start of the game when the big red team started from its own 32-yard line and never stopped until a pass, Kaw to Goulnlock, failed to get the necessary seven yards by a scant three feet, and the Red and Blue took the ball on downs on its own 8-yard line.

Hanson Kicks Field Goal.

Following that fine stand, Hamer was obliged to punt out from behind his own goal line and the ball sailed out of bounds on Penn's 23-yard line. Cornell was halted again in line plays, but Hanson's good right foot came to its rescue, when he kicked his placement goal from the 32-yard line.

When Penn lost the ball on downs on its own 37-yard line in the middle of the second period, Cornell's powerful backs swung into action again and dashed right down to the 6-yard line, where two passes failed and again Penn took the ball on downs.

Those splendid stands right in front of the goal line led thousands of Penn rooters in the stands as well as the Red and Blue coaches to believe that Penn would come back in the third period and open up with an attack that would baffle the Ithacans the same as it baffled the Navy and Penn State, but Cornell had a punch of its own and after taking Hamer's punt on its own 44-yard line, Dobie's Red and White toilers cracked away with Pfann and Ramsey doing most of the ground gaining, and finally Cassidy buried his body over the goal line for the one and only touchdown.

Penns' Passes Gain.

Penn tried desperately after that, a forward pass, Hamer to Miller to Fairchild, gaining twenty-seven yards in the third period, but immediately Cornell braced and forced Penn to punt.

Again the final period. After Hanson had missed a placement goal from the 24-yard line, Sullivan heaved a long pass to Grant Westate for a 30-yard gain, but Penn could not follow it up and Sullivan was soon forced to kick.

Cornell had Penn well sized up on the short passes over the line of scrimmage and on straight line bucks, and the Red and Blue was not able to do much with the Ithacan's forwards.

Only two first downs from actual scrimmage were gained by Penn during the game, and both came on forward passes. Cornell made sixteen and outrushed the Red and Blue 285 yards to 125.

DETROIT IS VICTOR ON TWO SAFETIES

Special to The New York Times.

DETROIT, Nov. 30.—Of all the scoring plays in football the safety is the one most seldom seen, yet four points scored through this medium represented the margin of the University of Detroit's victory over the University of Vermont this afternoon at Dinan Field. The score was 14 to 10.

With the Green Mountain team scoring a touchdown and the try for point in less than the first half minute of play, Detroit was forced to fight from behind throughout the first half. In every period the home players scored and it was a safety in the third period which put them in the lead.

Vermont confined all its scoring to the first period, although the visitors threatened to forge into the lead in the final quarter only to be stopped inside the 5-yard line. The visitors' touchdown was made when Beck ran the opening kick-off through the whole Detroit team and across the goal line.

Gaining the lead in the opening quarter the Green Mountaineers played almost solely on the defensive throughout the first half. After Detroit gained the lead in the third period Vermont opened an offensive which threatened, but finally broke.

BATTLE TO 7-7 TIE.

Michigan Aggies and St. Louis Each Score Touchdown and Goal.

ST. LOUIS, Mo., Nov. 30.—The Michigan Aggies and the St. Louis University football eleven battled to a 7-to-7 draw here today, each team scoring a touchdown and kicking a goal.

Profiting by penalties exacted of St. Louis, the Aggies drew close to the line in the first period and scored when Loiret plunged through centre for four yards across the goal line. The locals rallied in the third period, carrying the ball from mid-field across the Aggies' goal line.

Western St. John's Wins.

DELAFIELD, Wis., Nov. 30.—St. John's Military Academy, Middle Western prep champions of 1921, today defeated St. John's Military of Syracuse, 19 to 7. The Eastern team claims the Eastern academic championship.

Cornell Gains Another Lap In Long Race With Penn

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 30.—Gilmour Dobie's big team from Ithaca pulled Cornell a lap nearer to Pennsylvania today in the football race which has endured for twenty-nine years between the two colleges. Cornell has now scored six victories. But one tie has been played and the Quakers still boast a comfortable margin as the following table shows:

COLGATE SMOTHERS COLUMBIA, 59 TO 6

Scores Five Touchdowns for Visitors—Centre Formation Flattens Blue and White Defense.

When the sixty minutes of holiday football were over at South Field yesterday, Colgate had made 59 points and Columbia 6. It was the last game for the Blue and White team this season and it marked also the passing of Frank J. ("Buck") O'Neill as head coach of the Morningside Heights eleven. In his three years at Columbia O'Neill had been attempting to mold a substantial lot of material into a winning aggregation and yesterday, sitting on the sidelines, he saw his final efforts in coaching crumble under one of the worst defeats that a team of his has ever experienced. It is understood that O'Neill will not don coaching togs again, but will give his entire time to the practice of law.

There were no glaring errors in yesterday's game. It was merely a case of one team being a good 53 points better than another. The crowd of 12,000 that packed the South Field stands had little trouble in seeing that Colgate had a much more powerful machine. Its advance was much like that of a war tank—it couldn't be stopped.

There are always gridiron heroes in Thanksgiving Day battles. And the crowds are always anxious to see some veteran, playing his last game for his alma mater, fill that part. But yesterday the hero was a lad just out of Sheffield Preparatory School, a freshman at Colgate. This was Eddie Tryon, who did everything that a back field man could be asked to do. When there was a gain to be made Tryon made it. When there was a touchdown to be made Tryon made it. If Tryon continues to improve in the art of making touchdowns during his next three years in college there will be need of having an adding machine to keep tabs on his scores. In yesterday's battle he scored five times, more than all the rest of the men on both teams were able to do.

Centre Play Effective.

Colgate had more than individual brilliancy. Dick Harlow, former assistant coach at Penn State, brought along his famous "Harlow centre play" that gave his men an opportunity to show the value of team-work. That play was responsible for almost every touchdown, and in the first half 269 yards were gained by its use alone. The play is aimed directly at the centre of the eleven to see the play start, but from then on all that can be seen is a Maroon-covered player putting yard after yard behind him with other players all about him. There is a story that Harlow developed the play while at Penn State and wanted Bezdek to use it, but Bezdek refused.

One of the cogs in the Colgate play was Welch, the 215-pound right guard. Welch was not only a power in the line but ran his total of goals from placement after touchdowns up to 28 for the season by kicking five yesterday. Welch also had two field goals to his credit, one from the 15-yard line and the other from the 34-yard line.

Colgate did not wait long to start the avalanche of touchdowns. Five minutes after the first quarter had started Roderick was forced to punt. Tryon got the ball over Colgate's 40-yard line and back five yards. Then Colgate started the centre play and Tryon took the ball to Columbia's 30-yard line. Two more plays by Morgan and Mason carried the ball to the 10-yard line. Two on made the necessary ten yards on the next play through centre. Welch's kick for goal went wide. Shortly before the first quarter ended Colgate added another touchdown when Mason scored.

In the second quarter Colgate added ten more points on another touchdown by Mason and a field goal by Welch from the 35-yard line. In the third quarter Colgate changed her tactics for a moment and tried the forward passing game. With the ball on the 24-yard line Mason shot a short forward to the mighty Tryon who ran seventy-six yards for the touchdown. By the time mid-field had been reached only one man stood in the way of that score. Roderick started racing toward Tryon, but Rathbone, who had been carrying grass during Tryon down the field, threw himself in Roderick's path and left the field open.

Columbia kicked off on the next play and three line rushes put the ball in Blue and White territory again. Reviving the centre play, Morgan shot through the middle of the line from the 29-yard line and took the ball to the 2-yard line. Tryon scored on the next play. Again Gehrig kicked off and Tryon ran the ball from the 10-yard line to mid-field. A forward pass from Morgan to Tryon netted sixteen yards. Then came two line plays that were good for only five yards. Then Morgan hurled another short forward to Tryon and before Columbia realized what was happening this freshman star had scored another touchdown.

Colgate seemed to think that touchdowns were becoming monotonous. When the visitors had received the ball on the next play they advanced it to Columbia's 36-yard line and Welch kicked a field goal. In the final quarter Tryon and Welch both made touchdowns.

The Morningside Heights team made its lone touchdown in the second quarter. Columbia was on the 40-yard line when Roderick hurled a forward pass to Gehrig, who was waiting on the 5-yard line. Before the Colgate players could get to Gehrig he had taken the necessary steps to carry him over the goal line.

Brilliant Run by Koppisch.

The closest that the Lion came to scoring another touchdown was in the game quarter when Koppisch, whose work stood out as the best any Columbia player showed, caught a punt on his own 43-yard line and ran to Colgate's 10-yard line. Attempts to gain on line plunges proved futile and on the last down Columbia resorted to the forward pass. An unidentified Maroon lad jumped into the air and broke it up.

The score was the largest that has been run up against Columbia this season.

FORT SMITH, Ark., Nov. 30.—Edwin Kubale has been elected captain of the Centre College Praying Colonels for 1923, according to word received here tonight. Kubale is the third Fort Smith boy to be elected captain of the famous Centre squad. He is playing his second year with Centre College and succeeds Red McCoyle, 1922 captain.

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 30.—Twenty-two members of the Cornell and Pennsylvania football squads completed their gridiron careers on Franklin Field this afternoon when the two teams clashed in their annual battle. Ten of the Ithacans, four of them regulars, will be graduated in June and twelve of the Red and Blue players, eight being first-string men. Among the Cornellians who wore the moleskins for the last time is one whose place will be hard to fill—Eddie Kaw, brilliant left halfback. The other regulars are Goulnlock, end; Hanson, tackle, and Rollo, guard. The chief Penn losses are Captain Pos Miller, little halfback, whose defensive work today figured prominently in holding the Cornell steam-roller down; Thurman, the big Quacker tackle; Ertresvaag and Johnson, ends; Langdon and Voegelin, guarters; Sullivan, halfback, and Graf, guard.

VIRGINIA TEAM BOWS TO NORTH CAROLINA

Special to The New York Times.

CHARLOTTESVILLE, Va., Nov. 30.—Playing true to its form displayed throughout the season, the North Carolina eleven defeated Virginia this afternoon, 10 to 7, and kept its record clean so far as Southern teams are concerned, losing only to Yale. Ten thousand persons witnessed the battle.

Soon after the game got under way, Johnston, North Carolina's star back, recovered a fumble on Virginia's 20-yard line and, when rushing failed, booted over a placement kick for three points.

After an exchange of punts in the second half the visitors started a march to the goal from their own 38-yard line. Merritt's dashes accounted for most of the gains, but a forward pass from McDonald to Johnson enabled the latter to sprint 28 yards over the line. Blount booted the ball between the bars for the extra point.

Carolina threatened several times in the closing period but lacked the punch. Both teams were about equal on the defense, but Carolina had a superior backfield and was more successful in its aerial attack.

SOUTH CAROLINA IS BEATEN BY CENTRE

Colonels Complete Fourteen Forward Passes and Win by Score of 42 to 0.

DANVILLE, Ky., Nov. 30.—The Centre College Colonels closed the season here today by administering a 42-to-0 defeat to the University of South Carolina eleven. South Carolina never was in striking distance of the Centre goal and only made first downs in the first and final quarters.

Centre rallied with complete success on the overhead game, completing fourteen forward passes for a total of 247 yards gained. South Carolina tried two passes. Both were intercepted.

The first quarter passed without a score by either side. The Colonels hit their stride in the second quarter, however, with three touchdowns, Covington through right tackle, Hudgins around left end, and Roberts through left tackle. Goals were kicked for each touchdown. One of the most sensational runs of the game came in this period when Thomasson ran 55 yards on an intercepted pass.

Centre added seven points in the third period on a touchdown through left tackle by Tanner, Roberts kicking goal. Two touchdowns, Snowday on a forward pass, received beyond the goal line and Cecil on a pass, with goals in the final period completed the tally. Roberts tried two dropkicks from the 58-yard line in this period but both missed by narrow margins.

TECH TAMES THE TIGERS.

Georgia Eleven Defeats Auburn Team by Score of 14 to 6.

ATLANTA, Ga., Nov. 30.—Georgia Tech's Yellow Jackets proved the undoing of the Auburn Tigers this afternoon by winning their twenty-fourth annual Thanksgiving football game with the Alabama team, 14 to 6. Both elevens entered the contest with an unblemished Southern record for the season.

The Tigers got within striking distance of the Tech goal line only three times during the game, except the one occasion when they crossed it for a touchdown, and were forced to go without a first down in the second and third periods.

Auburn scored when Lawrence recovered a fumble and the Tigers rushed it across for a touchdown from the Tech 16-yard line. The Tigers failed to kick goal.

Tech was first to score. Getting the ball on Auburn's 38-yard line on a punt, a forward pass netted 14 yards. Three line plays carried the ball 10 yards, and McDonough plunged through the Auburn team for a touchdown. Brewster scored the point from placement. The Jackets' next touchdown came in the third period after they got possession of the pigskin near midfield and carried it across on line plunges.

Nebraska Elects Captain.

PITTSBURGH BEATS PENN STATE, 14-0

FLANAGAN HERO OF DAY

Special to The New York Times.

PITTSBURGH, Nov. 30.—The Pitt Panthers rode roughshod over the Penn State team today and won by the score of 14 to 0, breaking a tie that had existed for two years. Since Penn State's 20 to 9 victory in the 1920 game neither eleven has succeeded in crossing the other's goal line until today.

It was a clean-cut victory for Pitt, as the Center County boys never really menaced the Panthers' line and the local tacklers paid particular attention to Wilson, Hufford and Palm.

During the first half, which was fruitless as far as a score was concerned, the Panthers made five first downs to two by State. They might have scored in the first period but for a fumble by Hewitt which did not result in much advantage to State. The big fellow made amends for his error during the remaining periods until he was relieved by Colonna near the end of the game, and he was given a great ovation as he left the field after having played his last game for Pitt.

Another thrill was given the students when just before the game ended, Captain Tommy Holleran, who was hurt in the Lafayette game early in October and has not played since, trotted onto the field a sensational game, and shared with Hewitt and Anderson in making Pitt's touchdowns possible.

State Defense Weak.

The State line did not seem very strong at the start, and when the visitors had the ball in Pitt territory, right on the heels of the kick-off, and failed to make material gains, it apparently heartened the Panthers to know that their task would not be as hard as that against W. and J. ten days ago.

After Bentz had kicked off to Winterburn on the 10-yard line and the quarterback had run back 17 yards, Hewitt fumbled on the first scrimmage and Wentz fell on the ball on Pitt's 27-yard line. After the visitors had failed to gain on three attempts, Palm stepped back to the 35-yard line for a try for goal, which went wide of the mark, and Pitt put the ball in play on its own 20-yard line. Hewitt and Flanagan were then used as battering-rams, aided by two short end runs by Anderson, and in a short time three first downs had been registered and the Panthers had taken the ball into the enemy zone. The Blue and White managed to hold, recovering the ball on downs.

Wilson and Palm were then entrusted with the task of gaining ground, but the severe tackling of Jack Sack smothered every attempt, and Mike Palm was forced to show what he could do in the punting game.

The only first down made by Penn State in the first quarter was just before it ended, when two double passes from Palm to Wilson made the necessary ten yards. Then on a forward pass Penn State made another 10-yard gain which was lost by reason of a 15-yard penalty against the Blue and White, and Pitt got the ball on State's 46-yard line when the period ended.

Try for Goal Fails.

Penn State made its best defensive stand just after the start of the second period, when Bezdek's men held for downs on their own 10-yard line. After two attempts to forward pass had been broken up, Flanagan went back to the 34-yard line and tried for a field goal. The ball went wide and over the line. Palm fumbled on the first play but recovered for an 8-yard loss. He then kicked to Anderson, who ran the ball back fifteen yards before Wilson smeared him. Toward the end of the period the visitors tried time after time to make gains by the aerial route, without results, and Pitt got the ball and started a drive that was interrupted by three penalties for offside and holding. Penn State had the ball when the whistle blew, the last play being an attempt at field goal by Palm from the 45-yard line.

When the teams appeared on the field for the second half, the Panthers started to pound the State line. Flanagan and Hewitt rarely failed to make gains and the ball was carried to the 34-yard line where State held and Williams tried unsuccessfully for a field goal from the 34-yard line. Palm immediately punted to Flanagan, who ran the ball back ten yards, after which Flanagan, Anderson and Hewitt were the burden bearers who carried the ball to State's 10-yard line, where the Nittany Lions made their best stand of the day, holding for downs right in the shadow of the goal posts.

Runs to 6-Yard Line.

The relief was shortlived for, when Palm punted out, "Hoot" Flanagan took the punt and ran through a broken field for forty-four yards before Palm brought him to the ground on the 6-yard line. Two tries by Hewitt made 5 yards and Flanagan shot through right tackle for a touchdown. He hit the goal posts full tilt, but was not daunted. Williams succeeded in booting the ball between the uprights on a placement kick from the 10-yard line, and the score was 7 to 0.

Opening the third period with the ball on their own 34-yard line, the Panthers continued to go through the State line and two first downs were recorded in three minutes of play. The ball was carried to State's 25-yard line and Hewitt gave way to Nick Colonna. The latter failed in his first attempt to gain. But he got his bearings immediately and emulated his predecessor by pushing aside his opponents for material gains until the ball was on State's 13-yard line, where a beautifully executed forward pass from Flanagan to Anderson, as the latter was crossing the line, gave Pitt the second and last touchdown. Williams was again successful in converting the touchdown into a goal with a placement kick, making the score 14 to 0.

Whistle Halts March.

Shortly after Williams had kicked off for Pitt the Panthers again got the ball and began another steady march toward the State goal line, when the game ended.

STUYVESANT HIGH TEAM IS SWAMPED

Special to The New York Times.

HARRISBURG, Pa., Nov. 30.—The clever Maroon and Gray eleven from Harrisburg Technical School triumphed over the heavy Stuyvesant High School team of New York City in a one-sided football game played on the Island Grounds here this afternoon before a crowd of 3,000 fans. The game was full of thrills and forward passes, but at no time after the first few minutes of play was the result doubtful. The final score was: Tech 65, Stuyvesant 0.

Both teams tried many forward passes, but less than one-third were successful. Wisler, Tech's brilliant end, scored a touchdown on the prettiest play of the game, a long forward pass from Wilsbach. Wisler's defensive play was a feature of the game. Casell, who had to be taken from the game on account of injuries received in the second quarter, made big holes in the Stuyvesant line time and again.

Wilsbach, McClinn and Nye were the outstanding offensive players for Tech. This trio tore off 20, 25 and 30 yard runs at will through the line as well as around the Stuyvesant ends. Stuyvesant's greatest fault was her lack of a good punter. She was forced to punt many times, but few of her kicks travelled more than thirty yards.

For Stuyvesant, much credit should be given her diminutive quarterback, Whalen, who ran through the Tech team on several occasions for beautiful gains. He was injured in the first half and his loss was keenly felt by his teammates. Stuyvesant did some good tackling for Stuyvesant. Tech made 23 first downs from scrimmage, while Stuyvesant made only 9.

The line-up:

HARRISBURG (65).		STUYVESANT (0).
Bihl	L.E.	Kosteinik
Bond	L.T.	Shaw
Lyons	L.G.	Feurer

MUHLENBERG EASY WINNER.

Special to The New York Times.

ALLENTOWN, Pa., Nov. 30.—Muhlenberg College closed its football season today with a victory over its old rival, Ursinus, by the score of 28 to 0. The distinguishing feature of the game was the work of Holstrom, Crum and Reese. Muhlenberg's stars, who retire from the game because of their graduation next June.

The Cardinal and Gray halfbacks, Witt and Slemmer, also starred by spectacular plays, the former scoring two touchdowns and four successful tries for points, each a dr

MIKE O'DOWD BEATS ROSENBERG ON FOUL

Earns Right to World's Middleweight Championship Title in New York State.

BOUT GOES EIGHT ROUNDS

St. Paul Veteran Sets Furious Pace From Outset, but His Punches Lack Former Power.

Mike O'Dowd, veteran St. Paul boxer, regained the world's middleweight championship yesterday afternoon, in so far as the title is recognized by the State Athletic Commission. O'Dowd won on a foul from Dave Rosenberg, Brooklyn youngster, in the eighth round of what promised to have been a fifteen-round battle at the Rink Sporting Club, Brooklyn. Rosenberg, through a victory over Phil Krug last August, was recognized here as the world's middleweight champion, after the State Athletic Commission had declared the title vacated because of Johnny Wilson's refusal to fulfill a contract to box Harry Greb. So when Rosenberg was disqualified for fouling O'Dowd, the Brooklynite automatically lost the title to the St. Paul boxer.

The disqualification came after 2 minutes 20 seconds of the eighth session. Referee Patsy Haley, after several times warning Rosenberg for erratic hitting in the previous rounds, finally stepped between the boxers when a right-hand blow landed low and curled O'Dowd on the ring canvas in evident pain. Rosenberg, disconsolate, protested the disqualification and pleaded with Referee Haley. The referee, however, pointed out the frequent warnings he had issued to Rosenberg and left the ring. O'Dowd's handlers, led by Paddy Mullins, leaped to the side of the stricken boxer and assisted him to his corner. After about ten minutes O'Dowd was assisted out of the ring and to his dressing room.

In the dressing room, Dr. James E. Thompson, official physician of the State Athletic Commission, subjected O'Dowd to an examination and afterward announced that he had discovered that a rupture had occurred. He indicated that O'Dowd had been fouled. O'Dowd was stretched on the rubbing table, covered with overcoats, for some time before he was able to leave the club.

Says Blow Was Not Intentional.

In his dressing room on the opposite side of the club Rosenberg was the centre of a swarming gathering of friends and admirers. The disqualified boxer was depressed and could not be cheered. He disclaimed any intention of violating the rules and was evidently expressed regret at the unsatisfactory ending of the match. "Maybe I accidentally hit low in the previous rounds when I was warned by the referee," said Rosenberg. "I don't think I did, but maybe the referee was justified in warning me. But I do not think I hit O'Dowd low at the time I was disqualified. I'm sorry. I've had a hard time as a professional boxer. Everything was done to disqualify me. But I intend to go right along and convince everybody that I am a capable boxer."

Rosenberg exhibited a badly swollen left hand, with a painful bruise back of the thumb and near the wrist. He said he entered the ring with this injury after failing to get permission from the State Athletic Commission to postpone the bout until the injury disappeared. "They told me at the commission's office that they would grant a postponement that I would lose my license as a boxer unless I went through with the bout as scheduled," said Rosenberg. "I had no alternative, despite the complete loss of the use of my best hand, my left. I don't mind losing the title I was supposed to be holding. That doesn't affect me at all. But I hate to lose a bout under the circumstances that obtained in my match against O'Dowd."

Referee Haley declared after the bat- tle that he had promptly followed the rules in disqualifying Rosenberg. "I warned him several times in previous rounds against hitting low and I repeatedly admonished Rosenberg to use another method of protecting his body blows and to keep his punches fair," said Haley.

"It is a difficult thing to disqualify a boxer of Rosenberg's evident high character, but the rules must be observed and enforced. I had no alternative but to disqualify Rosenberg after my repeated warnings."

Rosenberg Under Handicap.

The bout itself was nothing to rave over. It was far from the standard of championship contests, and the result but adds to the confused situation which now prevails as to the middleweight title. On his showing against Rosenberg, O'Dowd would be an easy victim for the average middleweight. Although the majority of the fans were with O'Dowd when the battle started, obviously for sentimental reasons, there were many after the 'Frisco boy who declared without hesitation that Rosenberg with the use of his left hand, undoubtedly would have emerged the victor. Rosenberg, however, could not use his left. This was patent from the outset, as the Brooklynite's continued inactivity with the port flint was not explained until Rosenberg exhibited the injury in his dressing room after the bout.

O'Dowd's showing indicated that he has aged to an unusual degree. The St. Paul boxer was in as good form as possible in his present physical condition and age. But to those who were accustomed to the irresistible, crushing, furiously aggressive middleweight of two or three years ago, O'Dowd was but a shell. He had the fighting heart, a bulldog courage which many fighters might envy; he had the instinct and a fearless, almost reckless, disregard for the punishing strength of his rival, which carried O'Dowd in headlong, whirlwind rushes at Rosenberg in an assault whose pace was surprising and sensational at the time first. But the power of O'Dowd's punches has been lessened in the ordinary march of time—the blows lacked the old accuracy, sureness and sting, and O'Dowd's attack was mechanical, almost labored.

It appeared that O'Dowd's legs were not so strong as they once were. Judged on his showing against Rosenberg, O'Dowd's legs have stiffened until he is entirely robbed of the loosenessa and springiness which once were important elements in his boxing. He jumped about the ring and wheeled about mechanically after missing blows, always with his legs stiffened. Manager Mullins in response to a query after the bout said that there was nothing the matter with O'Dowd's legs; that the boxer always worked in the ring as he did against Rosenberg.

O'Dowd Takes Early Lead.

O'Dowd's surprisingly furious pace from the outset gave the St. Paul veteran an advantage in points up to the time Rosenberg was disqualified. O'Dowd rushed pell-mell and without guard from the time the bout started, always keeping stop Rosenberg with a fire-fisted onslaught, which, while impotent in so far as effects are concerned, nevertheless disorganized Rosenberg's style of battle and accumulated points for the St. Paul boxer. Early in the first round O'Dowd, rushing courageously against the blows of Rosenberg, almost forced Rosenberg through the ropes under a barrage of rights and lefts which O'Dowd hooked and swung from every angle and without particular aim. Rosenberg cut his rival's left eye with a hard right-hand smash which brought the blood before the round ended.

O'Dowd continued his rushing with unabated fury through the second and third sessions and had Rosenberg so busy on the defense that the latter had no time for a concerted offensive. A high right on the temple caught Rosenberg off balance in the third session and sent him down solidly. But Rosenberg was up in an instant, quite obviously unhurt by the blow. O'Dowd repeatedly sent his rival's head back with a left hook in the fourth round and countered frequently to the stomach at close quarters. The mixing was rough and Referee Haley had occasion to warn Rosenberg against erratic body punching in this session.

Through the fifth, sixth and seventh rounds O'Dowd continued his rushing at a sustained pace, which surprised many of the spectators. In each round Referee Haley cautioned Rosenberg to be careful with his body punches, as O'Dowd forced the milling and landed repeatedly with lefts and rights to the face and body.

O'Dowd was weakening under the pace and the blows Rosenberg sent home to the body at close quarters, but the St. Paul veteran gallantly resumed his determined offensive in the eighth round and was crowding Rosenberg about the ring when the foul which caused Rosenberg's disqualification, a low right, occurred. The crowd broke out in an excited demonstration when the bout was stopped, but the excitement soon subsided as special policemen cleared the aisles of spectators.

O'Dowd weighed 158 pounds and Rosenberg 156.

JOE LYNCH'S CROWN NEVER IN DANGER

INDIANAPOLIS, Nov. 30.—Joe Lynch, bantamweight champion of the world, won handily from Frankie Daly of New York in a ten-round boxing contest here this afternoon. Lynch outboxed his opponent all the way, having him groggy in the second and tenth rounds.

Daly's best round was the fourth when he caught the champion flush on the jaw and shook him up. Before the round ended, however, Lynch was back in the lead. Daly's best asset was his ability to absorb punishment.

Ross Murphy, Chicago lightweight, knocked out Billy Hennessey of Denver in the first round of the semi-final. Bobby Bridges of Indianapolis, a welterweight, knocked out August Kelley of Milwaukee in the fifth round of the other contest.

TO MAKE GARDEN DEBUT.

Four Out-of-Town Boxers Scheduled to Appear Here Dec. 11.

A card of four ten-round bouts will be the next attraction in Madison Square Garden. The contests will be conducted on Dec. 11. In the four matches arranged by Matchmaker Frank Flournoy will be a quartet of boxers who will be participating in their first Garden matches. Eddie (Kid) Wagner, Philadelphia featherweight, will make his Garden debut against Jack Bernstein, hard-hitting Yonkers boxer. Pee Wee Kaiser, St. Louis bantamweight, will tackle Irish Johnny Curtin of Jersey City in the former's first bout here. Sammy Mandell, Chicago lightweight is another newcomer to local boxing. He will tackle Harvey Bright, Brooklyn's "fighting medico." The other ten-round bout will be between Charley Beecher, east side featherweight title contender, and Frankie Garcia, Los Angeles scrapper, who is making the date the occasion for his debut here.

BARRETT OUTPOINTS MORAN

Wins Eight-Round Bout in Philadelphia—Dundee Loses to Hart.

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 30.—Bobby Barrett of Clifton Heights, Pa., defeated Pal Moran of New Orleans in an eight-round boxing bout here today. The first three rounds were even. After that, however, Barrett took the lead.

MAXIMAC BREAKS RECORD AT BOWIE

FEATURE OF CLOSING DAY

Special to The New York Times.

BALTIMORE, Nov. 30.—The triumphant showing of the Blue Grass region in Maryland's Autumn racing season, which closed this afternoon at the Bowie course, wound up with a special display of pyrotechnics when Maximac G. L. Blackford's three-year-old colt, galloped off with first honors in the rich Thanksgiving Handicap and thereby strengthened a Kentucky bank account to the extent of $7,300. He ran the mile and a quarter in 2:09 1-5, clipping a full second from the track record for the distance. F. E. Brown's consistent campaigner, Hephaistos, earned $2,000 for his owner by finishing second, a length and a half back of the victor, and another Kentucky aspirant, Monfort Jones's noted Rockminister, was a rather distant third.

The field of candidates for slices of the $10,000 added to the fixture was large, no less than fourteen thoroughbreds parading to Starter Marshal Cassidy's platform. That official got them lined up to suit his fancy without much difficulty and sent them off to a good start. As the webbing arose, Rockminister was first to show, but was quickly shuffled back and was in the rear ranks of the rushing pack at the quarter pole. Meanwhile, Hephaistos shot forward into the lead, but Marineill took the Brown racer up and Blazes went out to set a torrid pace for six furlongs, closely pursued by Maximac, while Lucky Hour, carrying the highest weight allotment, 124 pounds, was running third, a couple of lengths behind Maximac.

Lucky Hour Weakens.

Going to the stretch turn Lucky Hour, which, coupled with Bon Homme, was a heavily played favorite, began to weaken and with the tiring Blazes, gave up the struggle. At the head of the stretch, Copper Demon unleashed a flight of speed which took him into a good lead as the contestants straightened out for the dash to the wire. It was only a flash in the pan however, for when Shillick called upon Maximac a furlong out, the son of Golden Maxim took command with ease and drew out to win all alone, although Shillick, not disposed to take chances, gave the colt a gentle hand ride clear to the line.

Hephaistos, always in a good position, closed with determination down the stretch and beat Rockminister for the place by four lengths. The latter, which was the victim of bad racing luck at various stages of the battle, finished with a great rush which brought him from seventh place to third within the last sixteenth.

The Kentuckians practically monopolized the spotlight in the Au Revoi Handicap, in which Montfort Jones's fine filly, Fair Phantom, recorded her fourth successive victory of the meeting, beating Mr. Blackford's Gentility by half a length in an exciting finish. L. T. Bauer's Tippitty Witchet headed Paddle out of the money.

Fair Phantom's Victory.

Fair Phantom, which was the talent's choice in the mutuel pools, indulged in a speed duel with On Watch at the outset and disposed G. W. Loft's horse in the first three furlongs of the trip of six and a half furlongs. Then Schwartz brought Gentility forward to hook it up with Fair Phantom for the final test. The latter had the speed and stamina, aided by Garner's expert ride, to gain the verdict in the final strides.

Harry Payne Whitney's Fly by Day, at the juicy price of $22.60 for a $2 ticket, took the measure of the Nevada Stock Farm's General Thatcher, the odds-on favorite, in the Finale Purse, a one-mile race for two-year-olds. The Whitney filly had all the speed of the field and raced in front throughout, winning eased up by well over a length. General Thatcher beat W. J. Salmon's Vigil for the place by half a length.

RAY O' LIGHT IS WINNER.

Captures Steeplechase in Race Meeting at Pinehurst.

PINEHURST, N. C., Nov. 30.—An assemblage suggestive of mid-season thronged the grand stand and paddock at the Thanksgiving Day race meeting of the Pinehurst Jockey Club this afternoon.

The steeplechase event resolved itself into a well fought duel between Miss Helen Waring's Ray o' Light, ridden by Wright, and Miss Fitz, entered by Edward J. Spriggs of Philadelphia and ridden by Smith. Ray o' Light, leading by a head over the last jump, opened the gap wider on the flat at the finish and won by a scant margin.

Special to The New York Times.

TIJUANA, Mexico, Nov. 30.—The long Winter meeting at the local track, which will run upward of a hundred days, was launched today with a card of seven races. Threatening skies and a muddy course marred the sport somewhat, but a good-sized crowd was on hand, nevertheless.

The featured race of the afternoon, the Inaugural Handicap, resulted in victory for L. H. Tryon's filly, Catherine Marrone. Hay was second in the winner at the close of the trip of a mile and seventy yards and Captain Clover took third place. Catherine Marrone was the medium for heavy play in the mutuel machines.

The fifth race, a test at a mile and a sixteenth, developed a surprise when Bill Head, which was very lightly supported by the talent, came down past the judges in front. Tuck and Dolph were nearest to the winner at the finish line in the order mentioned.

The summary:

FIRST RACE—For all ages; claiming; purse $600; five furlongs. Tuck, 114 pounds (Carter), $12.40, $6.80, $3.40, first; Chrome, 114 (Baker), $20.80, $7.60, second; Virgo 114 (Rae), $5.40, third. Time—1:04. Maudie Wilson, Cannion, Miss Dunbar, Jack Ledi, Lapham, Nez, Turnette and Double Eye also ran.

SECOND RACE—For all ages; claiming; purse $600; five furlongs. Milda, 106 pounds (Pevie), $26.80, $6.60, $3.20, first; Plantagenet, 108 (H. Thomas), $8.20, $3.60, second; Jerry, 114 (Josiah), $4.40, third. Time—1:04. Hunter's Point, Bess Welch, Car, Velvet and Twin Ruby also ran.

THIRD RACE—For three-year-olds and upward; claiming; purse $500; one mile and seventy yards. Cavalcadour II., 110 pounds (Ralls), $4.40, $4, $4, first; Torrida, 110 (Wilson), $5.20, $3.20, second; Yermak, 110 (Stevens), $4.40, third. Time—1:47 2-5. Silex II., Lavaga, Millersburg, Le Dinosaure, Red William, Laura Cochran, Swenson and Camilla Muller also ran.

FOURTH RACE—The Inaugural Handicap; for three-year-olds and upward; purse $1,200; one mile and seventy yards. Catherine Marrone, 104 pounds (Carter), $7.20, $4, $3, first; Hall, 104 (Claver), $4.40, $3.20, second; Captain Clover, 106 (Wilson), $3.60, third. Time—1:48 3-5. Buckhorn II. and Glen Well also ran.

FIFTH RACE—For three-year-olds and upward; claiming; purse $600; one mile and a sixteenth. Bill Head, 110 pounds (Galle), $17.80, $4.80, $3.40, first; Lata, 106 (Stevens), $7.60, $5.20, second; Dolph, 115 (Scoville), $3.80, third. Time—1:51 3-5. Old McKenna, Ross R. and Madrono also ran.

SIXTH RACE—For three-year-olds and upward; claiming; purse $600; five and a half furlongs. Kingline, 118 pounds (Smith), $5.60, $4, $3.20, first; Incognance, 108 (Post), $6.80, $5.30, second; Cornutter, 101 (J. M. Fater), $5.30, third. Time—1:08 2-5. Aryanna, Plow Steel, Chief Barthell, Anna Regina and Little Florence also ran.

SEVENTH RACE—For three-year-olds and upward; claiming; purse $700; one mile. Woodie Montgomery, 113 pounds (Singleton), $4.60, $3.20, $2.60, first; Rajah, 103 (H. Thomas), $5.80, $3.40, second; Frank Fogarty, 110 (Crumbine), $6.20, third. Time—1:43 4-5. Leading Star, Summer Sigh, Double Van and Roisterer also ran.

COMIC SONG WINS AT NEW ORLEANS

Special to The New York Times.

NEW ORLEANS, Nov. 30.—Comic Song, Gus Konigswald's brown three-year-old, which was one of the stars of last Winter's racing in the Crescent City, resumed this afternoon where he left off last Spring. Closing with a dash down the stretch, the son of Black Jester captured the Thanksgiving Handicap, the featured race of the opening program at Jefferson Park. At the wire he was eased up to beat W. E. Hall's Kewpie O'Neil by a length and a half. Blarneystone, the Reiser Brothers' entrant, was a distant third.

Crack o' Dawn showed the way to the others at a rapid gait for six furlongs of the journey of a mile. Then he collapsed, and Comic Song, which had been rated back of the pace by McDermott, came along to an easy victory. Kewpie O'Neil was outrun during the first half, but moved up steadily thereafter and was going strongly at the end. The winner was the favorite in the betting at 6 to 5.

The Inaugural Purse, which opened the afternoon's sport, was won by Moss Goldblatt's Ararat, with Marwin May second and Elmer K. third. Ararat was well backed, being played from 4 to 1 down to threes. The favorite, E. J. Brown's My Reverie, was outrun all the way.

The summary:

FIRST RACE—The Inaugural Purse; for all ages; allowances; purse $700; five furlongs. Ararat, 108 pounds (Corcoran), 3 to 1, even, 2 to 5, first; Marwin May, 111 (Zoeller), 6 to 5, 1 to 2, second; Elmer K., 108 (Wilson), 2 to 1, third. Time—1:00 2-5. Janes F., O'Hara, My Reverie and Rapid Day also ran.

SECOND RACE—For two-year-olds; allowances; purse $700; five furlongs. Anonymous, 106 pounds (Weiner), 4 to 3, 6 to 5, 5 to 5, first; Better Times, 106 (McDermott), 6 to 5, 1 to 2, second; Vennie, 110 (Owens), 2 to 1, third. Time—1:00 4-5. Goldencrest, Guest of Honor, Rock Salt and The Muleskinner also ran.

THIRD RACE—For three-year-olds and upward; claiming; purse $700; one mile and a sixteenth. Fantoche, 111 pounds (Rosch), 9 to 10, 1 to 3, out, first; Grass Tree, 97 (Corcoran), 3 to 1, 6 to 5, second; Chateaugay, 100 (Carroll), 3 to 1, third. Time—1:47 3-5. Dantzic, Rib Grass, May Roberts and Ramkin also ran.

FOURTH RACE—The Thanksgiving Handicap; for all ages; $1,500 added; one mile. Comic Song, 114 pounds (McDermott), 6 to 5, 2 to 5, out, first; Kewpie O'Neil, 107 (Swart), 4 to 5, 1 to 5, second; Blarneystone, 105 (Martin), 2 to 1, third. Time—1:40. Cherry Tree and Crack o' Dawn also ran.

FIFTH RACE—For three-year-olds and upward; claiming; purse $700; five furlongs. Ogarite, 104 pounds (Roshin), 10 to 1, 4 to 1, 2 to 1, first; Monastery, 110 (Merimee), 6 to 1, 2 to 1, second; Raleo, 114 (Costello), 6 to 5, 2 to 5, third. Time—1:14 3-5. Whalebone, Archie Alexander, Mavourneen, Orous, Sagamock, Jago, Citation and Hereafter also ran.

SIXTH RACE—For three-year-olds and upward; claiming; one mile and a sixteenth. SEA PRINCE WINS OPENING FEATURE

HAVANA, Nov. 30.—Under the most favorable conditions the Winter racing season was inaugurated here today. A well-balanced program was offered and some interesting contests were seen by the large crowd that helped to raise the curtain. The change from bookmaking to mutuels apparently was welcomed.

The featured event was the third running of the Thanksgiving Handicap, a test at one mile for all ages. It was finally won by Sea Prince, which defeated Cromwell by two lengths. Tony Beau was third among the six starters, a length and a half further back. The winner got away to a bad start, but gradually moved up and won easily. Cromwell showed early speed and assumed command at the head of the stretch, but then weakened.

The fourth race was won by Belle of Elizabethtown after a clever ride by Jockey Fields. Dr. Hickman, which had been installed the favorite, was second, a length back, with Little Black Sheep third, five lengths behind the winner.

The summaries:

FIRST RACE—For two-year-olds; purse $700; five furlongs. Marionette, 104 pounds (Obert), $3.20, $3, $2.40, first; Gowaithian, 107 (Fields), $6.10, $3.40, second; Noon Glide, 107 (McLaughlin), $2.80, third. Time—1:01 1-5. Roidgold, Margaret Ware, *Babe Allee and *Havana Electric also ran.

HEEL-AND-TOE RACE CAPTURED BY WEISS

PLANT SETS COURSE MARK

Starts From Scratch and Covers 10½-Mile Route in 1:26:26—Trophy to Hocking.

Mack Weiss of the Long Island Knights of Columbus Centre, walked home a winner yesterday in the twelfth annual handicap walk of the Walkers' Club of America over the ten and one-half mile trail from City Hall to Coney Island. Starting with a handicap allowance of eighteen minutes, Weiss gradually worked his way through a field of sixty-one rivals until he entered the closing two miles of his journey, when the K. C. "ped" gained the van position. Once in front Weiss went away at a terrific rate and worked up a victorious margin of about 150 yards. His actual time was 1 hour, 35 minutes, 50 seconds.

Fred Coughtry, New York A. C. walker, who started with a similar handicap allowance as the winner, finished second, about fifty yards in front of Tim O'Connor, a veteran distance runner of St. Anselm's A. C. O'Connor started off the nineteen-minute mark and finished third.

Overshadowing in its brilliance and significance the performance of the individual winner was the accomplishment of Willis Plant, Morningside A. C. walking star, who holds several national and local titles. Plant, the scratch starter, finished in twenty-ninth position after a remarkable exhibition of heel and toe ability, and with a new course record in his possession. The sterling Winged M pedestrian covered the ten and one-half mile course in the actual time of 1 hour, 25 minutes, 26 seconds, clipping 52 seconds off the old course mark of 1:26:17, which was held jointly by Plant, Dick Remer and Win. J. Rolker. Neither Remer or Rolker started in yesterday's renewal of the annual fixture.

Team Honors to Queen's Quintet.

Team honors in the test went to the representatives of the Long Island City Athletics. This club's quintet finished with the winning low score of 24 tallies. The Pastime A. C. squad was second with 41 points and the Morningside A. C. team third with 55.

The race provided an unusual spectacle for thousands of holiday observers, who viewed the test from City Hall to Coney Island. With the members of the field decked out in varied array, from the accustomed athletic togs to ordinary business attire, the line of competitors strung for over two miles.

Jim Hocking, daddy of the competitors in point of years and competitive age, received great applause all along the route. With his silver-gray head bobbing from side to side, Hocking broke trail for the field for more than half the journey before giving way to the rush of his younger rivals. Hocking, who started with a handicap of twelve minutes, finished in twenty-fifth position. The 60-year-old walker, who started competition back in the days of 1876, captured the prize offered for the first "old boy" to finish.

Hocking waded through the novices in the early going, and gained the lead before three miles had been covered. At five miles the veteran was in front by about half a mile on Robert Dunnigan, Long Island City Athletics, with M. Aggerheim third, O'Connor fourth and Coughtry fifth. The remainder of the field was strung out over the course in Indian file, struggling valiantly to get up with the leaders.

Dunnigan gained ground steadily on Hocking in the succeeding mile, and when the six and one-half mile point had been reached was about 100 yards back of the veteran. I. C. Smithson, Long Island City Athletics, moved into third position at this stage, 150 yards back of Dunnigan. Smithson was followed by O'Conner, Coughtry and Aggerholm. Weiss, gaining a contending position for the first time, was in seventh position.

Hocking Loses Lead.

Coughtry, leading the pursuit, displaced Hocking as leader soon after passing the seven-mile mark. The New York A. C. walker was closely followed by O'Connor, Smithson, Dunnigan and Weiss as he brushed past Hocking and pulled his rivals with him. Weiss walked a well-judged race. At about eight and one-half miles Weiss hit up his stride and overhauled his rivals one by one until he had gained the van position from Coughtry. Then the K. of C. walker put added effort into his stride, and after a short, sharp struggle began to pull away from Coughtry. The Mercury Hooter had plenty of reserve and for a time pressed Weiss, but the latter had greater power in reserve for his closing burst, and as Coughty weakened Weiss went away to a victory by about 150 yards.

The walking of Plant will be remembered as one of the outstanding features of this year's City Hall-to Coney Island walk. The Winged M star enjoyed one of his best days and was favored by ideal weather conditions. He conceded handicaps ranging up to half an hour to some of his rivals, and made great inroads on the large field in finishing twenty-ninth, just about five yards back of Joe Pearman, New York A. C. walker, who finished twenty-eighth off the 1:30 mark.

DETROIT, Mich., Nov. 30.—A freight train, backing slowly across Second Boulevard and blocking the course over which the annual ten-mile running race of the Irish-American Athletic Club was being held, failed today to halt Scheu Christensen, of the Illinois Athletic Club. Climbing between the cars with three other contestants, Christensen continued the race and won in one hour, one minute, ten seconds. The blocked course cut about one minute from his time and threw him off his pace for the remainder of the distance. His time was eight minutes slower than the record set by E. Earl Johnson in 1921. James Dellow, James Moreroft and Art Allison of Toronto finished in that order behind Christensen. Chuck Mellor, twice winner of the race, waited with the other contestants for the string of freight cars to pass the crossing and finished eighth.

RITOLA LEADS FIELD IN MARATHON RACE

Breaks Course Record in Winning Annual Event at Berwick—Johnson Is Second.

Special to The New York Times.

BERWICK, Pa., Nov. 30.—Taking a lead at the end of the second mile when he started up the first of the two mountains covered by the course, Willis Ritola of New York today won the thirteenth annual Berwick marathon, breaking the course record of 48 minutes 33 seconds, established by William Kramer in 1918. Ritola's time was 47 minutes 58 2-5 seconds. Earl Johnson of Pittsburgh was second, Jimmy Hennigan of Boston third and Ilmar Prim of New York fourth.

Ritola and Johnson set such a pace at the start that the others dropped back more than 200 yards in the first two miles. Ritola took a small lead at the end of the second mile and was never headed. Going up the Summerhill Mountain, he gained more than a quarter of a mile, but Johnson gained on him going down the other side. Ritola barely managed to hold his lead on the second mountain and gained slightly from there to the finish. Johnson finished one second better than the previous course record.

Hennigan and Prim battled hard for third place throughout the race. Most of the time they were running side by side, occasionally one taking the lead of a few yards, then dropping back. Prim took a 50-yard lead in the seventh mile, but lost it all on a short hill, and Hennigan went to the lead and kept ahead to the finish.

GREENLEAF-CHURCH MATCH POSTPONED

Failure of New Set of Balls to Arrive Halts First Block of Title Contest.

Owing to the fact that a new set of pocket billiard balls did not arrive in time, the challenge match between Ralph Greenleaf, the professional champion, and Arthur Church of Yonkers, which was scheduled to begin at the Strand Academy last night, was postponed. It is expected that the match will begin tonight and continue tomorrow and Monday nights.

A capacity crowd turned out to witness the first 150-point block of the 450-ball contest and the gallery waited until 10 o'clock, when the management announced the postponement. The management later reported that Greenleaf and Church have agreed to begin play tonight. It is understood that the players and management will hold a conference with officials of the Brunswick-Balke-Collender Company at its headquarters in this city this morning.

HOPPE HAS RUN OF 300.

Wins Exhibition in First Inning With Unfinished Cluster.

BOSTON, Nov. 30.—Willie Hoppe, world's champion 18.2 balkline billiard player, ran 300 points from the spot in an exhibition game here today. The game, for 300 points, was automatically brought to an end before Charles C. Peterson of St. Louis, Hoppe's opponent, had an opportunity to score. Hoppe's run was unfinished.

BILLIARD RESULTS.

Playing in the fourteenth game of the tournament to decide the New York State professional pocket billiard championship at Lawler Brothers' academy in Brooklyn last night, Pasquale Natalie defeated Charles Harmon, the present holder of the title, by a score of 125 to 116. It was a nip and tuck battle from the start, with the lead alternating between the two players. The winner had high runs of 43 and 32 and the loser 28 and 27. In the amateur 18.2 balkline tournament at the same place George S. Steinbugler defeated Jesse Paddock, 100 to 37, and James H. Clemens defeated William Chase, 100 to 66.

RITTLER LEADS FIELD.

Captures Five and One-Half-Mile Run at Meadowbrook.

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 30.—William A. Rittler Jr. led a field of 46 harriers in the annual five and a half mile cross-country run of the Meadowbrook Club today. He wore the Meadowbrook colors, started from scratch and allowed handicaps up to 4 minutes and 20 seconds to the field. Rittler's time was 32 minutes, 20 seconds. Frank Worthington, a teammate, was second. His time was 34 minutes, 10 seconds. Frank Tobaben, former Mercersburg Academy star, finished third, five seconds behind Worthington.

Meadowbrook won the meet with a total score of 18 points. Nativity was second with 44 points, and Joan of Arc third with 81.

NICHOLSON GOLF WINNER.

Makes Low Net Score in Invitation Tourney at Pinehurst.

PINEHURST, N. C., Nov. 30.—About twenty-five Pinehurst golfers took part in an invitation medal round on the links of the Southern Pines Country Club today. John G. Nicholson, who had a round of 84, 15—69, and Charles S. Hudson, who finished with 80, 15—74, were awarded first and second net score prizes. Emmet French, the club professional, went around in 71. Donald Parson led the amateurs with a gross score of 76.

RICE WINS TROPHY AT N. Y. A. C. TRAPS

Takes High Over All Prize From Ferguson in Holiday Shoot at Travers Island.

High scores were returned in the holiday shoot over the Travers Island traps of the New York Athletic Club yesterday. The event was at 100 targets, with two high scratch and as many high handicap prizes offered by the club. The high over all trophy went to R. F. Rice, who missed only a single bird in his string of 100 blue-rocks. Second prize went to W. E. Ferguson, who returned a card of 97 out of a possible 100 targets.

No less than eleven nimrods tied for the high handicap cups with full scores of 100 targets each. They were R. F. Rice, W. E. Ferguson, R. R. Owen, A. L. Burns, E. Milliken, C. L. Zucca, C. A. Brown, F. W. Finch, G. R. Hodges, E. M. Alexander and C. C. Moore. As the first two had won scratch prizes, they were not eligible for the handicap trophies. The others shot off, and the winner finally proved to be R. R. Owen. Second high handicap prize went to A. L. Burns.

TEAMS EVENLY MATCHED.

Prediction Made That Stolen Lap Will Decide Cycle Grind.

Because of the strength of the teams which will struggle for victory, veteran followers of six-day bicycle races are predicting that the grind which opens Sunday night in Madison Square Garden will be won by a stolen lap. Alf Goullet and his Italian partner, Belloni, are favored to lead in the points awarded during the regular sprint sessions in morning, afternoon and evening spurts for points during each day of the race. But the teams of Brocco and Coburn, Grenada and McNamara, and Madden and Kaiser are expected to make things interesting for the favorites.

An attractive special card of sprint races has been arranged for tomorrow night. A set of sprint events also will be conducted on Sunday night in advance of the start of the six-day race at 10 o'clock.

RAFFERTY TRAPS VICTOR.

Special to The New York Times.

GREENWICH, Conn., Nov. 30.—The trap shooting season opened this morning at the Field Club with a handicap shoot for a turkey. C. D. Rafferty and M. D. Foster tied for first place with 50. In the shootoff Rafferty was the winner. W. A. Flynn was third and A. L. Ferguson Jr. was fourth. It is planned to hold trap shooting tournaments every Saturday during the Winter months.

The committee is composed of T. E. Jones of the University of Wisconsin, J. L. Griffith, Commissioner of Athletics of the conference, and A. A. Stagg, Chairman.

N. Y. SOCCERS BEAT PHILADELPHIA TEAM

Manhattanites Defeat Fleicher Yarn Eleven at Oval by Score of 4 to 1.

Four thousand soccer enthusiasts spent Thanksgiving Day afternoon witnessing a hard battle between the New York Football Club and the Fleicher Yarn eleven of Philadelphia at New York Oval, New York, which won by the score of 4 goals to 1, had established a 1 to 0 lead by half time. New York's first tally was the result of a penalty given against Rogers for handling after fifteen minutes of play. Coleman negotiated the penalty kick. The Quakers pressed hard to overcome the lead, but Kelly and Burnett in the back division were equal to every emergency.

A. Stark headed in the second goal for New Yory twenty minutes after the restart. A forward pass by Purvis was cleverly picked up by McLoughlin, who scored for Philadelphia. Coleman headed in New York's third goal off a pass by McKelvey. With three minutes to go, A. Stark shot the fourth and last goal.

The line-up:

Gudert	G.	Kucklick
Kelly	R.B.	Rogers
Burnett	L.B.	Fleming
R. Stark	R.H.	Denke

McKelvey	O.R.	Maills
A. Stark	I.R.	McKay
Coleman	C.	Purvis
Hardy	I.L.	McLoughlin
McGhee	O.L.	Galloway

Goals—Coleman (3), A. Stark (1), McLoughlin.

Takes Championship Game From Brooklyn Wanderers, 1 Goal to 0.

Bethlehem Steel forged ahead in the American Soccer League yesterday at the expense of the Brooklyn Wanderers, the visitors from Pennsylvania winning their championship match by 1 goal to 0 at Hawthorne Field in Brooklyn. The home players did much of the pressing the first half, but were unfortunate in being minus the services of their left halfback for fifteen minutes, owing to an injury in a collision. There was no scoring in the first half. Kerr of Bethlehem making several brilliant stops which deprived the Wanderers of good prospects.

During a mix-up in front of the Wanderers' goal five minutes after the restart, McNiven found an opening and lodged the ball in Brooklyn's net for the first and only goal of the game. Playing an uphill game from then on, the Wanderers were further handicapped when, fifteen minutes later, Bishop, at inside right, retired with a dislocated shoulder. Goldie gave a fine exhibition for Bethlehem at outside left.

The line-up:

BETHLEHEM (1)		WANDERERS (0)
Kerr	G.	Reilly
Young	R.B.	Hunt
Ferguson	L.B.	Robertson
McFarlane	R.H.	Waite
Raeside	C.H.	Wilson

Campbell	O.R.	Lawrence
Ratiray	I.R.	Bishop
McNiven	C.	Rew
Faulds	I.L.	Shaw
Goldie	O.L.	Dorward

Goal—McNiven.

Special to The New York Times.

HAVERFORD, Pa., Nov. 30.—Haverford closed its intercollegiate soccer season by defeating the Harvard eleven here today, 5-0. Harvard's left forward, Sullivan, played the steadiest game for the visitors. The Haverford team played exceptionally well. The several spectacular stops made by Wilbur, Haverford's goalkeeper, were among the outstanding features.

The line-up:

HAVERFORD (5).		HARVARD (0).
Wilbur	G.	Bendi
Fisher	R.F.	Harlay
Leeds	L.F.	Sullivan
Thomas	R.H.B.	Bigg
Hoag	C.H.B.	Wale

Borton	O.R.	Dorman
Starbuck	I.R.	Palio
Rhoads	C.	Heiser (Capt.)
Hunsicker (Capt.)	I.L.	Prinzie
Willey	O.L.	Tuttle

Goals—Hunsicker (2), Rhoads (2), Starbuck.

CAPABLANCA UNDEFEATED.

Chess Champion Wins 21 Games in Exhibition and Draws Four.

Pitted yesterday against a strong team of twenty-five opponents José R. Capablanca, in his exhibition of simultaneous play at the rooms of the Marshall Chess Club, defeated twenty-one of his rivals and drew the remaining four games, thus avoiding a reverse in any single instance. Mario Schroeder of the Manhattan Chess Club, R. J. de Goller of the Marshall Chess Club, Walter Malowan of the Chess Club International, and H. Kapatsky of the Brooklyn Chess Club were successful in drawing against the world's champion.

The defeated players were Walter P. Shipley of Philadelphia, D. M. Avery, Captain L. Rodney Berg, W. J. A. Beck, H. R. Bigelow, J. W. Barnhart, W. C. Cornwell, Paul A. Drucklieb, Colonel Beverly W. Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Nov. 30.—An erratic, but on the whole improving tendency, was displayed by the leading foreign currencies today. French francs were at first sold up to 65.50, but were wanted later and reacted, closing at 64.95 as against 65.87½ on Wednesday.

German marks were actively dealt in and fluctuated between 34,000 and 36,500, closing at 35,000 for the pound sterling or 1,500 marks below yesterday.

In view of the holiday in New York sterling was quiet and inclined to go lower, with cable transfers finishing at 4.51.

Wednesday's semi-official denial in Paris of extensively circulated reports that the French Government was contemplating serious coercive measures against Germany in default of reparations has given a rather better tone to the Foreign Exchange Market. Greek drachmas have fallen to 320 for the pound sterling, owing to the threatened political rupture following the execution of the Greek ex-Ministers. Polish marks rose to 83,000, marking a new low record in sterling value.

Gilt edged stocks were firm in anticipation of reinvestment of new money. Home rails were active and strong, due to buying based upon hopes of increased earnings following the application by the Government of schemes for relieving unemployment, but profit taking caused late reaction.

Electrification and extension of traffic facilities are foremost in railway plans, capital for which may in some cases be guaranteed by the Government. Rubber rose to 1s. 2d. per pound, which is just double the year's low record, touched in July. Rubber shares are responding slowly, although sentiment is more bullish than for a long time past.

The Mexican Eagle Company reports a gusher giving 40,000 barrels daily, but the market takes a pessimistic view of the dividend outlook. It is thought that the interim dividend, due next month, will be cut, if not passed altogether.

John Thornycroft, general engineers and makers of small war craft, are passing their ordinary dividend. Last year 7½ per cent. was paid.

The Peruvian Corporation reports increased net revenue for the past year and raises the preference dividend from ½ per cent. to 1 per cent.

Preferred as to Both Assets and Dividends — Dividends Exempt from Normal Federal Income Tax

Redeemable as a whole or in part, or for the Sinking Fund, at 110 and accrued dividends on any dividend date on 30 days' notice.

SHARE CAPITALIZATION
(After giving effect to present financing)

	Authorized	Outstanding
7% Cumulative Preferred Stock (par value $100)	$10,000,000	$8,371,700
Common Stock (no par value shares)	400,000 shares	252,872 shares

Business: The Company (and by the Company is meant the General American Tank Car Corporation of New York and its subsidiaries) is engaged in the construction and operation of tank cars under lease; the construction and sale of railroad freight equipment of all kinds, and the rebuilding and repair of miscellaneous equipment. The Company derives a large revenue from the leasing of cars, a majority of the leases being for long term periods, at fixed rentals, to responsible lessees. This secures to the Company a substantial income either in times of depression or prosperity, and supplemented by its car building and repair operations, gives the Company a well diversified, stable business.

Assets: The Balance Sheet as of December 31, 1921, after giving effect to recent financing, shows net tangible assets of $18,874,958, equivalent to approximately $225 per share of Preferred Stock. Net current assets, on the same basis, amounted to $10,528,820, equivalent to approximately $126 per share of Preferred Stock. Valuable patents and good-will are carried on the books at a nominal amount of One Dollar.

Equity: The Preferred Stock is followed by 252,872 shares of Common Stock with no par value, paying dividends at the rate of $3 per share annually. At prevailing market prices this Common Stock represents an equity of approximately $17,000,000.

Earnings: Net earnings for the four years ended December 31, 1921, after deducting all charges, except Federal Taxes, averaged $2,631,909 annually, or more than 4.4 times the dividend requirements on the total amount of Preferred Stock outstanding, including this issue. After deducting Federal taxes, the earnings available for dividends averaged $1,800,099 annually, or approximately 3.1 times the dividends on such Preferred Stock.

Purpose of Issue: The purpose of this financing is to furnish the Company with additional capital to enable it to take care of a constantly growing volume of business.

Orders: During the first six months of 1922 the Company received orders for a total of 10,530 freight cars from some of the largest railroad systems in the country. These orders represent an aggregate volume of business of approximately $21,000,000 compared with a volume of business of approximately $14,900,000 for the entire year of 1921.

may in many instances be purchased to advantage.

Investors in high-grade bonds frequently diversify their holdings with securities of this nature.

When care and knowledge is used, investments in Preferred stocks can be made where security of principle is as unquestioned as in the best class of bonds, and income is considerably higher.

We will be glad to suggest a few of such Preferred stocks, together with detailed information, for your consideration.

WHY has no investor ever lost a dollar of principal or interest on any security bought of S. W. Straus & Co.? Write for our booklet A-3 and learn the reason why.

S.W. STRAUS & CO.

Why Do You Buy Bonds?

You may buy bonds for any one of a number of reasons. Mainly, however, you buy bonds to establish a permanent income for yourself and your family.

Permanence is the keynote of all sound investment.

The bonds we offer are built for permanence. In every case the principle is safeguarded by a first mortgage on tangible property worth far more than the face value of the bond.

We know the facts back of every bond that passes through our house. Our experts first make a searching investigation of the property and earning capacity of the company issuing the bonds. Then, if every detail is favorable, we buy the issue with our own money.

These bonds we offer to you. They yield from 6 to 7 per cent interest.

Our judgment as to the value of bonds is based on 57 years of experience as investment bankers.

If you are interested in establishing a permanent income for yourself, write for Booklet B-6.

Notes in reserve	Inc.	980,000
Public deposits	Inc.	980,000
Other deposits	Dec.	3,940,000

Proportion of the Bank's reserve to deposit liabilities this week is 18.94 per cent.; last week it was 19.84 per cent.; two weeks ago it was 19.06 per cent. The highest reserve percentage of 1922 to date was 19.97 per cent. on June 22; the lowest, 8.83 on Jan. 7. The lowest percentage since the war began was 7.50 on Dec. 30, 1920.

The statement compares as follows with the corresponding week one and two years ago:

Ratio of reserve	18.94	15.13	7.88

The Bank of England's official minimum discount rate remained unchanged at 3 per cent. to which it had been reduced from 3½ on June 15. At this date of 1921 the rate stood at 5 per cent., in 1920 at 7 per cent., at 6 in 1919, 5 in 1918 and 1917, 6 in 1916 and 5 in 1915 and 1914.

The weekly statement of the Bank of France showed the following changes, in francs:

Gold in hand	Inc.	157,000
Silver in hand	Inc.	18,000
Notes in circulation	Inc.	324,765,000
Treasury deposits	Inc.	5,806,000
General deposits	Dec.	106,069,000
Bills discounted	Inc.	355,253,000
Advances	Dec.	686,000

The bank made fresh advances to the State amounting to 500,000,000 francs. Last week the State repaid the bank 400,000,000 francs. Advances by the bank to the State are now 22,700,000,000 francs.

The principal items in the statement compare as follows with the same date one and two years ago, in francs:

	1922.	1921.	1920.

SEVERAL ON BOARD OBJECT

Musicians Think Movement for Reform Should Come From the Teachers Themselves.

The appointment of an advisory committee to the Mayor's committee which is considering a plan to register or license teachers of vocal and instrumental music was announced yesterday by Philip Berolsheimer, City Chamberlain, who suggested the plan. The Chairman of the new committee is Dr. William G. Carl and the Vice Chairman is Dr. Frank Damrosch.

Other members of the committee are George H. Gartlan, Herbert Witherspoon, George F. Shea, Gardner Lamson, Oscar Saenger, Dr. T. Tertius Noble, Edwin Franko Goldman, Karl Scholing, Gustav L. Becker and Allan Robinson. The committee is authorized to appoint from twelve to twenty other members.

Willis Holly, secretary of the Park Board, is the secretary of the advisory committee, with headquarters at Room 1907 Municipal Building, and Catherine Bolger of Room 868 Municipal Building is assistant secretary. The Mayor's reception room will be used for meetings.

The purpose of the appointment of the advisory committee, according to the Chamberlain's statement, is "to further the inquiry, ordered by the Mayor, into the advisability of adopting any plan to license, register or examine music teachers, whether vocal or instrumental." "It is also," says the statement, "to consider and report upon any method or methods to protect those who wish to cultivate their musical talent from being defrauded by humbugs, who pretend to teach singing or the playing of musical instruments and make all sorts of promises, even holding out expectations of speedy proficiency and of prompt engagement on the stage."

The Mayor's committee will make the report of the advisory committee a part of its own report to the Mayor. Efforts will be made to have the subcommittee's work concluded by January, so that the report may be ready "for any action on the part of the Legislature that may be found to be desirable."

Several of the persons appointed on the advisory committee were among the persons who protested against the suggestion to license the teachers during a public hearing on Nov. 14. Mr. Gartlan, who is director of music for the Board of Education, took the position that any reformation must come from within the ranks of the teachers themselves rather than from without. Mr. Robinson, who is of the Mendelssohn Glee Club, declared that if teachers of music were compelled to be licensed it would show discrimination against teachers of other arts. Dr. Saenger took issue with the Chamberlain for his intimation that music teachers were not on as high a plane as physicians and lawyers. Dr. Noble, who is the organist of St. Thomas's Church, spoke against the licensing plan and declared that the National Association of Organists had voiced its disapproval.

CAN'T COMPETE IN GERMANY

Consular Advices Say American Attempts Are "Doomed to Failure."

WASHINGTON, Nov. 30.—Efforts of American manufacturers to compete in Germany with Germany's own products "must be foredoomed to failure," according to advices reaching the Department of Commerce from its representatives in Germany. The dispatches, summarized today by the department, indicate that sporadic efforts to re-enter the German trade are being made without success because of the topheavy situation in exchange rates.

"When it takes about 8,000 marks to buy one dollar's worth of American goods," one of the consular dispatches said, "it is evident at once that the opportunity for selling American goods profitably in competition with the German goods at home must be foredoomed to failure."

The dispatches were sent, it was explained, to correct "more or less misleading conceptions" in some parts of the world concerning trade possibilities in Germany at present. They generally agreed that one proposition could be laid down: That American goods cannot be bought by the Germans at prices that would pay them to seek operation of trade exchanges on pre-war lines, notwithstanding "a strong desire on the part of the Germans to do so."

Germany is trying to supply its internal requirements by internal production, according to the advices, which add that American manufacturers should not be discouraged, since the German merchants "are not forgetting American sources of supply." It was asserted that the Germans know the meaning of American trade as spelling prosperity for thousands of their race, but, despite sporadic attempts to reopen the trade channels, the consular and trade representatives say that, at present, there is no way in which it can be done.

BIGGEST DRY DOCK IS ALMOST FINISHED

New $5,000,000 Structure for Southampton, England, Will Be Ready Next Summer.

Officers of the White Star liner Olympic said yesterday that the $5,000,000 1,000-foot floating dry dock now being built at Tyneside for the London and South Western Railway Company would be ready to receive ships in Southampton next Summer. Four great "tables" of reinforced concrete, each with sixty-four legs, are to be constructed in Southampton Harbor for the mooring of the world's largest floating dry dock.

The contract for these "dolphins," as they are termed technically, has been placed with the firm of Jackson & Sons, Ltd., of Slough, England, the officers said. Three hundred and sixty-five piles of reinforced concrete, each sixty feet long and weighing eight tons, will be driven into the bed of the harbor from wooden floats anchored over the site. Round the heads of these piles will be constructed the four rectangular slabs forming the dolphin tops, each seventy feet long, thirty-two feet thick, weighing about 1,000 tons. The dock will be moored to the dolphin by steel lattice booms seventy feet long.

It is understood that the floating dry dock will not be ready in time for the Majestic to have her hull scraped and painted at the end of April, and she will probably make another trip to Boston and go into the Naval dock, as she did last month.

"BIG SIX" RED SEAL LEADER.

Christy Matheweon to Start Campaign Against Tuberculosis.

Christy Mathewson, the former Giant pitcher, whose successful fight against tuberculosis has brought delight to his thousands of admirers, will help to open the Christmas seal sale of the New York Tuberculosis Association today. Christy will sell Mayor Hylan his quota of Christmas seals at 1 o'clock on the steps of City Hall. Mrs. William Randolph Hearst and the Mayor's committee have been asked to escort "Big Six" to Wanamaker's tomorrow, where he will speak to boys and girls at 2 o'clock. "Chew Chew," the health clown, will give a demonstration at the same time. The Hippodrome animals also have been enlisted in the Christmas seal campaign, and at noon today a unique parade is promised in front of the Sixth Avenue playhouse.

The association expects to sell 25,000,000 seals this year. Plans for the sale, which will close on Christmas, were announced yesterday by J. Byron Deacon, Director of the association. Thomas W. Lamont will be the Treasurer and the following will act on the Campaign Committee:

Mrs. Rogers H. Bacon, Dr. Hermann M. Biggs, Mrs. Myron T. Borg, Dr. John W. Brennan, Dr. Nathan E. Brill, Arthur Brisbane, Mrs. James A. Burden, Bailey B. Burritt, Dr. James B. Clemens, Dr. Royal S. Grand Trunk Men Accept Wage Cut.

MONTREAL, Nov. 30.—Wage reductions of from 3 to 5 cents an hour, affecting 7,000 employes of the Grand Trunk Railway, have been agreed upon as a compromise arrangement between the railway and the Canadian Brotherhood of Railroad Employes and the International Brotherhood of Railway and Steamship Clerks, it was announced today by A. R. Mosher, union leader. A compromise in aggregate amount of reduction has also been arranged, he said.

COTTON EXPORTS STILL SMALLER THAN IN 1921

WASHINGTON, Nov. 30.—Exports of cotton and cotton cloths during October decreased in quantity as compared with October last year, but their value increased, according to figures made public today by the Department of Commerce.

Exports of raw cotton, including linters, for the month aggregated 798,664 bales of a value of $93,928,000. In October, 1921, shipments totaled 874,510 bales, worth $91,026,000.

Nearly 51,000 square yards of cotton cloths were exported in October, as against 54,488 square yards in October, 1921. The value of cotton cloth exports last month was $7,765,000, approximately $1,000,000 more than the value in October, 1921.

The above figures of last month's export of cotton by quantity are usually published in the monthly cotton consumption statement of the Census Bureau. That publication on Nov. 15, however, stated that imports or exports of cotton were not then available. The figures of exports as above given compare as follows in running bales:

UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT, Southern District of New York.—In the Matter of MILTON HEIM, trading as MILTON HEIM & CO., Bankrupt.—30290.

Upon the amended petition of I. BENJAMIN GLUCKENFIELD, trustee herein, duly verified, the order of Hon. John C. Knox, dated the 13th day of June, 1922, and the petition thereto annexed, from which it appears that the trustee has in his possession certain stocks, bonds and securities, which he deems for the best interest of the estate to dispose of at the present time.

Let all creditors and other persons interested in this estate show cause before me at my office, at 290 Broadway, in the Borough of Manhattan, City of New York, on the 13th day of December, 1922, at 2 o'clock in the afternoon of that day, why an order should not be made authorizing the trustee herein to sell or cause to be sold the stocks, bonds and securities which have come into his possession as trustee herein as shown by the list hereto attached and to sell or cause to be sold at such time or times and place or places, on such exchanges and in such manner as to the trustee may seem advisable either at public or private sale thereof and that the trustee keep the proceeds of said sale of bonds, stocks and securities in a separate fund to await the further order of the Court, such proceeds to be turned over to claimants if any, in lieu of securities in the event if any of the reclaiming creditors are successful in their reclamation claims, and it is further Ordered, that a copy of this order and the petition hereto annexed be mailed to each of the creditors at his or their last known address and published at least once in The New York Times ten days before return day, which shall be deemed sufficient notice and service of this application to show cause.

Dated New York, November 23, 1922.

LEGAL ADVERTISEMENTS.

AT A STATED TERM OF THE UNITED States District Court for the Eastern District of New York held in the Court Rooms thereof, on the 28th day of November, 1922.—Present, Hon. Edwin L. Garvin, Judge.—INDEMNITY INSURANCE CO. OF NORTH AMERICA, Complainant, against EMPIRE TUBE & STEEL CORPORATION, Defendant. ORDER AUTHORIZING ADVERTISEMENT FOR BIDS. IN EQUITY NO. 1161.

Upon petition of Henry C. Turner, Esquire, Receiver of Empire Tube & Steel Corporation, verified November 27, 1922, and after hearing stockholders and creditors at a meeting originally called for November 16, 1922, and duly adjourned to this day, and after hearing counsel for various interested parties, the Receiver and his attorneys it is

ORDERED, ADJUDGED AND DECREED that:

1. The Receiver is hereby authorized and directed to offer for sale in the manner hereinafter provided all the right, title and interest of the defendant, Empire Tube & Steel Corporation, and of the Receiver of, in and to all the assets and property of said defendant and other assets and property in the hands of the Receiver, real, personal and mixed, tangible and intangible, wheresoever situated, but excepting cash in the hands of the Receiver, subject, however, to changes occasioned by the administration of the estate by the Receiver up to the advertised date of sale.

2. The Receiver shall ask for sealed bids for said assets and property, as a whole or in parcels, such bids to be delivered to the Receiver at his office, No. 2 Rector Street, Borough of Manhattan, City of New York, N. Y., on or before January 5, 1923, at 12:00 o'clock noon of that date, or they shall be delivered to the Receiver thereafter prior to 2:00 o'clock P. M. of that date, at which time said bids shall be opened in Court. This hearing shall be and it is hereby adjourned to January 5, 1923, at 2:00 o'clock in the afternoon.

3. All bids shall be expressly made and conditioned upon the approval of this Court and shall be accompanied by a certified cheque for ten per cent. of the amount of said bid, such certified cheque to be upon a Bank or Trust Company acceptable to the Receiver and payable to his order. Deposits received from unsuccessful bidders shall be returned to them upon the final selection of their bids. The deposit of the successful bidder or bidders may be applied on account of the purchase price, or may be held as security for the performance by the bidder of the terms of his accepted bid and in the event of his failure to perform in full the terms and conditions of the decree of confirmation, the full amount of the deposit may be declared by the Court forfeited.

4. The Receiver shall advertise for such bids by publishing a copy of this order once a week for three weeks prior to January 5, 1923, in The New York Times, a newspaper published in the City of New York, N. Y., and in The Brooklyn Standard Union, a newspaper published in the Borough of Brooklyn, City of New York, N. Y.

5. Any purchaser of the property of defendant shall take such property so purchased subject to any encumbrances thereon.

6. The right is reserved to the Receiver to reject any and/or all bids so to be received by him. The Receiver shall report to this Court at a hearing to be held in the Court Rooms in the Post Office Building, Brooklyn, N. Y., on the 5th day of January, 1923, at 2:00 o'clock in the afternoon of that date, showing the bids, if any, made for the purchase of said assets and property, together with his recommendations in connection therewith and for the purpose of obtaining instructions from the Court in the premises and the Court will thereupon take such action or make such decrees or orders as may seem proper and advisable.
EDWIN L. GARVIN, U. S. D. J.

THE WEATHER.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 30.—The disturbance central Wednesday night over Southeastern Utah moved rapidly east-northeastward, increased greatly in intensity, and Thursday night its centre was over the extreme upper Mississippi Valley. This disturbance has been attended by gales on the Great Lakes and in the upper Mississippi Valley and the middle Plains States, and by showers in the great central valleys and the upper lake region and along the Mexican border, and by snows over the Northern Plains States and the Rocky Mountain and plateau regions.

It has been preceded by a marked rise in temperature over and east of the Mississippi Valley, and by a change to decidedly colder weather over the Rocky Mountain and plateau regions and the Northern Plains States.

Exceptionally warm weather prevailed during Thursday over the upper Mississippi and lower Missouri Valleys. The pressure was high Thursday night over the Atlantic States, and high and rising over the Rocky Mountain and plateau regions.

In the Middle Atlantic and New England States the weather will be cloudy and warmer, with probably showers Friday and clearing and colder Saturday, with increasing south and southwest winds. In the Lower Lake region there will be southwest and west gales, with showers Friday and cloudy with colder Friday night and Saturday. In the Ohio Valley, the East Gulf States and Tennessee there will be showers Friday and fair and colder weather Saturday. In the South Atlantic States the weather will be partly cloudy and warmer Friday and unsettled and mild, with local showers on Saturday.

This advisory warning was issued at 10 P. M.: Delaware Breakwater to Eastport, Me. A disturbance of marked intensity central over the extreme Upper Mississippi Valley and moving east northeastward; increasing south and southwest winds, probably reaching gale force Friday morning, with unsettled, showery weather.

Seven Men and Two Women Held, Charged With Participating in Immoral Show.

SEVENTY-TWO MEN FINED

Seventy-two men were fined $10 each and seven men and two women were held in $1,500 bail each by Magistrate Conway in Long Island City yesterday, charged with participating in and being principals in an alleged immoral show in a loft building at Harris Avenue and Hancock Street, Long Island City, on Thanksgiving Eve. They were arrested in a raid led by Acting Inspector John Kelly of the Thirteenth Inspection District, Captain Harry McQueeney of the Hunters Point precinct, and Detective Klien from Manhattan headquarters. Patrol wagons from the Astoria, Hunters Point, Flushing and Richmond Hill precincts were used.

Harry Plotkus, 28, who gave the address of 135 Jackson Avenue, Long Island City, a manufacturer of tires, with offices in the raided building, was one of the alleged principals held in $1,500 bail. The others, listed as performers, were Peggy Martin, 21, of 120 Hoyt Street, Brooklyn; Mae Collins, 35, of 136 East Twelfth Street, this city; Louis Weiner, 26, of 916 Whitlock Avenue, Bronx; Harry Boutwell, 32, 317 East Forty-fourth Street; Louis Teller, 31, 151 Walter Avenue, Bronx; John Murray, 42, 893 Hancock Street, Brooklyn; George W. Brown, 35, 167 Jackson Street, Brooklyn, and Mike Gallatto, 20, 436 West Thirty-ninth Street.

The police seized a phonograph and films said to be immoral.

"I want to compliment the police upon this raid," said Magistrate Conway. "Here in Queens we have been singularly free from this kind of affairs and we don't propose to have any of it if we can help it."

INVITES ALL TO REFER NEEDY HOSPITAL CASES

United Funds Aid Is Not Limited to Contributors—Review of Last Year's Work.

A general invitation to aid in getting hospital accommodation for proper cases was issued yesterday by the United Hospital Fund through its President, Robert Olyphant. This offer is not limited to contributors to the fund, but is extended to newspapers, relief societies, churches and, in fact, to any organization or group that desires to accept. Proper applicants who come without any introduction and are in need of medical or surgical care will receive the same attention.

"Persons are encouraged," said Mr. Olyphant, "not only to send us contributions to enable the fifty-eight leading non-municipal hospitals to provide treatment for those unable to pay, but also to refer to us such cases whenever they are in doubt as to what hospital they should go to or how they should secure admission.

After pointing out that cases must of necessity go to hospitals equipped and available for the particular ailment to be treated, Mr. Olyphant spoke of the record made last year by the fifty-eight non-municipal hospitals. "The fifty-eight leading non-municipal hospitals belonging to the United Hospital Fund in the last year," he said, "cared for 39,229 wholly free patients, 21,679 public charges, 87,115 who paid all or part of the ward rates only. These constitute 76 per cent. of all our patients, the private patients numbering only 46,653, or 24 per cent.

"Application for admission may be made to a hospital by the person needing treatment or his friends or by any dispensary or doctor that may know of the case; or by church workers, visiting nurses, relief agents, school teachers, police, in fact, any one who knows the need and will take the trouble to call attention to it. It must be borne in mind, however, that the hospital applied to shall be a suitable one to treat the case and shall have room and means to do so.

"As there is much specialization in the kinds of work done by different hospitals and as their patients have to be classified in wards for medical and for surgical cases, as well as for men, women and children, it frequently happens that all the beds in a given service may be occupied, and it is the duty and right of the superintendent and admitting officer to decide whether a patient is suitable for a given hospital, and the time when he can be admitted. It is also the business of the hospital authorities to satisfy themselves that the circumstances of a patient are such as to justify free treatment or treatment at reduced rates.

"Such free treatment, of course, offered to all those who cannot pay without regard to race, creed or color, naturally costs a large amount of money. The daily cost averaged $3.93 last year, and the average stay was 15.4 days. About $4,000,000 all together will be needed in the next year for free care given by the hospitals. For forty-three years the United Hospital Fund has been relied upon to raise a substantial portion of the sum needed. The forty-fourth annual collection of the fund is now under way and it is earnestly to be hoped that the hospitals may be able to continue their service to the sick poor who need it so urgently."

IGNORANCE COSTS HIS LIFE.

Virginian, Killed by London Taxi, Did Not Know Rule of Road.

LONDON, Nov. 30.—Frank Lecompte of Richmond, Va., fatally injured by a taxicab in the Haymarket, was another American victim of unfamiliarity with the English traffic rules by which vehicles pass to the left, the coroner was told today by the cab driver.

Lecompte, he said, was looking in the wrong direction when struck. The driver was exonerated. A nurse testified that Lecompte had been traveling in Europe for his health.

Kellogg's Bran means so much to the health of every one who eats it!

Start eating Bran today! You can't afford the delay of a day—for BRAN—Kellogg's Bran, cooked and krumbled, is nature's own remedy for constipation. Eliminate constipation or its symptoms from your system and you add years to your life. Free yourself of illness that can be directly traced to this distressing condition!

Authorities state that most human illness has its beginning with constipation, which clogs the eliminative passages, backing up poisons and creating toxic conditions. At this stage the blood becomes affected and then follows the disorder of various organs. Bright's disease, diabetes, most cases of rheumatism, hardening of arteries, headaches, brain fag, etc., are often traced to intestinal poisoning.

Pills and cathartics can give no adequate relief. They are not only temporary in their effect, but tend to aggravate already dangerous conditions. Kellogg's Bran causes neither discomfort nor irritation, and its action is absolutely positive. Bran sweeps and cleanses and purifies! Its work is wonderful!

Physicians indorse the use of Kellogg's Bran for constipation because it relieves constipation, naturally. Eat Bran regularly—at least two tablespoonfuls daily; in chronic cases with each meal—as a cereal sprinkled on other cereals, or in many other appetizing ways such as in raisin bread, gems, pancakes, macaroons, etc. Recipes on every box. All grocers sell Kellogg's Bran, cooked and krumbled! Start with Kellogg's Bran today.

P. S.—Kellogg's Bran, eaten regularly, will clear up a pimply complexion and overcome an obnoxious breath.

COATS $39.50

THIS is probably just the overcoat you want—a swagger, warm all-wool ulster that will agree with your highest opinion of good looks and quality. It's a big, handsome coat for which you expect to pay at least fifty dollars—

TIMES SQUARE NEW YORK

The investment that rests upon the soundest security in the world —and gives you a share in our profits

If you had the money, and one hundred men, or one thousand, asked you to loan them $125, or $250 or $500 to help them to do something you felt is one of the safest and soundest things in the world—

And if everyone of these men gave you his written word that he would pay you back within a certain time, and pay you a generous rate of interest in the meantime—

And if they gave as security an agreement to turn over to you their houses and lots, worth many times what they have borrowed, in the event of their failure to repay you—

You would be quick to realize that here at last was a safe investment opportunity. Of course you would.

That in effect is exactly the opportunity offered you in Empire Units of Investment.

I have been talking in this newspaper about The Empire Homebuilding Association; talking about the Empire Homebuilding Plan which builds and finances homes of moderate cost for individuals of responsibility.

If you have read my previous talks you know that in these Empire Units of Investment we are offering you literally a share in our business as successful builders, as well as an opportunity to earn attractive returns through the loans of money to the people for whom we build.

Empire Units of Investment are $125 in denomination. $100 of this is represented in a 7% Collateral Trust Bond of The Empire Homebuilding Association, to run for 10 years, and non-callable. This $100 is deposited in a Trust Fund to be used only for loans to individual home builders, whose homes we help finance as well as build.

Each Unit of Investment carries with it one share of Cumulative Participating Preferred Stock of the company, par value $25, bearing interest at 8%. In addition to its own interest return the preferred stock also shares in the earnings of the common stock up to 6%.

An investment of $125 in Empire Units would net you a return of 8.4%. By varying your investment as to the proportion of preferred stock and 7% Collateral Trust Bonds, and increasing the amount of preferred stock purchased, the return from the investment will be still higher. There is hardly any need to emphasize the desirability of such an opportunity.

To make purchase easy, we have worked out an Accommodation Plan by which intending investors may buy their Empire Units on the basis of $25 down and $10 a month for 10 months. In addition, the plan provides for personal loans on Empire Units of Investment as collateral. These are but two of the unusual features of an investment that is based on a newer and more liberal principle of making possible the widest participation in the company by those who entrust their funds to us.

The security behind Empire Units consists of all the mortgages on all the homes. Not merely one mortgage on a single building, which might conceivably become voided and thus endanger the investment. In that one way alone the desirability of an Empire Unit of Investment as compared with a mortgage bond with but one mortgage behind it is evident.

You, too, are invited to investigate this newer plan of safe investment whether you consider one Unit of Investment of $125 or whether your available funds permit of the investment of more considerable sums. We are quite certain you will find in Empire Units of Investment an opportunity that is unusual and sound. I shall be glad to have you call today and go further into the matter, or telephone or write and I will send a representative qualified to give you the full details of The Empire Plan.

TURKS PROCLAIM BANISHMENT EDICT TO 1,000,000 GREEKS

Ismet, in Lausanne Conference, Gives Those Remaining in Turkey Two Weeks' Grace.

ALLIES ACCEPT THE DICTUM

CONFERENCE RECESS SOON

Leaders, Despairing of Agreement Now, Plan for an Adjournment About Dec. 15.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LAUSANNE, Dec. 1.—A black page of modern history was written here today. Ismet Pasha stood before the statesmen of the civilized world and admitted that the banishment from Turkish territory of nearly a million Christian Greeks, who were two million only a few short years ago, had been decreed. The Turkish Government graciously allows two more weeks for the great exodus.

The statesmen of the civilized powers accepted the Turkish dictum and set about ways to get those thousands of Greeks out of harm's way before they should meet the fate of 800,000 Armenians who were massacred in Anatolia in 1916 and 1917.

New Light on Turkish Massacres.

Here, in the beauty of the Winter sunshine of the Swiss Alps, diplomats have been for ten days talking political problems with the Turks, treating them as equals. Massacre and bloodshed seemed far away. But today a change took place, and a new light was thrown on the situation. The facts are not new: the world knows the Turks' cruelty and massacres. But the way their crimes were presented this afternoon came like a clever stage effect.

In an audience may change from smiles to tears, the diplomats here seem to have had their souls touched today as Lord Curzon unfolded the sinister story of the fate of the Greeks in Asia Minor; and today's events cannot but fail to have an important effect on the final settlement. In all probability no treaty will be written at this session, and in two weeks the conference will be adjourned, it is believed, to meet again in a month or six weeks. In the meanwhile the Turks will have time to think things over and become more reasonable or face the consequences.

Today's meeting was scheduled under the simple heading: "Exchange of Prisoners." The delegates rolled in luxurious automobiles to the old château. They left it two hours later with solemn faces. Within the ancient walls the shades of murdered thousands had poured to have their say.

Dr. Nansen Reads His Report.

Dr. Fridtjof Nansen, who had been sent to Anatolia by the League of Nations, read his report on conditions there and made the radical recommendation that all Greeks under Turkish sovereignty be got away quickly to save them from starvation or death by other agencies. It was immediately apparent that something more than the mere discussion of the fate of some few thousands of prisoners of war had been staged.

Ismet Pasha arose and said that the Turks were willing to begin the discussion of means for getting all Greeks out of Turkey and suggested that the conference proceed at once to take up the subject of minorities.

Lord Curzon declared that he felt that many thousands of lives were at stake and said that quick action must be taken. He said that the Turks had decreed that all Greeks in Anatolia must get out by the last day of November and added that they had extended the date to Dec. 15. Immediate steps, Lord Curzon said, must be taken to remove the Greeks by that date.

Ismet Admits Decree of Banishment.

Instead of retreating before Lord Curzon's attack, Ismet agreed that the Greeks must leave Anatolia and volunteered the statement that the Greeks in Constantinople had better depart also. Lord Curzon protested that this would mean great economic loss for Turkey. Ex-Premier Venizelos declared that if those hundreds of thousands were sent to Greece the country could not care for them and would have to ask the United States for aid. When Lord Curzon warned Ismet of danger to the Turks in Western Thrace, which remains Greek, Ismet coolly replied that it might be a good idea to trade the Greeks in Turkey for the Turks in Greece.

Lord Curzon then said that he wished to give some statistics in order that there might be a clear idea what was at stake. He said that figures from American sources showed that before 1914 there were 1,800,000 Greeks in Anatolia. Between 1914 and 1918 300,000 died, left the country or otherwise disappeared. Between 1919 and 1922 another 200,000 left Anatolia or disappeared. In September and October of this year another reduction of 500,000 took place, leaving only 500,000 or 600,000 Greeks in Anatolia, most of whom were males between 18 and 60, to whom the Turks had refused permission to leave.

A Million Greeks Wiped Out.

"In other words," said the British Foreign Minister, "a million Greeks have been killed, deported or have died."

Lord Curzon said that there had been 200,000 Greeks in Constantinople, most of whom were still there. 920,000 Greeks in Eastern Thrace, some of whose families had been there for a thousand years and more, all had fled before the dread of the Turks, leaving desert areas behind them.

Turning to the issue of the prisoners of war, Lord Curzon said that the Greeks held 10,000 Turkish soldiers and

Homeric Escapes a Mine In Southampton Water

By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Dec. 1.—A dispatch from Southampton says that Southampton pilots discovered a floating mine off the Nab shoal as the Homeric was returning from New York and was making her way up Southampton Water in a dense fog.

Three pilots put off in a boat and sent a semaphore message of warning to the captain, who in consequence took a different course.

A destroyer subsequently came from Portsmouth, and the mine was sunk.

ALLIED WARNINGS KEPT FROM GREEKS

POWERS WITHDREW HELP

Venizelos Aid Says Ex-Ministers Were Slain for Deceiving the People.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Dec. 1.—Greek papers have reached London containing accounts of the opening stages of the trial of former Greek Ministers and Generals. The Morning Post, which publishes a translation of the reports from these papers, says:

"One is struck in the perusal of these reports by the repeated mention of the name of Mr. Lloyd George in nearly all the speeches made by the prosecution and the counsel for the defense and in the cross-examination of witnesses."

According to the Athens newspaper Eleutheron Vyma of Nov. 14, ex-Premier Gounaris, in his defense, declared that nobody ever told him that the return of King Constantine to the throne meant the ruin of Hellenism and that he had never made any secret of what Mr. Lloyd George said to him in this connection at Cannes. The Eleutheron Vyma, which may be considered the official organ of the revolutionary Government, says that these were deliberately false statements, and it explains the reasons why Gounaris made them.

It says that after his arrest Gounaris requested the legation of a foreign power to recover a sealed packet of papers and the Secretary of this legation visited the editor of the Eleutheron Vyma and asked him to intervene on behalf of Gounaris for the recovery of this packet, which had been forwarded intact to the Foreign Office of the foreign power in question. The diplomat was informed that the packet had been seized by the authorities but had not been opened. When the packet was opened later, adds the Greek paper, it was found to contain, among other things, various telegrams sent by Gounaris to his Government from London and giving a résumé of what Lloyd George had said to him.

Attitude of Allies Shown.

Gounaris, evidently unaware that the packet had not been saved from the police, made false statements in his defense, it is declared, which were disproved by evidence. This served as one of the chief indictments against him.

The text of one of these documents which has been published, shows that Gounaris concealed from the Greek people and the Greek Chamber the fact that the return of King Constantine had decided the great powers, particularly Britain and France, to withdraw their support from Greece. This was set forth in a telegram dispatched from London on Jan. 20. It read:

"The situation is becoming daily exceptionally grave. Lloyd George in the course of our last interview at Cannes, among other reasons for the weakness displayed as regards Kemal, insisted on the pressure of public opinion in Great Britain and France, which is very unfavorable to the return of the King, who by his conduct during the war aided the enemies of the Entente and was one of the causes of the drawing out of the war. The day before yesterday Lloyd George received the Patriarch Melitos, to whom he repeated these arguments, summing up the situation by declaring that Greece is losing Asia Minor as a result of the return of the King."

Evidence at the trial proved that this telegram was never communicated to the Greek people, who were led to be-

TO FIGHT FOR BILLION AND RICH OIL LANDS FOR SULTAN'S HEIRS

AT LAUSANNE CONFERENCE

Immense Oil Holdings in Mesopotamia Now the Object of World Diplomacy.

STANDARD IN THE CONTEST

Alvin Untermyer, son of Samuel Untermyer, sails for Europe today to press before the Lausanne conference the claims of twenty-two Turkish Princes and Princesses for Mesopotamian oil fields alleged to be worth more than $1,000,000,000.

Mr. Untermyer will represent his father and other American and British citizens who are financing eighteen of the twenty-two heirs of the late Sultan Abdul Hamid. Their claim is that most of the oil fields now the object of world diplomacy are owned by them in fee simple by inheritance from Sultan Abdul Hamid, who died in 1918. They contend that the Sultan bought the property from funds from his personal estate, paid taxes on it to the Turkish Government, and was the personal owner with a title as good as any person could have for real property.

Hamid was deposed and driven out of power by the Young Turks, but this, it is alleged, did not impair his title to the property nor the right of his heirs to inherit it.

Major John Godolphin Bennett, who is mentioned in dispatches from Lausanne, is the representative of eighteen of the Turkish heirs. Samuel Untermyer on his recent trip abroad became interested, it was learned yesterday, with Major Bennett in the affairs of the Turkish heirs. Arrangements were made to furnish the capital which was necessary to provide immediate income for some of the heirs, to pay the taxes on their property and to defray the legal expenses in connection with it. Lieut. Col. T. Maitland Edwards is said to be one of the British citizens interested.

Fighting Oil Companies.

The chief legal expenses, it is alleged, are incurred in fighting the alleged efforts of the Standard Oil Company and other oil companies to capture rights in these properties and to make good the title of the heirs against claims put forward by English and other interests.

The oil fields owned by the Sultan and claimed by his heirs are alleged to contain more oil than all the fields in America and Mexico, so that the thing at stake is not merely the fortune of individuals but, to some extent, the future of nations.

Mr. Untermyer was shown yesterday a dispatch in THE NEW YORK TIMES from Lausanne containing an interview with John W. De Kay, in which Major Bennett is referred to as the secretary of Mr. De Kay, and is quoted as saying that former Postmaster General Hays and Samuel Untermyer were to sail from New York today and to make their appearance at Lausanne. The statement of Mr. Untermyer is as follows:

"The message is confused and unintelligible. Major Bennett is not secretary to Mr. De Kay. He is an Englishman who was for many years Military Attaché to the British Embassy at Constantinople, and is now representing the Turkish princes and princesses who are the heirs of the deceased Sultan Abdul Hamid and who claim as such heirs the title to vast oil, mineral and agricultural lands in Syria, Thrace, Greece, Tripoli, Palestine, Mesopotamia and other countries, including the vast oil fields of Mesopotamia that are the subject of so much diplomatic rivalry.

"When I was in Europe last Summer Major Bennett and Captain Edwards, representing these Turkish interests, retained me to act for those interests. My son, Alvin Untermyer, is leaving tomorrow for Lausanne for that purpose.

"I know nothing about the story that Will Hays is about to go Abroad, except that I know he is not going with my son or in connection with this business."

Will H. Hays was not in this city yes-

Capt. George Auger, Famed Circus Giant, Dies; 8 Feet 4 Inches Tall; Victoria Gave Him Rank

The circus will be without its giant next year, for Captain George Auger, the biggest man in the world, 8 feet 4 inches tall, died on Thursday night of indigestion in the home of friends at 164 Manhattan Avenue.

Auger was known wherever the circus went. New giants used to be imported every few years in the hope that they would prove to be interesting, but Auger used to look down at them and hope they would be good giants when they grew up. When he walked through the streets he was a crowd, and when he drove in his automobile his head almost touched the roof. He couldn't go anywhere without being stared at, whether he was working or not.

He was born in Cardiff, Wales, and soon found that life had played him a trick that put him outside the usual amusements of children. He was more than six feet tall at 14 and had to leave school because so much fun was poked at him, and he didn't dare get into a fight for fear of killing some one. For although Auger was not unusually strong this was a lot of weight back of his blows. He weighed 380 pounds and seemed lean.

His first job was as a policeman in Wales, and he later became a London "Bobbie," and was sometimes assigned as part of the police escort when Queen Victoria moved about the city. She dubbed him Captain, because of his height, and the title stuck to him. When the Ringling circus visited London twenty years ago one of the circus people saw Auger and engaged him. He became the king of their freaks, a good-natured, likable person, who lounged through life trying to make the best of the unusual trick nature had served him. One of the oddest sights in the circus was to see Auger holding on his hand one of the Doll midgets, little mites only a bit more than two feet tall.

When he was in the city he lived with Mr. and Mrs. Albert Morrisey. He started to take a bath Thursday night, hoping that it would make him sleep, for he had not been well. Mr. Morrisey heard the crash of his body falling, and when he tried to open the door could not do so because of Auger's bulk being jammed against it. It was necessary to take the hinges off before a doctor could get in and then Auger was dead. He will be buried in Woodlawn Cemetery on Sunday.

Galli-Curci Twice in Peril on Auto Trip; Just Misses Going Through Open Drawbridge

Mme. Amelita Galli-Curci had two narrow escapes from death last night while returning from a concert in the armory at Orange, N. J. According to Laurence Evans, her manager, the limousine in which Galli-Curci was riding with a party of five ran into a pile of building stones in the street and was thrown sidewise over the curbstone. The car righted itself and the chauffeur drove on, only narrowly to miss running into an open drawbridge.

"Mme. Galli-Curci was not injured, but she was badly shaken up," said Mr. Evans describing the accident. "She will be able to sing at the Hippodrome on Sunday. We were coming back from Orange and were going through Newark. I don't know what street we were on, but we were just passing a building under construction. The chauffeur said afterward that the pile of stones we hit looked like the shadow of the building. At any rate, we ran head-on into those stones and were thrown upon the sidewalk.

"Luckily the car did not tip over, although every one of us was badly shaken and pretty much startled. A policeman directed us down the street to a bridge where he said we could cross to get to the main highway to the ferry. At the bridge, the chauffeur again became confused and stopped the limousine so suddenly as to jar us all. When we got out, we found that it was only by the narrowest margin we had missed going to the river. The drawbridge was open.

"There was a little shanty near the drawbridge and we got Galli-Curci to it where she waited while we decided what had best be done. She was calm about it all. The news had spread that it was Galli-Curci in the car and a great crowd gathered to find out if she had been hurt.

"A policeman who was near the bridge when our chauffeur stopped the car advised us to get another machine to continue the trip to New York. It took us about fifteen minutes, but we finally located a car and came over, reaching the Ambassador shortly after midnight."

Mr. Evans was insistent that the opera star had not been injured in any way.

"Of course the shaking up after the strain of that concert was a shock," he said, "but her nerves are splendid and she will all right tomorrow."

MRS. BECKER BURIED ALIVE IN PIT, HE SAYS

INDICT HUSBAND FOR CRIME

Story of Anna Elias Excites Sympathy—Another Disappearance Enters Case.

The Bronx County Grand Jury yesterday afternoon indicted Abraham Becker for the murder of his wife, Jennie Becker, whose body was discovered in an ash pit last Wednesday, at 140th Street and Southern Boulevard, the Bronx, eight months after her disappearance.

The woman was still alive when she was buried and probably died of suffocation, according to Medical Examiner Dr. Karl Reinhard, who was one of the witnesses before the Grand Jury. The woman had been slugged and badly hurt by blows on the head with a hammer or iron bar, which had crushed the skull, but the condition of the bronchial tubes indicated that she was breathing when the body was put into the ash pit, according to Dr. Reinhard.

From this it was inferred that the attack on the woman had been made either in an automobile on the way to the vacant lot where she was buried or in the shop of Reuben Norkin, the alleged accomplice, which adjoins the vacant lot. The evidence strongly indicated that the ash pit had been prepared in advance, that the woman was mortally hurt according to the plan, and then quickly thrust into the grave which had been prepared for her.

Norkin, who concealed the crime for eight months and finally pointed out the spot where the body was found, was brought to confess by District Attorney Edward F. Glennon in the Bronx that he had a close connection with the crime, but Norkin insisted that he took no part in killing the woman or in burying her.

Speedy Trial Is Planned.

Assistant District Attorney Albert Cohn said yesterday that Becker probably would be arraigned on Monday, and that the trial would follow with the greatest possible speed. Becker has confessed so far to nothing more than being an accessory after the fact. He asserts that Norkin killed the woman to be avenged on the husband because of a quarrel over a bill for automobile repairs. The evidence against Becker, however, is alleged to be strong enough to go to trial immediately.

"We are going to make a record in this case," said Mr. Cohn. "We will try to keep up with what is known as Jersey justice."

One of the witnesses was Anna Elias, on whose account the murder is alleged to have been committed. Courting her in the guise of a single man, Becker is alleged to have induced her to elope with him. He left his wife and four children and went with her to Cleveland in 1920. After returning to his wife and living with her up to the date of the crime, Becker again joined Miss Elias, who has lived under the name of Becker. She has a child 2 years old, of which she says Becker is the father.

Miss Elias presented herself at the Grand Jury room with the child in her arms. She waited for several hours before she was called upon to testify, and then she left her baby in charge of others. The woman, who had been found by the police wandering aimlessly through the streets on Thursday night, was so weak that she had to be assisted into the Grand Jury room, and there she became hysterical. According to her story, she had been deceived by Becker, who she said, had promised her marriage, and had even obtained a valueless marriage license, although it is asserted that no bigamous union took place.

Juror Starts Collection.

The Grand Jurors were much affected by the condition of this witness and her story. One of them, it is asserted, took a $100 note from his pocket and offered it as the start of a collection to help the mother and her child. The Grand Jury stopped its work to inquire about the young woman's circumstances. The woman's sister, Mrs. Jenny Rosenzweig of 1,491 Brook Avenue, assured the jurors that her mother was able and anxious to take care of the child and the collection was not taken.

The District Attorney's office announced that the Children's Society would take care of the child for the present. Miss Elias is not under arrest and is not accused of any part in the crime. Her status, according to Assistant District Attorney Cohn, is simply that of a witness for the State. Explaining her aimless wandering Thursday night Miss Elias said:

"I did not run away. I was told to

RIOT GUNS AROUND HOME

Calls Hitchcock 'Unreasonable' for Senate Stand—Gets a Tribute From St. Louis Negroes.

Special to The New York Times.

ST. LOUIS, Mo., Dec. 1.—Georges Clemenceau arrived here this morning and tomorrow, in this city of French origin but of heavy German population, he will deliver another address explaining the mission that brought him to this country to urge that America can no longer ignore Europe and live by herself.

A squad of police armed with riot guns surrounds the home of Joseph Pulitzer, publisher of The St. Louis Post-Dispatch, on the outskirts of the city, where the former French Premier is a guest until his departure tomorrow night for Baltimore. This armed detail is augmented by sixty other St. Louis bluecoats and detectives, with the result that the only approach to the Tiger's lair left unguarded is the air.

The reason for these extra precautions is a number of threatening letters and warnings, including one document in which the writer expressed the intention of throwing rotten eggs at the eighty-one-year-old French visitor when he speaks in the Odeon tomorrow afternoon. But although these anonymous writings are attributed to cranks, the authorities are taking no chances with Clemenceau's safety, and tomorrow 600 extra police will be stationed along his route through the city.

This morning, instead of arriving at Union Station where a crowd was waiting, the private cars of the Clemenceau party were diverted to a railroad crossing in Forest Park, and from there the Reception Committee conducted its guest to the Pulitzer country home.

This has been Clemenceau's first opportunity since his arrival in the United States to get out into the country, and for this opportunity he expressed his satisfaction after a short motor ride this afternoon through St. Louis suburbs.

Pleased at Press Comment.

He devoted a portion of his day to examining a sheaf of newspaper clippings and editorials commenting upon his mission to this country. He showed great interest in these, which he apparently regards as mirrors of the country's reaction to his New York, Boston and Chicago addresses.

"I am entirely satisfied," he said of the editorials he had read. "They are much better than I had expected, much better."

He was asked what he thought would be accomplished by this trip to America.

"I don't think," he replied. "A man doesn't think why he is doing things. He thinks afterward. Meet me in France a year, two years, yes, three years from now, and I can tell you more.

"I am doing my best; I can't do more. As for you, your people are entirely independent. I want the United States to help themselves, but this question is a mixed one and one that must be met by your Government, not by me."

Clemenceau was asked whether he believed France would modify her reparation demands if the United States resumed participation in European affairs.

"Already we have renounced 57 per cent. of our just claims," he replied. "Is not that enough? I think so.

"Remember that Germany not only destroyed our best industrial districts during the war, but also made it impossible to use the factories after the war. France has spent $1,000,000,000 in rebuilding the devastated areas. Germany was to have given $5,000,000,000 for this purpose. But for this she has paid nothing. Is this right?"

"It is a lie!" Clemenceau exploded when asked if there was any truth in assertions that Germans had been maltreated by black troops of France's Army of Occupation.

Hitchcock "Most Unreasonable."

The conversation turned to Senator Hitchcock's criticisms of the Clemenceau speeches.

"A young man in the Senate," said Clemenceau, smiling, "has almost said that I died because I have declared there are no black troops in Germany.

"I think Mr. Hitchcock must be young," he added, "because he is most unreasonable.

"I suppose I should have objected because the United States used black troops in France. But I didn't. I was in this country immediately after the Civil War and saw negro troops that had fought in the Union Army. I did not object then.

"The negroes are here. You may

ACCUSES DAUGHERTY, CITING 14 GROUNDS FOR IMPEACHMENT

MORSE PARDON SPECIFIED

J. P. MORGAN & CO. NAMED

Representative Calls Most Heinous Offense Failure to Prosecute Anti-Trust Law Violations.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 1.—Replying to the demand of the House Judiciary Committee that he furnish particulars on his resolution that Attorney General Daugherty be impeached on the ground of unfitness to occupy his present post, Representative Keller of Minnesota this afternoon submitted to the committee a long document in which he made fourteen allegations against the Cabinet member. Chief among them were those denouncing Mr. Daugherty as refusing to prosecute violations of the anti-trust laws, with favoritism toward corporate interests, including J. P. Morgan & Co., and with using Government detectives to shadow those who had criticised him.

Chief Justice Taft, former Attorney General Wickersham, Samuel Gompers and Guy Oyster, Mr. Gompers's secretary, are among the witnesses Representative Keller says he will demand the Judiciary Committee subpoena if an investigation is made of his charges. But, said Mr. Keller in his brief, "I do not propose to have the witnesses subjected to the surveillance of the Detective Bureau of the Department of Justice, under the guidance of Mr. Burns or of Mr. Burns's private agency, especially in view of the charges made against the Attorney General involving Mr. Burns. Nor do I propose that the witnesses shall be terrorized, browbeaten, driven or coerced, or investigated out of the jurisdiction."

Mr. Keller's Allegations.

The fourteen allegations brought by Mr. Keller begin with the assertion of "wilful and deliberate" attempts by the Attorney General to paralyze the Federal Trade Commission by refusal to prosecute anti-trust violations, although the commission had called attention to twenty-three cases and refusals to prosecute not only violations of the anti-trust laws, as shown by the Lockwood Committee in New York, involving 1,000 individuals and corporations, but similar refusal to act against illegal combinations shown through testimony before the Senate Committee on Reconstruction and Housing. This is divided into twenty-seven subdivisions in which various companies are named, including the Southern Pine Association, Western Pine Manufacturers' Association, Georgia-Florida Saw Mill Association, North Carolina Pine Association, Northern Pine Association, Southern Cypress Manufacturers' Association, California Sugar and White Pine Manufacturers' Association, Redwood Manufacturers' Association, Northern Hemlock and Hardwood Manufacturers' Association, Michigan Hardwood Manufacturers' Association, National Lumber Manufacturers' Association, American Tobacco Company, P. Lorillard Company, Liggett & Myers, National Implement and Vehicle Association, Southern Wagon Manufacturers' Association, Carriage Builders' Association, MacBeth-Evans Glass Company, Mathieson Alkali Works, Cumberland Glass Manufacturing Company, National Malleable Castings Company, Maple Flooring Manufacturers' Association, California Packing Corporation, Southern Wholesale Groceries Association, Duncan's Trade Register, Goodman Manufacturing Company and Pioneer Bindery and Printing Company, all of these being Federal Trade Commission cases.

In this allegation, it is asserted that charges by the Lockwood Committee were placed before the Attorney General more than eighteen months ago and that there has been no action up to this time. The brief reads:

"The Attorney General referred the bulk of these cases to the District Attorney of New York, where most of them still lie dormant. But in the cases in which important offenders are concerned, noticeably the case against the General Electric Company, dominated by the banking house of J. P. Morgan & Co., one of whose partners is a member of the board of directors

Woman Lawyer Pleads Case For First Time in England

By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Dec. 1.—For the first time in the history of England a woman advocate appeared today in court to plead. This memorable occasion was at the Birmingham Assizes and the honor of being the first Englishwoman to "address the court" belongs to Miss Cobb. She prosecuted a man for bigamy and won her case, the man being sentenced to six months' hard labor.

Miss Monica M. G. Cobb was called to the bar at Middletown on Nov. 17. She had, therefore, been qualified exactly a fortnight when she received her first brief.

HIS 'PRAYER BRIDE' POSTPONES WEDDING

Mrs. Mason, Ill, Goes Away and Now the Rev. G. H. Lawson Is In Doubt.

SHE MAY NOT BE RIGHT ONE

If She Doesn't Return He'll Know It, and May Sue Her, He Says.

Special to The New York Times.

ORANGE, N. J., Dec. 1.—The Rev. George H. Lawson is not so sure that he is to have the bride he prayed for and whom he believed God had sent to him. Today he got a note postponing the wedding and saying the prospective bride, Mrs. May Mason, of 151 North Day Street, Orange, was ill and visiting Atlantic City for a few days.

Mr. Lawson met Mrs. Mason two months ago when he established the People's Evangelical Church here. He is 53 years old, and before he became a preacher had a war record. He was with Kitchener on the famous march to Khartoum and served in the late war with the Canadian engineers. After the war he began to preach in Boston and came here a few months ago to start his church.

The need for a helpmeet in his work led him to pray for a wife. He felt that his prayer was answered when the time came to open his church and Mrs. Mason was introduced to him by Mrs. E. H. Meyer of 50 Hillside Avenue, Orange, and in a short time they were engaged. They selected an apartment and Mr. Lawson gave Mrs. Mason a check for $75 to pay the first month's rent.

Everything went smoothly, and arrangements were made for the wedding to take place in the church next Sunday, after Mr. Lawson preached a sermon on "The Woman Thou Gavest Me." They dined together on Wednesday and talked over their affairs, and were to have met again on Thanksgiving night. Mrs. Mason did not appear, however, and Mr. Lawson was puzzled but not worried.

This morning, however, an automobile with a man and woman, who Mr. Lawson thinks were Mr. and Mrs. Meyer, drove up to the house where he has lived at 129 William Street, and the men left a note for the evangelist. It was from Mrs. Mason and when Mr. Lawson opened it, out fell the key to the apartment and the $75 check. Startled, he read the note, and learned that Mrs. Mason had become ill from the publicity she received as a "prayer bride," and requested that the wedding be postponed a few days. She said she was going to Atlantic City with the Meyers to spend a few days in seclusion.

Mr. Lawson was much upset, but today he said he felt confident Mrs. Mason would return in time for the wedding and that he was going ahead with his plans without regard to her request for a postponement. But if she didn't return, he said, he would sue for breach of promise.

"I cannot understand why she went away without saying good-bye to me," said the evangelist. "I expect to hear from her tomorrow, but if I don't I will go to Atlantic City and bring her back. I think she will return, because she thinks a whole lot of me.

"If I do not locate her I will wait until Sunday, until the time set for our wedding. I will have everything ready for the wedding, and if she does not appear at the appointed time I will consult a lawyer and see whether I shall start a suit for breach of promise. I still think she has come to me in answer to my prayer for a wife.

"If she is not there Sunday I will know that she is not the right one, and will continue to look and pray for the wife I need. If God wishes her to be she will be, but if she is not I will know that I was mistaken. It may be that her friends have had her go away in fear that she might devote some of her fortune to the work of the Lord."

Olivia Stone, Who Shot Kinkead and Went Free, A Suicide, Telling Real Reason for Killing Him

Despondent because of her failure to recover her nurse's license in Cincinnati and because she had "killed the only person she had to live for," Olivia M. P. Stone, acquitted slayer of Ellis Guy Kinkead, former City Solicitor of Cincinnati, attempted suicide by taking three five-grain tablets of bichloride of mercury at the Hotel Marlborough yesterday morning. She is now in Bellevue Hospital and practically certain to die.

Under questioning of a woman physician called to attend her when her plight was discovered, Miss Stone said she wanted to die because she had been barred from making a living as a trained nurse. "They have taken away my license," she told Dr. Brandenberg. "I killed the only person I had to live for and there is nothing else left for me to do."

Dr. Brandenberg then asked Miss Stone if she was sorry she had killed Kinkead.

"No," Miss Stone replied. "I would do it over again if I had it to do. I killed him because I loved him. If I could not have him, then no one else was going to."

Attempts to induce her to swallow antidotes for the poison failed and she went to the hospital, expending forgiveness to all connected with her prosecution, including Mrs. Marie Gormley Kinkead, widow of Kinkead. She asked that she be buried in Potter's Field and that her certificate of training in the Cincinnati General Hospital be interred with her.

Miss Stone shot and killed Kinkead in South Elliott Place, Brooklyn, near Kinkead's home, on Aug. 5, 1921. Tried for murder, she pleaded temporary, transitory, emotional insanity, a state of mind alleged to have been brought about by Kinkead, who, she asserted, had induced her to become his common law wife and later had married Miss Gormley.

Her acquittal by a Brooklyn Supreme Court jury brought cheers from hundreds of spectators in the court room, who had believed her to be a woman greatly wronged.

PROGRESSIVES FORM NEW CONGRESS BLOC; THIRD PARTY DENIED

WILL OPPOSE HARDING, TOO

BORAH JOINS ON CONDITION

And So Will Johnson, Who Looks to 1924—Host of Country's Radicals at "Open Forum" Today.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 1.—Thirty-three progressives and radicals of the Senate and House, including Republicans, Democrats and a Farm-Laborite, met here today, under the leadership of Senator La Follette, formed a new bloc to promote progressive legislation, framed a program to that end, and by formal resolution declared their purpose to "drive special privilege out of control of Government," banning politics and having no intention to organize a third party.

The first meeting of the group, which was secret, was attended by most of the progressive Senators, including Senator Borah. Senator Johnson was not present, but is expected to join the group later. He purposes to seek the Presidential nomination in 1924.

Despite the declaration that this is not a third party movement, the leaders do it intend to make a terrific drive at the Harding Administration, its policies and its personnel. An open conference to be held tomorrow at which the political and economic situation of the country and the lessons of the recent election will be considered, it is stated, will be hostile to the Administration and the Old Guard leaders.

The promoters in the conference hope to force the Republican Party into a progressive stand. Failing in this they will attempt to get control of the party in 1924 with the possibility of a third party in the background.

Damaged by Old Guard Scheme.

As to the step taken by the President and the Old Guard leaders in announcing last night the framing of a program for relief of the farmers, including extended credits, one of the progressive leaders said today that it would not be effective. The party, he asserted, must become progressive all along the line. So the Administration failed to weaken the radical progressive group by taking that sudden move.

When today's meeting of the conference was called to order there were present eight Republican Senators and Senators-elect—La Follette of Wisconsin, McNary of Oregon, Capper of Kansas, France of Maryland, Brookhart of Iowa, Norris of Nebraska, Frazier and Ladd of North Dakota; three Democrats—Sheppard of Texas, Owen of Oklahoma and Wheeler of Montana, and one Farmer-Laborite—Shipstead of Minnesota. Borah, Republican, was present for a few minutes later.

Of the twenty-five members of the House who accepted the invitation the following Republicans were present: Frear, Beck, Lampert, Schneider, Voigt, Reid, Nelson and Cooper of Wisconsin, King and Mrs. Huck of Illinois, Burke of Pennsylvania, Sinclair of North Dakota and Woodruff of Michigan; also three Democrats: Collins of Mississippi, Middleton of Alabama, Logan and McSwain of South Carolina, Mead of New York, Ward of North Carolina, Casey of Pennsylvania and Mansfield of Texas.

It was stated that Representatives-elect Schaffer, Cresser, Thomas, Wefald, Kvale and Knight had telegraphed that they wished to be included in the group.

Third Party Idea Discussed.

Senator Norris was selected as Chairman of the conference. The reporters given out say that he was "uproariously cheered" when he went to the chair and called the group into what was declared was the reopening of attack on the "special interests."

The principal speeches of the meeting were made by Senator Norris, La Follette and Borah. Both Norris and La Follette emphasized the point that the conferees had been formed for legislative purposes and that it was non-partisan and non-political, aimed to obtain the best legislative results for the greatest good for the greatest number of the whole people.

Senator La Follette asserted that even if he and some of his associates might desire to form a third party, it could not be done by sitting down and writing a platform and making speeches. He said that such a party must come from the call of the people, who, he said, protest against economic conditions.

"Even the suggestion of a third party movement was far removed from the minds of those in accord with the new Progressive movement," he is reported as saying. "The chief and sole object of the conference is to map out a thoroughly constructive, practical, constructive course of legislative action which would produce the quickest and best results, irrespective of party ties."

Senator Borah, it is understood, consented to enter the conference only after the leaders had assured him that the sole purpose of the conference was to work for progressive legislation in the out of Congress.

"If this meeting is for the purpose of making a practical and effective organization to promote progressive legislation then I am with them and they can count on my support," he told the conferees. "But if it is a political gathering to deal with political subjects and Presidential possibilities then I do not believe I belong in the place to do it."

Senator Borah left the meeting to keep a speaking engagement in Boston. He said that he was in sympathy with the legislative program of the associates, but opposed to any movement for a third party.

"I am for the purpose of keeping the right kind of a program for effective legislation designed to frame bills which will improve economic and other conditions in this country," he said. "There are many conditions that need immediate remedies applied. But I desire to make it plain if the object is merely political or for a political purpose, especially with a view to the Presidency, then I am not in sympathy with it."

Program Outlined in Resolution.

Representative Huddleston offered this resolution, which was adopted:

Resolved, that the progressive-minded Senators and Representatives of all parties agree to meet from time to time and co-operate whole-heartedly in order to accomplish the fundamental purpose upon which we are all united, namely:

To drive special privilege out of control of Government and restore it to the people.

To this end we will oppose unconscionably special interest legislation, and in order to prepare scientifically to meet the critical situation that confronts the nation, we propose to create special committees, composed of members of the Senate and House, co-operating with men of affairs and experience to prepare and submit to this group for consideration from time to time during this and the next Congress practical and constructive plans for dealing with the following great subjects:

Agriculture, labor, railroads, shipping, natural resources, credits, taxation, amendments to the Constitution, looking to the abolishment of the electoral college and the earlier meeting of newly-elected Congresses.

In order to restore and perpetuate the control of the people over their Government, we propose the institution of a nation-wide campaign in the various States for direct, open primaries for all elective offices, including the Presidency and for effective Federal and State corrupt practices acts.

This Committee on Committees was appointed: Representative Huddleston, Democrat, of Alabama, Chairman; Senators McNary of Oregon and Brookhart of Iowa, Republicans, and Owen of Oklahoma and Sheppard of Texas, Democrats, and Representatives Burke of Pennsylvania and Frear of Wisconsin, Republicans, and Collins of Mississippi, Democrat.

An Advisory Committee to consist of five members of the Senate and House, bipartisan in character, was decided upon. It will be named later. Its duty is to create sentiment not only in Congress but also in the country for progressive legislation.

Strong Against Subsidy Bill.

While the gathering did not go on record as opposed to the ship subsidy, a canvass of those present showed an overwhelming sentiment in opposition to it.

It was suggested that the subsidy should not only be attacked, but a constructive substitute to solve the shipping question "properly and effectively" as an "integral part of the country's transportation problem" should be evolved by a special subcommittee.

The conference sessions tomorrow will bring together many of the old-time progressives, as well as radical Senators and Governors elected in November. There will be an "open forum" at the morning meeting, with speeches by Samuel Gompers, Governor Blaine of Wisconsin and Senator La Follette.

At tomorrow night's dinner, which will close the conference, the speakers will be Samuel Untermyer of New York, Senator La Follette and former Senator Bristow of Kansas. Accommodations have been made for 800 diners. Among those from New York City who have accepted invitations to the dinner are Abby Scott Baker, Roger W. Baldwin, E. W. Bemis, Robert W. Bruere, Herbert Croly, the Rev. P. H. E. Johnson, Mrs. Florence Kelley, Dudley Field Malone, Darwin J. Meserole, Amos R. Pinchot and Oswald G. Villard.

HARDING FAVORS DYER BILL.

But He Makes No Comment on Senate Democrats' Filibuster.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 1.—President Harding personally favors the enactment of the Dyer Anti-Lynching bill, it was declared at the White House today, although it was made clear that the Executive would make no comment concerning the Democratic filibuster in the Senate.

The Executive, it was added, feels that lynching is a "very sore spot on our boasted civilization."

Senate Democrats were relieved of continuing their filibuster today by adjournment until tomorrow out of respect for the memory of Representative Mann of Illinois, whose death occurred last night.

The filibuster, however, was well started for the third consecutive legislative day when the resolution from the House announcing the death of the Illinois member was received for Senate action.

Because of the almost unprecedented legislative situation facing the Senate as the result of the Democratic obstructionist tactics, adjournment had to be brought about by unanimous consent.

The Senate today was confronted with the task of approving the official journal of two legislative days, and the Democrats, through their leader, Senator Underwood of Alabama, announced and later demonstrated that this would be a rather difficult process. The work of approving the previous day's journal usually is only a matter of routine accomplished within less than a minute, but with journals piling up, the Senate might work day and night and not get anywhere near the transaction of any business.

Some Republican Senators were reported to be inclined to abandon the Dyer bill with the close of the extra session Monday noon, and Senator Underwood intimated at the opening of today's meeting that he had "hoped that the majority will soon see the wisdom of reaching an agreement with us which will allow us to discontinue our filibuster."

The dilatory manoeuvres made by the Democrats at today's brief session included the reading of Wednesday's journal and the presentation of the first of a series of amendments to it by Senator Harrison, Democrat, Mississippi. This amendment, which Senator Harrison said would correct "a grave inaccuracy," provided for a change in the minutes to show that the Assistant Secretary, instead of the Secretary, had read the journal of the previous day.

PULSES QUICKEN, DECLARES WILSON

Has High Hopes of Coming Battle and Sees Signs of the People Turning to Truth.

TAMPA, Fla., Dec. 1.—Former President Woodrow Wilson declared his "pulses are quickened by the prospect of battle" in a letter to Frank G. Hooton of The Tampa Tribune, made public tonight. The letter said:

"The task of 1924 is to so mobilize our intellectual and moral forces as to ensure a complete defeat of the party which has done the country so serious a disservice and to win again for our Government the leadership in the affairs of the world, at which the Republicans for the time being have deprived it, and personally I feel confident this can and will be done. My pulses are quickened at the prospect of battle.

"I think with you that the voters of the country have already seen how grossly they were misled and have already turned their faces toward the truth."

HARDING CONFIDENT SHIP BILL WILL WIN

SCORES FILIBUSTER TACTICS

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 1.—President Harding expects the Senate to pass the Ship Subsidy bill after striking out amendments made to the House which are objectionable to the Administration. He is convinced that a sufficient number of Senators are favorably disposed toward the bill to assure its adoption, and that the only thing which threatens passage is a filibuster by the minority membership. It is inconceivable, the President feels, that the minority should pursue such tactics to the length of preventing action. Such a course, it is held at the White House, would not be a creditable procedure.

In this manner the attitude of the White House toward the Administration Ship Subsidy bill was outlined today by a spokesman for the President, and it was made apparent that a fight of the most determined character will be made by Mr. Harding in the event that a filibuster is carried out.

It was said today that President Harding was pleased with the action of the House in passing the bill by a vote of 208 to 184, but was not entirely satisfied with the amendments made to the bill. One of these amendments, for instance, wiped out the provision for granting a 5 per cent. income tax rebate to shippers of goods in American vessels, and there were a dozen others which were held by its backers to defeat some of the purposes of the bill.

These matters, the President believes, will be attended to when the bill is before the Senate, and he is confident that satisfactory action will be taken.

The President is understood to have placed strong emphasis upon the necessity for adoption of the subsidy legislation if the American merchant marine is to be preserved and American commerce stimulated to the point where the United States will take its rightful place in the world of commerce.

In fact, the President is said to have expressed the opinion that unless Congress, in its consideration of the subsidy bill had before it the opportunity to place upon the statute books the most constructive and helpful piece of legislation which has come before it in a decade, or is likely to come before it in another decade.

The White House, it was said, did not hesitate to take a stand strongly in favor of the bill, despite the provincial view which was found to exist in some sections of the country among the opponents of the legislation.

There appeared to be not the slightest doubt in the mind of the President that the bill would be adopted unless its defeat was obtained by a filibuster, representative only of a minority. That such a situation could be created, a White House spokesman said, was considered to be evidence of a faulty system of rules which ought to be abolished.

The President was represented as believing in the fullest debate and discussion of any pending legislation, a course which brought out faults in proposals made and gave opportunity to correct them, but he did not feel that defeat of the will of the majority membership by a minority through means of a filibuster was creditable or just.

In his attitude in regard to the bill the President is stated to have displayed great determination to do all in his power to bring about its success and to have concluded such discussion as he had expressed of his conviction that the bill would be enacted into law before the end of the present session. He is said to have referrated that he personally was more interested in the success of this legislation than in any proposal which had recently been before Congress, as he felt that it involved the commercial and industrial development of the nation and the welfare of all of the people.

MARVIN ON SUBSIDY BILL.

Winthrop L. Marvin, Vice President of the American Steamship Owners' Association, 11 Broadway, gave out a statement yesterday on the revised Ship Subsidy bill, in which he said:

"There will be regret over the elimination of the section providing a rebate from income taxes of shippers of 5 per cent. of the freight money paid to American vessels. This was an important feature of the bill very much dreaded abroad.

"It would be unjust and discriminatory wholly to deny the compensation provided for freighters to the ships owned by the Standard Oil, the United States Steel and other industrial corporations. However, ships of these great fleets will receive compensation for service rendered to American producers in general, and this service in the course of the years is a considerable one.

"Never before the present time has it been possible to pass a general shipping subsidy bill through the National House of Representatives. This present success marks a distinct gain in favor of national aid to shipping among the American people. Under these conditions it looks probable that a definite form of national assistance that will tend powerfully to keep the flag of this country on the high seas may be worked out before March next by the present Congress."

DUTCH FOR A STRONG NAVY.

By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

THE HAGUE, Dec. 1.—The Government has appointed a commission to study the Navy bill, discussion on which in the Second Chamber had been postponed pending stock-taking of the financial position of Holland and the Dutch East Indies.

Dr. Payn, President of the commission, at yesterday's first sitting declared that the first consideration was the defense of the East Indian Archipelago, to which Holland largely owes her international political position and economic status, and where Holland during the last three centuries has fulfilled a historical mission of civilization.

The colonies, therefore, could not be left defenseless from the sea, although under present circumstances it was hardly necessary to contemplate the likelihood of direct attack for purposes of conquest. Still, the strategic position of the archipelago and its immense resources, which in war-time would be of importance to belligerents, would indicate the maintenance of neutrality in wartime as an international obligation. He therefore considered an efficient navy as indispensable.

At the same time, he said, the financial position of the Dutch East Indies, although not alarming, required the greatest care lest the credit of the colonies should suffer, and this should be considered in devising measures for maintaining neutrality.

HOOVER PICKS HARDING AS 1924 CANDIDATE

Says Country Will Then Appreciate President's Sane and Progressive Policies.

PALO ALTO, Cal., Dec. 1.—The Republican Presidential candidate in 1924 "obviously will be Warren G. Harding," Secretary Hoover said in an interview at his home here today. "Moreover, by that time," he added, "the public will be highly appreciative of the sanity and progressive character of the policies that will have brought this country through the reconstruction period."

Discussing national rehabilitation and reconstruction of the activities affected by the World War, Mr. Hoover said:

"The nation is catching up on its building program. The improvement of credits is one cause, and the action of the Department of Commerce in behalf of the builders in getting out a building code is another. In most communities the building code is got out for the benefit of the building dealers. The Department of Commerce code is being generally adopted.

"A great deal of work is to be done in the standardization of lumber. On the Pacific coast conditions are much better in this regard than in the East. Engineering projects are going ahead fast in all lines except the railroads."

SAN FRANCISCO, Dec. 1.—There is little likelihood of further reductions in the numerical strength of the army, Secretary Hoover said in an address here today.

"We are the only nation in the world today whose policemen on the streets outnumber the nation's army," he added.

Touching on domestic development, he said:

"An increase of our expenditures toward the development of the country's natural resources is the only means of decreasing future taxation."

He praised the budget system for the relief it affords from the tax burden.

FRENCH BOLSHEVISM LOSING

Soviet Supporters Are Routed in Sanguinary Labor Union Session.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Dec. 1.—Stormy scenes were witnessed yesterday during the meeting held in the trades union headquarters to protest against the imprisonment by the Soviets of a militant syndicalist called Chapiro. The meeting was organized by the committee recently formed to counteract the Communist tendencies and influence in the Labor Federation Executive. But Communist extremists turned up in large numbers to defend their own, as well as the Soviet theories, and the result was a heated argument, which quickly became abusive and finally led to blows, the evening ending in bloodshed. The Soviet supporters seemed finally to have been routed, but not before both sides suffered severe casualties.

Little interest would attach to the matter were it not a significant indication that the chances of Bolshevism in France are steadily diminishing.

"The Red Internationale would like to make syndicalism a slave of the Communist Party. If the Labor Federation accepts slavery under the Bolshevik, we shall demand to pay our contributions to the unions." That is the opinion of the majority of French workingmen, and that is the opinion expressed by their representatives yesterday. Paris still has a sufficient number of extremists to cause a fight at a workman's meeting—that's about all. And conditions in the provincial industrial districts are very sunnier."

HETTRICK, BRINDELL LAWYER, SUSPENDED

Appellate Division Passes on Derelictions of H. J. Rubenstein, Herman Pouker and E. G. Menzel.

John T. Hettrick, the so-called "czar of practice lawyer," who was convicted of violation of the Donnelly act and served a year in prison because of his activities in connection with the Brindell combination of contracting plumbers and labor union men, yesterday was suspended from practice for three years by the Appellate Division of the Supreme Court. Action was taken upon complaint by the Grievance Committee of the Bar Association. In the decision Presiding Justice John Proctor Clarke wrote:

"It may be that a clever, able and adroit lawyer who lends his talents to evading and avoiding the positive provisions of the law for the purpose of enriching his clients and himself is a greater menace to the community than the ordinary illiterate criminal who robs or steals from individuals, but we meet the proposition that the limit and extent of the statute had not been definitely fixed or placed. We know that it had taken many years to procure a final determination of the anti-trust statutes of the United States. It is suggested that it would not do to say that the able and experienced practitioners who organized and created the trusts which were subsequently dissolved by the United States courts had demonstrated their unfitness to remain members of the bar.

"The purpose of disciplinary proceedings is not to administer punishment but to preserve the honor and the dignity and the trustworthiness of the profession. There has been no betrayal of the interests of a client. . . . It seems to us, upon careful consideration, that the purpose for which the authority of discipline has been conferred upon the court will be fully observed by suspending the respondent for three years."

The court suspended for three years Herman J. Rubenstein, charged with making interlineations and insertions in Municipal Court papers after an order had been granted on them.

Herman Pouker was suspended for a year on the charge that he had been guilty of misconduct in engaging in the business of soliciting applications for bonds for the Columbia Casualty Company, it was alleged that he caused to be printed circulars soliciting business for the company, which purported to be a "summons" for appearance before Pouker.

On the charge that he had collected $50 from a judgment debtor and appropriated it to his own use, E. G. Menzel was suspended for six months.

BERLIN DENIES TREATY WITH RUSSIA FOR WAR

Alleged Secret Military Alliance Is Said to Be a Propagandist Invention.

BERLIN, Dec. 1.—Reiteration of Germany's denial of a secret military agreement with Russia is contained in a semi-official communiqué issued today.

The communiqué declares the report in a London newspaper of the conclusion of a Russo-German military convention, "which already has been repeatedly circulated and categorically contradicted, is a propagandist invention."

The report in question was printed by The London Daily Mail today. Based on "a memorandum by a person in close touch with the most prominent German circles in Berlin and Munich," it alleged, among other things, that the Germans were planning a war of revenge, chiefly against France, and had arranged to utilize Russia's resources to make Germany impregnable against a sea blockade, and that 500 German officers were now in Moscow carrying out the conditions of the secret agreement.

SHANTUNG PLAN SIGNED BY JAPAN AND CHINA

Transfer of All Property Except the Railroad Will Take Place on Dec. 5.

TOKIO, Dec. 1 (Associated Press).—The Foreign Office announces the signing at 9 o'clock this morning of the agreement between China and Japan concerning Shantung.

The transfer of all Japanese interests in the Province of Shantung will take place at noon Dec. 5, when all the Japanese troops will be evacuated.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 1.—Japan will withdraw from Shantung on Dec. 5 and expects to transfer the Shantung Railway to China by March. In making this formal announcement tonight, the Japanese Embassy stated that negotiations were being continued concerning the railway—the real bone of contention between the two countries for some years—with the expectation that agreement would be reached by which the transfer of the railway by the Japanese to China will take place before March, 1923, the date fixed in the treaty.

The Shantung treaty was signed at Washington on Feb. 4, 1922, after it had been negotiated by the Japanese and Chinese delegates attending the Arms Limitation Conference. It has been ratified by Tokio and Peking and went into effect in July. It provided for restoration by Japan to China of the former leased territory of Kiao-Chau, the withdrawal of the Japanese forces from the Province of Shantung, the transfer by Japan of the Shantung Railway and all its appurtenances to China, and dealt with mines, the salt industry, submarine cables and wireless stations.

The Governments of Japan and China were required by the treaty to appoint a committee with powers to make and carry out detailed arrangements relating to the transfer of the administration and of public property in the leased territory and details for the return of the railway to the Chinese. These commissioners were appointed after the treaty came into effect last Summer and the commissioners have held many meetings, as the result of which they came to an agreement which was signed by them today.

WORKERS BACK RAIL MERGER

With California Business Men, Urge Central Pacific Retention.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 1.—California business men continued today to present arguments before the Interstate Commerce Commission in support of the Southern Pacific Railroad's application to retain control of the Central Pacific system. Employes of the road also asked that the merger be continued until consolidation plans for railroads generally had been perfected. Seth Mann, speaking for the San Francisco Chamber of Commerce; G. J. Bradley, Traffic Manager of the Merchants and Manufacturers' Association of Sacramento; Frank M. Hill for a Fresno Traffic Association; F. P. Gregson for Los Angeles Jobbers and Dallas H. Gray for California raisin growers, were witnesses.

L. L. Sanford, General Chairman of the Southern Pacific system for the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers, asserted the separation proposal was a menace to security in employment and seniority of train service all over the unified system. Engineers and other trainmen, especially those old in service, would find themselves perhaps out of work and certainly obliged to undertake less desirable duties should the systems be separated, Sanford continued.

ELECTION IN 19TH DISTRICT

To Fill Vacancy Caused by Death of Congressman-Elect Marx.

There will be a special election in the Nineteenth Congressional District to fill the vacancy created through the recent death of Samuel Marx, Democratic Representative-elect.

Nominations of candidates under the election law must be made at a special primary preceding the election. It was said last night that Representative Walter M. Chandler, whom Marx defeated, probably would run again. While Marx won by about 2,000, Congressman Chandler ran ahead of his ticket, Governor-elect Alfred E. Smith carrying the congressional district over Governor Miller by more than 16,000.

HARDING OPPOSES TWELVE-HOUR DAY

HIS "SOCIAL VIEWPOINT"

President Asserts That Type of Workers Long Days Produce Has Outlived Usefulness in America.

The twelve-hour day and the type of worker it produces have outlived their usefulness in American life, President Harding declares, commenting on the report of the Committee on Work Periods in Continuous Industry of the Federated American Engineering Societies.

This committee, after two years of investigation of more than forty continuous industries, including steel and iron, found the twelve-hour day was not an economic necessity. These findings, President Harding says, represent his "social viewpoint."

The President's statement, which will be embodied in the report now being compiled by the engineers, was given out here yesterday by the Chairman of the committee, Dr. H. H. Howe of the National Research Council, Washington. It follows:

"It is a matter of very much gratification to me that the Federated American Engineering Societies, our foremost organization of American industrial skill, should have given two years of diligent inquiry, under competent experts, to a subject which is of very deep interest to me, and important to the country.

"I rejoice to note the conclusions of this great body of experts are identical with those which I have reached from a purely social viewpoint. It has seemed to me for a long time that the twelve-hour day and the type of workers it produced have outlived their usefulness and their part in American life in the interest of good citizenship, of good business and of economic stability. The old order of the twelve-hour day must give way to a better and wiser form of organization of the productive forces of the nation, so that proper family life and citizenship may be enjoyed suitably by all of our people.

"This clear and convincing report of the engineers must prove exceedingly helpful in showing that this much to be desired result can be achieved without either economic or financial disturbance to the progress of American industry."

Members of the Committee on Work Periods in addition to Chairman Howe were J. Parke Channing, L. F. Alford, Fred J. Miller and Dwight T. Farnham of New York; Morris L. Cooke of Philadelphia and L. W. Wallace of Washington.

HARDING TO GO TO CONGRESS

But Day of Address to Regular Session Is Not Stated.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 1.—President Harding will deliver in person his annual message to Congress on its reconvening in regular session, it was stated officially today at the White House. No intimation was given, however, of the subjects which would be discussed. It being said merely that the Executive would deliver the message "some time next week."

POLITICIAN IS ARRESTED.

J. P. Bracken of Pittsburgh Is Accused of Trying to Move 595 Cases of Whisky.

PITTSBURGH, Dec. 1.—J. P. Bracken, Democratic candidate for Lieutenant Governor of Pennsylvania and Congressman-at-Large in recent years, was arrested by a Federal Marshal today, charged with conspiracy to remove illegally 595 cases of whisky from the Thomas Moore Distillery. Bracken was named receiver for the distillery some time ago.

A. D. Griffin, a former prohibition agent, was arrested on a similar charge. They were held in $5,000 bail each for a hearing on Monday, Dec. 11.

H. C. Cutbill Gets Scholarship.

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Dec. 1.—Harold C. Cutbill, the "Flying Parson" of the amateur running tracks, was announced today as the winner of a scholarship in the Harvard Theological School. Cutbill, whose home is in South Norwalk, Conn., is enrolled this year as a graduate student in the school.

ITALIAN SHIPS RACE TO GET QUOTAS IN

Two big Italian liners, the Conte Rosso of the Lloyd Sabaudo and the Giuseppi Verdi of the Italiana-Transatlantic lines, raced to Quarantine from the threshold Hook at 12:01 A. M. Friday to land their immigrants before the quota for Italy was exhausted.

Captain Cavaliere F. Cigoni of the Conte Rosso, which brought 1,447 passengers, insisted he reached the Quarantine station at least a minute before the Giuseppe Verdi and if all his passengers were not allowed to land he would protest to the Immigration officials at Ellis Island. Dr. Merigio Serrati, General Manager of the steamship line in America, a passenger, confirmed the Captain's statement and said the anchor of the Conte Rosso touched the ground in Quarantine several minutes before the rival vessel from Naples and Genoa.

On the trip the Conte Rosso, which left Naples on Nov. 17, broke two propeller blades by striking a piece of submerged wreckage. There were 800 immigrants on the ship who were to land here, while the authorities at Ellis Island told the agents yesterday that only 600 could be admitted.

Among the first cabin passengers was S. N. Sherman, ex-art collector of Italy, who has not been here for many years, he said. He brought a portrait of Christopher Columbus, said to have been painted by Titian a few days before the death of the discoverer of America on a piece of canvas cut from the foresail of his ship. Mr. Sherman said he acquired the painting twenty-five years ago and values it at $500,000. It was taken in charge by the customs officials for examination.

Dr. Serrati said that the Conte Verdi, the sister ship to the Conte Rosso, would enter the service in April, 1923. He added that the Mussolini Government in Italy appeared to be strong, and said he believed it would remain in power for several years.

The Giuseppi Verdi, which brought 764 passengers, made fast at Pier 25, North River, and her agents are awaiting the action of the Ellis Island officials in regard to the landing of her 600 immigrants today.

G. Granata, one of the organizers of the Bank of America and Italy, a passenger, said the effect of the new tariff bill in the United States would be to cut in half the export of Italian products to this country. He said that England was the only solvent European country and it was almost hopeless to expect the other countries to meet their foreign loans.

Assistant Commissioner Landers of the Immigration Service when asked yesterday if it was likely that the excess of the Giuseppe Verdi and the Conte Rosso would call for the return of any of the Italian immigrants to Italy, said that the remainder of the Italian quota for the current year was 1,100 and that after the exemptions were made for those who previously made America their domicile and for children under sixteen, as well as those who would be returned for not meeting the Federal requirements, he believed that the excess on both ships would be taken care of. The quota of 1,100 means the end of Italian immigration until July.

MARGARET LEAHY ARRIVES.

Miss Margaret Leahy, the young English woman who was selected from 100,000 British girls for her beauty to play the role of Aggie Lynch in the First National Production of "Within the Law," arrived yesterday from Southampton on the Cunarder Aquitania, accompanied by her mother, Mrs. M. Leahy.

The young English girl is extremely pretty in the opinion of the passengers on the Aquitania who had opportunities for seeing her on deck and in the lounge at night when the dancing was going on. She is of the petite, elfin type with chestnut hair, blue eyes and white even teeth and natural pink complexion.

Miss Leahy told the reporters that when she was told her picture had been selected as the winner from 100,000 photographs collected by The Daily Sketch, she refused to believe until she lost her position in a store at Brixton, suburb of London, through its publication in the newspaper. Her picture had been sent in by a friend, she said, who afterwards got her job in the store.

BIBESCOS ARRIVE ON THE AQUITANIA

Rumanian Minister and His Wife, Asquith's Daughter, Bring Princess "Billie."

$1,040,000 IN GOLD ON LINER

Cloak and Suit Envoy Returns With Word That Long Skirt Will Soon Be Out of Vogue.

The Cunarder Aquitania arrived from Southampton and Cherbourg yesterday with 1,821 passengers, $1,040,000 in gold consigned to Kuhn, Loeb & Co. and 6,854 sacks of mail.

Among the passengers was Prince Antoine Bibesco, Minister from Rumania, and his wife, who is the daughter of ex-Premier Asquith of Great Britain. They brought their small daughter, Princess Priscilla, who prefers to be called "Billie," which her mother ascribes to American influence.

Prince Bibesco thought that conditions in Europe were slightly improving, and that the acute crisis in the Near East was over. "You see," he said, "it has been the case since the war for statesmen to attempt to create all manner of situations and then to apply a cure, because they though the public wanted this sort of thing. Now it is different, and these Governmental representatives can now function as representatives and not in the interest of their individual programs. They do not feel that if they do not do something they will lose their jobs."

Another passenger was Mrs. Jules S. Bache, wife of the New York banker, returning after spending eleven months at her Paris home. Count and Countess Simeon Litvinoff arrived on the Aquitania on their way out to Hankow, China, where the Count has large tea interests. Thaddeus Plasinski, an attaché of the Polish Legation in Washington, arrived from Warsaw. Mrs. Ira Nelson Morris, wife of the United States Minister to Sweden, arrived to join her husband, who reached New York on Tuesday by the White Star liner Olympic.

The Aquitania brought a passenger with the cheering word to the women of America that the long skirt will soon be out of vogue, for no more than the women of the world of fashion do not want it. The new length, according to George Jabalow, Chairman of the Cloak-Suits Protective Association of New York, who arrived on the Aquitania, is to be light years from the ground, which allows for the correct exhibition of the new high boots. Other passengers were Vladimir Rosing, Russian tenor; Countess Olga Bubna and M. J. Hourtematte, Belgian counsel to Panama.

MAJESTIC BREAKS EAST-BOUND RECORD

White Star Liner Makes Fastest Voyage Between Ambrose and Cherbourg.

Cable dispatches received yesterday by the agents of the White Star Line from Captain Sir Bertram Hayes, D. S. O., R. N. R., the master of the majestic, the world's biggest liner, stated that she had averaged 24.59 knots from Ambrose Channel Lightship to Cherbourg Breakwater and covered the distance of 3,100 miles in five days six hours thirteen minutes.

This is the fastest voyage ever made between the two ports, and it is one hour and fifty-six minutes faster than the record run of the Cunarder Mauretania on July 24 in five days eight hours and nine minutes. The captain added in his message that the voyage had been made without driving the ship in any way and in ordinary November weather. He gave the credit for the increased speed to the four new propellers and the scraping and painting of her hull in the Naval graving dock at Boston two weeks ago.

The Majestic passed the Ambrose Lightship at 12:37 P. M., Nov. 25, and reached the buoy off Cherbourg Breakwater at 12:10 A. M. on Dec. 1. Her daily runs were: Sunday, 534 miles; Monday, 564; Tuesday, 572; Wednesday, 568, and Thursday, 562 miles.

After landing her passengers at Cherbourg the Majestic proceeded to Southampton and debarked her passengers at 9 A. M. yesterday, which permitted them to arrive in London by special train at noon.

CITES 14 GROUNDS FOR IMPEACHMENT

and who are the bankers for the company and select its directorate, the Attorney General refused to permit that case to be referred to the District Attorney of New York, notwithstanding the request of the legislative committee above referred to and has insisted on retaining personal control of the case.

Cites General-Electric Case.

"In the case of the General Electric Company the directors are charged with having wilfully and persistently violated the decree of the Federal Court at Toledo, Ohio, which in 1911 adjudged the General Electric Company as having violated the anti-trust laws. From the admissions of the latter at that time the General Electric Company controlled 60 per cent. of the business in electric bulbs in the United States and at the time the charges were preferred to the Attorney General it controlled and still controls 90 per cent. of that business through subsequent violations of the anti-trust laws in defiance of the decree of the Toledo Federal Court. The Attorney General persists in refusing to act in this case because of the potent influence of the banking house of J. P. Morgan & Co. which has been evidenced in this and other cases referred to in these charges."

Refusal to prosecute more than 100 violations of the railroad safety appliance laws resulting in the death of more than a dozen persons through boiler explosions and "taking sides" in the railway strike are charged. The dismissal of Major William O. Watts, a faithful employe of the department, who investigated war frauds and later conferred with members of Congress in another count, as is the assertion that the Attorney General has allowed to remains in the department mess who have received fees to represent persons charged with illegal violations. Representative Keller repeats the charges made by John C. Climinn, Assistant United States Attorney at Chicago, that an investigation showed that a special assistant Federal attorney named Pomeroy was retained for the manager of the Great Northern Hotel of Chicago in a liquor case on a fee of $1,000, although the case was supposed to be under investigation by the United States Attorney's office. The Attorney General, although apprised of this, has refused to take action, Mr. Keller maintains.

Charges Favoritism for J. P. Morgan & Co.

The Minnesota representative then avers that the Attorney General took [illegible] Justice [illegible] and also demanded from the courts the restriction of constitutional rights, the reference here being to the injunction which Mr. Daugherty sought in the railway strike. Long specifications appear as to "flagrant and bold favoritism in the administration of justice in behalf of corporations, companies and individuals owned or controlled by or affiliated with the banking house of J. P. Morgan & Co., and it is charged that the Attorney General refuses to permit civil or criminal actions against them although "conclusive evidence of such violations" has been in his possession for many months, and such prosecutions have been urged by individuals, public bodies, State and national officers.

Particulars in this allegation are that the Attorney General directed a quashing of the indictment against the United Gas Improvement Company; allowed a dissolution decree of the New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad to be amended and has not prosecuted the General Electric Company, nor a member of the Portland Cement Companies for violating the anti-trust statutes. The use of fraud and deceit on former President Taft to obtain the pardon of Charles W. Morse and afterward the prostitution of his "high office" by having Morse indicted because Morse did not pay the fee of Daugherty's associate in the pardon proceedings is charged, and also that Mr. Daugherty indicted attorneys in the Morse case but failed to prosecute one "equally guilty," now in the department's employ.

Shadowing members of Congress including Representatives Johnson of South Dakota, Lenroot of Wisconsin and Senator Caraway of Arkansas, critics of the Attorney General, is alleged as well as the use of secret agents of the Government to aid defendants indicted under State laws and also the use of detectives to prosecute alleged Communists arrested under Michigan and not Federal laws. Another specification is that the "undue influence" of Thomas B. Felder, former associate of Daugherty in the Morse case, has prevented the prosecution of the crew of the ship J. L. Young, resulted in the release of $200,000 worth of wine belonging to the Continental Wine Company of Philadelphia, and the fact is cited that nothing has been done since the arraignment of Director Harold H. Hart, Thomas Ready and Michael Lynch, employed in the New York prohibition office.

Standard Oil Influence Alleged.

"Felder is particularly efficient in the case of bootleggers and has been peculiarly successful in having Harry M. Daugherty overturn and over-ride the Government attorneys to the advantage of clients of Felder," declares Representative Keller. "Through his susceptibility to this mysterious influence Harry M. Daugherty has prostituted his office and has betrayed his trust and blighted the administration of justice."

Another charge is submission to the influence of "corporations and individuals of great wealth and power;" deliberate conniving at the looting" of the national treasury in California and surrounding, to the influence of the [illegible] of California in the [illegible] of all kinds. The issuance of secret pardons for persons convicted of anti-trust law violations (one Nobles, a Kansas City cotton manufacturer, pardoned after one week in prison and not too ill to play eighteen holes of golf next day) and secret pardons for persons convicted of shocking crimes against childhood, "involving the greatest moral turpitude," the last case being that of George Meyers, fifty years of age, convicted of violating the Mann act, are alleged.

Appointing "untrustworthy, corrupt and dangerous" persons to positions of great importance as charged, is a reference to the appointment of William J. Burns, against whom Representative Keller repeats the charges made some years ago by Senator Kenyon that Burns tampered so much with a jury on the Pacific coast in 1912 that subsequently former Attorney General Wickersham recommended the defendant's pardon to President Taft. There is a long charge that the Attorney General has refused to prosecute war grafters, failed to recover money stolen from the Treasury in these graft cases and settled cases involving millions out of court. The United States Harness Company, Wright-Martin Aircraft Corporation, Bridgeport Brass Company, Kenyon Company, Mackay Companies, American Electric Products Company, Standard Aircraft Company and others are mentioned in this allegation.

Representative Keller demands at least a month more to perfect his charges, saying that much of his material must come from the Department of Justice files. He asks the committee for access to all sorts of documents in the department, ranging from the papers in the Morse case to the details of the pardon case of Captain Robert Fay, telegrams, letters, &c., relating to advice given by Attorney General Daugherty to candidates for the Senate and House in the last election with relation to campaign expenditures are also demanded. Mr. Keller insists that the committee has given him too short notice and that up to now the proceedings have been too hurried. He protests against being "prematurely driven into an imperfect presentation" of his case.

"The reason assigned by the Attorney General for not proceeding with the case, in September last, that he was engaged in the railroad injunction case in Chicago, was to put it mildly, disingenuous," says the brief. "I am prepared to prove that during the ten days of that hearing he was in court for only a few hours on the first and last days, and then mainly as a spectator."

Notwithstanding that the evidence is not in Representative Keller asserts that there is sufficient now to prove that the Attorney General is not fit to hold his office, saying:

"I am prepared to prove that the said Daugherty is guilty of serious misconduct in office, blatantly violated his trust to the public interests; of grave abuse of his discretionary powers; of willful and repeated violations of his oath of office, and of high crimes and misdemeanors."

Representative Keller sent Daugherty a letter to Chairman Volstead of the committee, to furnish all data and information necessary, and on this ground Representative Keller demands access to the papers indicated. He calls upon the committee to pass his resolution authorizing [illegible] to be called [illegible] not like them. But they are here. I suppose they pay taxes and I suppose they pay with their blood when their country calls.

"Germany is indignant because we used black troops on the Rhine. They complain that these soldiers did horrible things, things that the Germans did in France. It is not true.

"When I was in Noyon during the war mothers went down on their knees before me and told me that the Germans had taken away their daughters. The week before I sailed for this country I inquired of the French War Office what complaints had been made against black troops on the Rhine. I was told that in only one case had a soldier been guilty of an indignity toward a woman and he was sentenced.

"Think of what France lost in the war. We mobilized 8,000,000 men. We lost 3,000,000 killed and wounded. We used troops from Africa to fill vacancies in our ranks. After our army marched into Germany we wanted to give our war munitions and consequently we used black troops to fill the vacancies. But none are in Germany now."
